RITCHIE JOUSTS WITH ALLEN ON ISSUES OF 1932

Debate Gives Views of Rival Parties.

Pace Gets Faster

Hoover will speak in Detroit Saturday, probably at Minneapolis a week later and may go to Pacific coast.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A forensic battle on the issues of 1932 was fought last night by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democratic governor of Maryland, and Henry J. Allen, ex-senator and Republican ex-governor of Kansas, but it seemed to result in a draw and it appears the voters themselves will still have to settle the presidential campaign at the election Nov. 8.

The jousting of the two political knights took place at the dedication of George R. Thorne hall, on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university, and the forum, nationally broadcast, was the first meeting of the course in contemporary thought for the year at Northwestern.

Gov. Ritchie Opens Debate.

Gov. Ritchie, opening the debate with the case for the Democrats, dwelt upon prohibition, the tariff and economy in government. Mr. Allen countered with the depression, an argument that to change horses in the middle of the stream would put recovery back, and discussed the records of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Speaker John N. [Cactus Jack] Garner, his running mate.

Several forensic haymakers that were swung by the two speakers at each other fanned the air when the participants sidestepped and talked of different things. Where Gov. Ritchie walloped the federal farm board, ex-Gov. Allen socked the increased cost of government in the state of New York during the Roosevelt regime.

Attacks Prohibition Evils.

Gov. Ritchie, taking up prohibition, spoke of the "tragic collapse" of the "noble experiment," the evils that have followed in its trail, and said the Republican platform offers no hope of repeal. Ex-Gov. Allen said "beer by March" is not the real issue, and that the Democratic platform is a "catch-all" on prohibition, promising more than can be performed.

As a spear thrust the Kansan remarked upon Democratic senators who voted for the dripping wet repeal plank in the Democratic national convention, but a short time later voted in congress against the Bingham beer resolution.

"The people," said Gov. Ritchie, "see the injury prohibition has caused to the growing generation, the temptations and pitfalls which it sets for them; they see a lack of respect for law and order which it has engendered. They see the loss of revenues which it has brought about; revenues which are so strongly needed by government to balance budgets and relieve overwhelmed taxpayers.

The "Obvious Remedy."

"They see the amazing common cause it has brought about between the drys on the one hand and the bootleggers and hijackers on the other.

"Obviously, the remedy is to undo that which never should have been done and to take prohibition out of the constitution and return the subject to the states, where it always should have been left.

"The Democratic plank promises to repeal the 18th amendment without any ifs or buts. The Republican plank heads both ways at the same time. You cannot call it wet, you cannot call it dry. The only name you can correctly give it is a sham and an attempt to deceive."

Allen Takes Up Prohibition.

When ex-Senator Allen took up prohibition he said:

"I sat in the Democratic national convention and heard the thundering vote for beer. I was surprised when Democratic senators, who voted for the wet plank, a short time later at Washington all voted to shelve the Bingham bill.

"The Democratic plank and the call

900 Convicts Riot in Canada; Troops Called

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 17.—The 906 convicts in Portsmouth penitentiary rioted within the walls this afternoon. They defied prison guards and troops from the Royal Horse artillery garrison for four hours before the insurrection subsided.

Ten shots were fired by the guards to intimidate the riot leaders, but no one was wounded by the bullets. One prisoner lost part of a finger in a piece of electrical apparatus and another suffered a fractured rib in the melée.

Demand Cigaret Papers.

The immediate cause of the outbreak was a demand for cigaret papers and longer hours of recreation.

The uprising began in the main workshop, where most of the prisoners were employed. At 3 p. m. the convicts threw down their tools. Leaders mounted tables and demanded everything from inner spring mattresses to a five day week and union rates of pay. The guards called for reserves when the prisoners began wrecking machinery and equipment. An attempt was made to burn the mail bag factory.

Guards took up positions of vantage and a warning was sounded that further acts of violence would be met with bullets. When prison authorities failed to calm the prisoners, troops were rushed to the penitentiary. The convicts threatened to set fire to the buildings unless the soldiers were withdrawn.

The prison authorities asked the military officers to take their troops outside. As the soldiers were drawn around the prison walls, the shrieking rioters began to surrender.

Guards Open Fire.

At 8 o'clock 600 prisoners returned to their cells. Prison officials gave the other 306 men fifteen minutes to march back to their cells in an orderly manner. The convicts refused to move. Four shots ricocheted over the floor. The sullen prisoners moved along slowly and then halted.

Three more shots convinced all but a handful that the guards meant business. They entered their cells. It took another three shots to move the die-hards.

JURY CONVICTS THREE YOUTHS OF POLICE SLAYING

Three Gary youths charged with the murder of Policeman Harold J. Koehncke of Dolton were found guilty by a jury before Judge John J. Sullivan in the Criminal court last night and given prison sentences ranging from 14 to 35 years.

The stiffest penalty was imposed upon Tony Pickels, 19 years old. He was sentenced to prison for 35 years. His brother, Peter Pickels, 18 years old, got 14 years, and Frank Piunti, 21 years old, received 25 years.

Policeman Koehncke was shot and killed in Dolton on July 22. He had stopped an automobile containing the three boys and a fourth one, who is still at large. They got away by shooting him, but were captured when their car crashed into a tree. The defendants asserted that they fired on the policeman in self-defense.

School Revives Age Old Art of Beer Making

Nineteen student brewers, ambitious to learn the art of manufacturing beer, ale, porter, lager and stout, attended the opening exercises yesterday of the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentation, 2774 Lincoln avenue, which resumed classes after a lapse of seventeen years.

Looking on were a number of rosy cheeked, mustached, smiling brewmasters of the old school, alumni of the institute, who chuckled happily as Dr. Max Henius, president, declared:

"The world today is like a great stage. All are prepared to play some rôle in the greatest of dramas."

Resurrection of an Art.

There was an air of solemn rejoicing in the ceremonies. The young students, about to be initiated into the mysteries of a craft 6,000 years old, listened earnestly as Dr. Henius asked dramatically:

"What has the future in store for us?" He answered the question:

"The revival of the brewing industry of the United States of America!"

Revival of Personal Liberty.

"We are passing through a most extraordinary chapter in the history of the human race," continued Dr. Henius. "You students gathered here today at the opening exercises of a course in brewing furnish a vivid picture of the incongruity of things. We are citizens of a country which, although created in the spirit of true liberty, is suffering from a burden created by an absurd law, enacted to regulate the personal habits of freeborn men and women.

"Yet, a course in brewing is to be opened, where detailed instructions as to the production of malt and the brewing and bottling of beer are to be disseminated. How is this possible? Why do men spend their time and hard earned money on such a course? Because they, with millions of citizens of the United States, believe that a change in the prohibition laws of this country is about to take place.

Nineteen Students Admitted.

The subjects to be studied include brewing chemistry, physics, botany, microscopy, bacteriology, yeast culture, mechanical and electrical engineering, and refrigeration.

CITY SEEKS NEW CREDIT AS TAX STRIKE IS UPSET

U. S. Supreme Court Ends Bistor Case.

City officials who for months have been operating the municipal government without sufficient revenue to meet overdue pay rolls and other obligations were heartened yesterday by the refusal of the United States Supreme court to review the Bistor tax case attacking the 1928 and 1929 assessments in Cook county.

They hailed the high court's ruling as a death blow to the tax strike which has held up the collection of nearly $200,000,000 in taxes. As a result of the impetus which should be given to the tax collection campaign by the decision, they said, the credit position of the city should be materially strengthened.

Szymczak to Meet Bankers.

Acting on this theory, City Controller M. S. Szymczak announced last night that he would confer today with representatives of loop banks. It was hoped that the conference would produce satisfactory arrangements for the future sale of the tax anticipation warrants of the local governments.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, who defended the assessment rolls from attack in the Bistor case, joined other city and county officials in expressing the belief that the Supreme court decision had crushed the tax strike.

"The decision of the United States Supreme court and of Illinois' high court [which previously ruled against the plaintiffs in the Bistor case] adjudicates 99 per cent plus of all the objections now on file in the county court against the tax levies of the years 1928, 1929, and 1930," said Mr. Bell.

Sees Tax Strike Broken.

"The next step is immediately to bring all these cases to judgment and to obtain an order of sale from County Judge Jarecki. Once this is done, the lawyers breeding the tax strike will have lost their case and their clients will know it. Then they'll lose their clients and their fees. The whole present organization, head, body and tail, is due for dissolution."

The Bistor case was one organized by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers. James E. Bistor and 2,500 other members of the association were the plaintiffs. Mr. Bell said that there never was an injunction granted in this case restraining the county treasurer from selling the plaintiffs' property for delinquent taxes, but the county's attorneys voluntarily refrained from seeking such sales because they knew that the case was to be appealed to the highest courts.

State Supreme Court Ruling.

The gist of the ruling of the Illinois Supreme court in the Bistor case was that discrimination between different classes of property [i. e., the failure to assess personal property] is a political question, and not a legal one; that the courts may grant relief to taxpayers only when they show that they have been discriminated against as compared with other owners of the same class of property.

While the United States Supreme court gave no reasons in refusing to review the finding of the state Supreme court in the Bistor case, federal courts have made similar findings to those of the high state court in other tax cases.

Plans to Ask Judgment.

Since there is no legal bar to such action, Mr. Bell said that he will seek judgments against the properties involved as soon as he is instructed to do so by the county board. County Commissioners Peter M. Kelly, Dan Ryan, and Walter J. La Buy said that they would ask that Mr. Bell be given such instructions when the board's finance committee meets today.

Attorney Perry Ten Hoor, who has represented the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers in its tax litigation, conceded yesterday that the Bistor case is lost, but asserted that his clients have other strings to their legal bow.

"The Bistor case is only one phase," he said. "We have other suits pending, which will be pushed, and we feel that on some of them we will get relief."

Two of the cases on which he bases hopes of further delaying tax collections were filed by George F. Koester Jr. as a member of the association. One of these is a mandamus action, in which an order is sought directing the old board of review to place on the tax rolls some $15,000,000,000 worth of personal property allegedly held in Cook county. The other case is an injunction suit attacking the 1930 assessments. Both are pending before the Illinois Supreme court.

Leaders Call for 7½ Million to Help Needy

Preliminary gifts amounting to $435,000 were announced last night at a dinner in the Chicago club marking the opening of a drive for $7,500,000 to be conducted by Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, Inc. The fund will be spent this winter for relief work other than unemployment relief, which has been segregated for support from state and federal funds. The first contribution received was $100,000 from Walter P. Murphy, president of the Western Shade company, who donated the same amount last year anonymously.

Two hundred business and civic leaders attended the dinner, at which 21 teams were organized to start the preliminary gifts drive. The general campaign for funds will not be started until Nov. 14, it was announced by Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the campaign.

Traylor Stresses Need.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank and an associate chairman of the preliminary gifts division of the fund, declared that $7,500,000 was set as a goal after an exhaustive study of the actual relief needs of the city; that raising of the fund is as important as caring for the unemployed this winter.

"A year ago we were all striving desperately to avoid what we then thought was the possibility of a dole, or, relief at state or public expense," Mr. Traylor said. "Since then we have spent $18,750,000 of state funds and have gone to the federal government for still more. But that aid served by public funds cannot go to those who are hungry, destitute, sick and cold who cannot be classed as unemployed.

On City's Financial Plight.

"We face the worst winter in Chicago since the great fire. Not only have we the problem of the unemployed, but a community that is unable to finance the public administration. I say frankly that I do not see how the city will be able to get through this winter on its administrative side. With taxes uncollected for three years—1928, 1929 and 1930—this community has reached the end of its possibility of securing credit until the taxes are paid, and there is an adjustment in the fiscal side of its government.

"So far as the ability of the city or county is concerned to provide the relief that cannot be covered by federal or state appropriations, there is utterly no possibility. And we come back to the proposition that if this job is to be done, this committee must raise $7,500,000."

Mr. Traylor added that it would be impossible to raise the quota unless employers appealed again to their employés for contributions. Many of them have said they are hesitant to do this because of wage reductions put into effect in the last year.

Outstanding Problem—Ryerson.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, said that in his opinion the raising of the $7,500,000 fund is of more importance so far as Cook county is concerned than any question of action by the legislature or the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation to provide more funds for unemployment relief. "This fund is the key to the whole situation at the present moment," he said, "as further grants of federal or state funds will be predicated largely upon our willingness to help ourselves."

A. D. Lasker, former head of the shipping board, declared that the entire charitable structure of the city relies upon the subscription of this fund to remain in existence. "We must continue to care for the hungry and cold, because if we do not, they will care for themselves, and tear

GOTHAM CUTS BUDGET WHEN BANKERS WARN

City Credit Totters, Officials Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Facing bankruptcy and frightened by the public refusal of bankers to advance funds to meet the November pay roll, New York City's budget makers today slashed approximately $75,000,000 from the tenative $631,000,000 budget, but the cuts must go deeper to save the city, bankers said.

The probable sacrifice of the 5 cent subway fare accounted for the major portion of the saving. The four year plan of subway financing was abandoned for Controller Charles W. Berry's fifty year proposal. That automatically eliminates $49,750,000 from the 1932 budget.

The decision to endanger the appeal to the strap hanger was weighed against the cost of angering the 140,000 rank and file city workers by a salary cut. The Tammany bloc in the board of estimate decided the former was "the lesser of the two evils."

Good-by to Nickel Fare.

Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, who saw his eight year subway financing plan and a lot of his other economies tossed overboard, said: "It's good-by to the nickel fare now. It means its destruction."

Other transit experts were inclined to agree with McKee. They predicted a 10 cent fare within a year.

The other major and minor economies voted in the board of estimate's session which lasted until almost 1 o'clock tonight were:

Agreement to cut that board's own salaries, possibly 25 per cent, but with no definite amounts fixed.

The fixing of a maximum of $12,000 for department heads.

Slash in the board of education appropriation.

Tammany Bloc Cautious.

When it came to carrying out McKee's wholesale salary reductions and elimination of workers in overstaffed departments, the Tammany bloc was adamant in its refusal to swing the ax.

The action of the board of estimate in backing at the budget was described by bankers as "a good start." They made it plain, however, that step alone would not warrant the extension of further credit to the city.

There must be a real cut in the budget which will involve a real saving to the city, the bankers said. The time has passed for mere bookkeeping savings, which, in the last analysis, are all that are involved in the subway refinancing. What happens in the next few days, the bankers said, will decide whether the city's credit is to be saved.

Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City bank, delivered the bankers' ultimatum to the board at an open meeting this morning. He spoke for himself and Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National bank. Those two institutions head the syndicate that has floated $280,000,000 in city securities in the last three years.

On Edge of Precipice.

Mitchell told the board members the city's credit was crumbling and that no more credit would be extended while the city was "standing on the edge of a precipice." He said there was no market for New York City securities.

The city must have additional funds supplied to it before Nov. 1 as there is only $6,000,000 left in the treasury with which to meet the semi-monthly installment of $13,000,000 for the pay roll.

A remark passed by Controller Berry when his subway bond plan was up for adoption was considered significant.

"If you will adopt this 50 year refinancing plan," Berry said, "then we may not have to make any more reductions."

The market for New York City bonds responded quickly to the evidence of the city's intention to reduce its budget. Many of the issues were up from a fraction to a point within an hour after word had reached Wall street.

J. P. Morgan Steps Out.

It also was learned this afternoon that J. P. Morgan & Co., a leader in the city financing last January, was not taking part in the present negotiations. The Morgan bankers, it was said, felt that the city administration had gone back on its economy pledge and wanted nothing more to do with its finances. It was known at the City hall that the Chase National bank was a large holder of city bonds and was one of the prime movers in demanding that the budget be greatly reduced.

Today's session of the board of estimate was a dramatic event. The small chamber on the second floor of city hall was filled to overflowing. The doorways were jammed with spectators. The board members and the clerks were seated around a long table. There were few smiles and considerable heated repartee among the members.

Acting Mayor McKee appeared tired and late this afternoon when one of his motions after another seeking to eliminate deadwood were being voted out by the Tammany bloc, he grew sarcastic in his remarks.

Fewer Taxi Customers

"Remember please," the acting mayor shouted when $36,300 was voted for salaries for the taxi control board, "that this is 1932 and people are walking the streets. There are men with no food. These high salaried people on the taxi board do not even know what they are supposed to do. They have no idea what the function of the board is or what it wants to accomplish."

A burst of applause followed the McKee outbreak, but he unsmilingly moved on to the next proposed economy and immediately met with another rebuff.

The total savings by salary reductions in the higher brackets and those of 275 city employés in the exempt class whose salaries are more than $5,000 amounted to about $3,000,000. The board, however, refused to touch the salaries of the 140,000 employés in the rank and file, as Mr. McKee proposed in his own economy program.

Banker Mitchell's appearance before the board of estimate this morning had been planned as a private call. Controller Berry, however, insisted that the meeting be public and the chamber was crowded when the banker spoke.

City Bonds Lack Market.

Mitchell revealed that Berry had during the last week asked the National City and Chase National banks for new loans totaling $35,000,000 to be floated immediately on a short term basis. The banks refused.

"Today it would be absolutely impossible," Mitchell said, "in my opinion to obtain a bid for even an infinitesimal amount of city securities. . . . There is no public market for New York City securities today that is worth considering. . . . We appeal to you to disregard what you and we know is going on in the political arenas about a cut in the budget which will reestablish the city's credit."

Pointing out that the public would not accept "mere bookkeeping cuts in the budget," Mitchell reviewed his experiences with the city officials last January.

Banker Blames Politics.

"Then," continued the banker, "the political situation became such in the latter days of Mayor Walker's rule that it became impossible to float New York city bonds. The market faded. Later the skies cleared and we were assured by Mr. Berry and Mr. McKee that they were working hand in hand to reestablish the credit of the city. The city's securities rebounded, but once more further political repercussions came about and today it is impossible to float the smallest imaginable bond issue."

Music Claim Filed Against Edith McCormick Estate

A claim for $200 for music furnished by a string quartet at the funeral on Aug. 27 of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick was filed yesterday against her estate with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The claim was presented for the Philharmonic string quartet by their manager.

COURT REVERSES LINDLEY'S ORDER ON INSULL STOCKS

Dissolves His Injunction Against N. Y. Banks.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday dissolved Judge Walter C. Lindley's injunction restraining five New York banks from unloading blocks of stock in the Insull operating companies on the market. The securities, with a present market value of approximately $16,000,000, were pledged as collateral by the bankrupt Corporation Securities company and Insull Utility Investments, Inc., for loans aggregating $25,500,000.

The action of the Appellate court does not mean that the banks can dispose of the securities at once, for an ancillary restraining order, granted by a federal court in New York, is still in effect and comes up for a hearing on whether it shall be made permanent tomorrow.

Stocks Show Increase.

Even without the restraining order, in the opinion of bankers and lawyers interested in the case, the banks would not attempt to dump the large blocks of stocks on the market, for their value has shown an appreciable increase since Judge Lindley's injunction was granted on May 4.

Judge Lindley's order was reversed solely on the question of jurisdiction.

"The narrow and vital question remains," said the opinion, written by Judge Evan A. Evans, "whether the stocks of the Illinois corporations pledged as collateral to New York banks to secure a loan made by the corporations from such banks were matters within the northern district of Illinois." The opinion stated that the court was aided by able briefs from both sides of the question and that its opinion was "nevertheless not entirely free from doubt."

Violation of Contracts.

In the oral arguments before the court it was contended that the injunction should be sustained because the Insull investment trusts pledged the securities in violation of contracts with debenture holders, but the court did not take cognizance of this argument because it was not mentioned in the formal petitions.

The opinion added that this charge, if it were true, should have been made in the complainis so that the banks could be heard in the matter. Such a question, the court ruled, should not be disposed of in a summary proceeding, but the banks should be sued in a court with proper jurisdiction.

N. Y. Banks Named.

The New York banks involved are the Guaranty Trust company, the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, the Commercial National, the Chase National, and the National City. The loans to Corporation Securities company totaled $10,000,000 and those to Insull Utility Investments, Inc., $15,500,000. The collateral consists of large blocks of stock in Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service of Northern Illinois.

Suits against the New York banks, as well as Chicago banks holding similar collateral for loans, are pending in the federal courts of New York and Chicago. The Insull Utility Investments, Inc., debenture holders contend that the stocks were wrongfully pledged and seek to recover them.

The Chicago banks were not parties to the injunction proceedings and although not committing themselves to any agreement not to unload their securities, with probably a disastrous effect upon the market, they have not sold any of them.

Insull Reveals Warning of Plot in Chicago to Kidnap Him From His Haven in Greece

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Oct. 17.—Samuel Insull today launched into a dramatic counter offensive against the efforts of Cook county officials to have him returned to America for trial on indictments charging embezzlement and grand larceny in connection with the collapse of his two billion dollar utilities empire.

Insull, accompanied by Peter Vanech, his burley Greek interpreter, called this evening on Chief Kalkanis of the Athens security police and Assistant Director Everett and told them that he had information that led him to believe that he might be kidnaped here. He said his informant had advised him that the kidnaping is being instigated by Chicago authorities.

Origin of Warning Secret.

According to messages received here, a dispatch purporting to have come from Athens and telling of the kidnaping plot was printed Sunday in some papers in America. The Greek authorities and Insull yesterday denied any knowledge of such a plot.

Today it was a different story. Insull assembled all press correspondents and gave a statement and read a copy of a cablegram advising him that he is in danger of being kidnaped. He refused to reveal the sender of the message or its point of origin.

Insull said the warning seemed preposterous, but that he felt he could not fail to give it publicity. He also wanted to make it fully understood that his interview and statement tonight was the first authorized statement he had given since he arrived in Europe during the second week in June.

Police Promise Protection.

After Insull had read the cablegram and had a talk with Kalkanis, who arrested him a week ago to investigate his passport, the police official told him he had nothing to worry about and that he could be assured that he would be adequately protected against kidnaping.

It was pointed out to Insull by newspaper men that while in his statement he had said that the report of a kidnaping danger was preposterous, he had evidently taken it seriously enough to go to the police about it.

"What do you think about the authenticity and seriousness of your telegraphed warning?" Insull was asked.

He replied that he could not say and added that he had no reason to believe that he is being followed by police agents or detectives other than the regularly constituted police authorities of the city.

Doesn't Appear Worried.

Insull did not appear particularly worried over the warning. He received the cablegram early this morning and afterwards walked out from his hotel a couple of times on errands.

The notice that the old man was about to break his silence was communicated to all press representatives about 6 o'clock this evening. The setting in which they heard Insull make his statement resembled somewhat a directors' meeting. About 15 people were gathered about a rosewood table in the little side salon of Insull's hotel.

Insull sat at one end smoking a big cigar. He pulled some papers from his pocket, including a copy of the cablegram. He waited until every one had arrived, and then delayed the meeting briefly again to send for Arthur Douglas Page, his young British lawyer, who arrived here yesterday. Page sat beside the old man as he spoke. Vanech, the interpreter, stood up and walked up and down back of the reporters. In his inimitable English, he said: "Youse have all been wanting statements, so tonight we give you what you want."

Insull Begins Statement.

"I have been in Europe since the second week in June and never have given an interview or statement for publication in any form. The only thing I have said was, 'I have nothing to say.' Any American or European interview during the period of my stay in Europe is a fabrication.

"But I am going to break the silence now. I have been down to the surety department of the police this evening and notified them of a cablegram I received which seems preposterous, but I cannot in my present situation fail to take cognizance of it.

"It does not seem possible that anything as stated in this cable can even be contemplated anywhere in the world where there is an orderly form of government. I have not the slightest fear of its accomplishment, even if it were possible.

Tells of "Kidnap Plot."

"The cable I received is as follows:

"'I have reliable advice that Chicago authorities have hired four Greek-American detectives to send to Athens to kidnap and remove you to a country more favorable to their ends. The four have not yet left America, but Chicago believes that authorities there may alternatively try to arrange for other residents to do this job at any time. Chicago says this report will be confirmed or otherwise tomorrow.'"

Insull finished and looked shrewdly around. In reply to questions he said he could reveal nothing about the source of the telegram. He went on:

"I want it understood that I do not believe this possible, but I do not feel that I could keep still and not give publicity to the information I have received on this subject."

Then Insull made his first reference to his indictment in Chicago in the following concluding remarks of his statement:

"With reference to the story of my flight from Paris to Athens, it took place in a regular and orderly way. I stopped two nights on the way and registered openly and under my own name and on arrival here in Athens I was particularly careful to see that my name was plainly written on the registration form of the hotel.

"I am not going to discuss the merits of the controversy which has resulted in my indictment by the Cook county grand jury. That is a purely legal question and must take its course."

This is understood to indicate that Insull considers the whole question of his being returned to the United States will be a question of who wins the legal battle for his extradition.

Police Scoff at Story.

Insull, after finishing his 10 minute statement, turned to the smiling Mr. Page and said: "Isn't that about enough?" Page grinned and nodded. Insull then added:

"I want to say that in making this statement I acted solely and wholly on my own initiative."

Gen. John Naskos, head of all the police in Greece, was not inclined to take too seriously Insull's fears. Naskos said the sending of four detectives from America to kidnap Insull would be a penal offense and naturally would be detected and dealt with as such by Greek police.

REPORT DENIED HERE.

William A. Rittenhouse, assistant state's attorney, yesterday characterized as "absurd" rumors emanating from Athens that Chicago authorities are planning to kidnap Samuel Insull to expedite his extradition to Chicago.

"The reported warning to Insull that we plan such a thing is absurd," he said. "Such procedure wouldn't be considered."

Mr. Rittenhouse also denied that the state's attorney's office had engaged any private detectives to shadow Insull in Greece.

The state department at Washington also denied that any detectives had been engaged at its order. It was possible, state department officials said, that such a step might have been taken by the American legation at Athens, but it was very doubtful that this would be done without notifying Washington.

SWANSON GETS WRIT FOR INSULL BANKING RECORDS

Prosecutor to Ask Jury for New Indictments.

State's Attorney Swanson's "Insull staff" yesterday obtained subpoenas duces tecum for bank records with which they hope to obtain new indictments against Samuel Insull Sr., Martin J. Insull, and also against Marshall E. Sampsell and possibly other officials of the fallen utilities empire.

The order was issued by Chief Justice John Prystalski on application of Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hara. It calls upon the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, through its president, Philip R. Clarke, and the Northern Trust company and its president, Solomon Smith, to produce the following:

All cashier's checks, liability ledger sheets, commercial account sheets, records of loans, receipts of moneys as credits to loans, correspondence on loans "and various other and all documents relating to transactions and accounts with Samuel Insull Sr., Samuel Insull Jr., Martin J. Insull, Marshall E. Sampsell, P. J. McEnroe, John F. O'Keefe, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Insull Utility Investments, Inc., Corporation Securities company, Middle West Utilities Company, the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, the Public Service Trust and Second Utilities Syndicate."

Unload Their Losses.

State's Attorney Swanson has already revealed deals in which Insull "favorites" were permitted to purchase all kinds of Insull group stock with funds from the Insull companies, and then, when the market declined, to charge off the loss to "special accounts" of the companies.

A general conspiracy indictment based on alleged violations of the blue sky law is expected as a result of the work started yesterday by John J. Bailey, the prosecutor's financial expert.

The charge, if the evidence can be obtained to substantiate it, would be based on the fact that securities in the various Insull enterprises were sold after the corporations became insolvent. Under the blue sky law a sale of stock under such circumstances is considered in law the same as embezzlement and punishable by the same penalty of 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Admission of Insolvency.

The prosecutor said that his information that stock was sold after the officials knew the companies were insolvent came as a result of certain admissions made in the bankruptcy hearing before Federal Judge Lindley. Later this testimony was corrected, but the prosecutor said he will examine the entire financial structure of the Insull empire to determine if the original statements were not correct.

It was also reported at the state's attorney's office that evidence in another deal that has been under investigation, the alleged abstraction of stocks from Insull companies by Marshall Sampsell, will be presented to the grand jury and an indictment sought. Sampsell is said to have had the approval of Martin J. Insull in these transactions, totaling $262,750. Martin and Samuel Insull Sr. are already charged in indictments with embezzlement and larceny.

Sampsell is alleged to have taken 4,000 shares of stock in the Central Illinois Public Service company, of which he was president, on Feb. 25, and 26, from the portfolio of the Middle West Utilities company, and on another occasion 9,000 shares in the Central and Southwest Public Service company from the same portfolio.

DENY INSULL INTEREST

Dispatches from London yesterday that Samuel Insull had a fortune invested in a British corporation—Walker Vehicles, Ltd., of London—brought a statement last night from offices of the Walker Vehicle company of Chicago that the London firm is owned entirely by the Commonwealth Edison company. This ownership, it was said, is achieved through a subsidiary, Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, which owns the Walker Vehicle company, which in turn owns all the stock of the Walker Vehicles Ltd., of London.

A FLUTE PLAYER AND HIS 2 TOUGH PALS GO CALLING

Crescent Grill Echoes with Strange Invitation.

Samuel Pirie, 29 years old, of 3824 North Clark street, a flute player formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera company, swaggered into Jack Howard's Crescent grill, a barroom, at 4084 Broadway, shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday.

With him were two scowling individuals, teamsters by occupation, and very, very tough by reputation. In fact, the teamsters, William Thomas and Henry McNeill, both of 1047 Belden avenue, boasted they were tough.

Their mission was to force payment of an $80 debt owed by Howard to Pirie, but much to the delight of a half dozen fortunate patrons the mission was junked by a barrel of beer.

Tough For 45 Minutes.

From 5:15 to 6 o'clock McNeill and Thomas told Howard just how tough they were, while Pirie stood by in silent approval. They grimaced, made imaginary punches and held their hands threateningly to hip pockets. The immediate result was that Howard handed over $6.

Suddenly McNeill discovered the barrel of beer. It was good beer, and potent. McNeill beckoned to the six patrons who had stood in a fearful frame of mind.

"Everybody drinks on the house," he bellowed. Howard listened with an expression of pain. The six customers, four of them known as Cowin, Clark, Conboy and Burke, accepted with alacrity.

From 6 o'clock to 7, the drinks were on the house. Glasses were emptied and refilled, and the amber fluid flowed almost without interruption from the spiggot.

A pause occurred when the tough teamsters recalled their mission. They compelled Howard to telephone his wife, Bee, at his apartment at 2000 Lincoln Park West, to bring some money. She appeared with $5, which, with the $6 paid by Howard, reduced the $80 debt by $11. That wasn't enough, so Thomas took Mrs. Howard to neighboring merchants from whom she borrowed $11 more.

For nearly two more hours the drinks on the house went on and everybody was becoming woozy. Several customers pleaded enough, but, ordered by a Columbuslike command, they drank "on and on."

Police to the Rescue.

A little bit after 9 o'clock by the barroom clock Sergt. John Gabinski and his bureau squad entered the place with drawn guns in response to a robbery call. They found three of the patrons sprawled on the floor; the other three dropped unfinished glasses of beer and welcomed their rescuers with glad eyes. Pirie, Thomas and McNeill staggered about uncertainly, the latter two still calling "drinks on the house" and boasting of their toughness. On the way to the station Pirie turned reprovingly to his aids.

"You guys were too tough," he mumbled. Over at the Crescent grill Howard tapped his barrel. Once full, it was now three-fourths empty.

Fires Shots at Passing Autos; Cops Stop His Fun

Frank Douglas, 45 years old, of 639 South Ashland avenue, was arrested and disarmed early this morning at Madison and Paulina streets after, it is charged, he had fired several shots at passing automobiles and at people who had run into the street to investigate the shooting. He was intoxicated, police said. His captors were Policemen Simon O'Grady and Alfred Kelly of the Chicago avenue station, who were on their way home. Police said they believed Douglas to be a union business agent.

Sheriff Ends Missouri Lion Hunt

Missouri Deputy Sheriff Shows How Lion Hunting is Done

Commerce, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The long cherished desire of Denver Wright, St. Louis leather goods dealer, to participate in a lion hunt was frustrated today. Deputy Sheriff Tom Hotchkiss killed two circus lionesses which Wright had liberated on a small Mississippi river island, intending to hunt them.

An hour and a half after the lions had been released from their cages they were killed by Hotchkiss, who declared he regarded them as "a menace to the peace and safety of the live stock and people of southeast Missouri."

Uses Submachine Gun.

Hotchkiss, armed with a submachine gun, did his work quickly and without ostentation. None of the hunting party saw him land on the island, which is about 300 feet wide at its broadest part. Hotchkiss took the carcasses to Thebes, Ill., across the river, and returned here at midafternoon.

The hunt was then in full blast, with Wright's party beating the willows and tramping across the island's sand flats in search of the animals. Unaware that Hotchkiss had designs on the beasts Wright had ruled it was only fair to give the animals a four hour start.

Finding no trace of lions, the hunters finally returned to Commerce. There they learned their quarry had been killed several hours before.

Bargain Game Hunt, Too.

Thus inauspiciously ended the idea that Wright conceived two weeks ago when he got the 10 month old animals from a broken down circus, paying only a $15 cartage bill from East St. Louis to his home. The party set out Friday night and traveled 453 miles before putting up Saturday night at Benton, Mo., 180 miles south of St. Louis. Once en route Wright had almost been persuaded to abandon the project and give the animals to a zoo at Springfield, Mo., but within twenty miles of Springfield he decided to go ahead with the hunt.

Deputy Craves Real Sport.

When Wright learned that Deputy Sheriff Hotchkiss had put a sudden end to the long planned lion hunt by killing the quarry he returned to Commerce and protested angrily, but Hotchkiss was busy displaying the trophies.

"Shucks," the deputy said, "it wasn't any trouble at all to shoot 'em. No more than pottin' a squirrel out on the limb of a cottonwood. If this is lion huntin', then I'll stick to 'possums and coons, where a man can have some excitement."

New Public Security Chief Named After Vienna Riots

VIENNA, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Maj. Emil Fey, former leader of the Vienna heimwehr, was appointed today as secretary of state for public security. HOOVER SPEAKS IN DETROIT NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Likely to Make Six More Speeches in 3 Weeks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—President Hoover's next campaign speech will be delivered at Detroit Saturday night. The White House late today announced that the President will leave the capital Friday evening, spend Saturday campaigning from the rear platform of his special train as it moves leisurely into the critical farm states of the middle west, and then cap the trip with a political speech that night in the Michigan automobile metropolis.

The decision of the President again to make the middle west the background for his next attack on the Roosevelt-Garner ticket came at the end of a day which found the White House deluged with messages from Republican leaders urging the Republican candidate to get out in the hustings and make as many addresses as possible before the nation goes to the polls on Nov. 8.

May Go to Pacific Coast.

As a result of the widespread demand for speeches by the President in the doubtful states of the middle west and the far west President Hoover may make six more addresses in the next three weeks, although his plans up to today called for but two more. The President is expected to go to Minneapolis or another middle western city a week from Saturday. Possibly that trip may be extended into a speaking tour to the coast. The present plan is for the President to speak in the east, probably at New York City or Newark, N. J., just before the election, probably on the Saturday night before.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, just returned from a speaking tour which took him to the west coast, carried cheerful political and business news to the White House a few moments before it was announced that Mr. Hoover would make his third campaign speech in the west.

The treasury head said that "business is on the mend," adding that "my unmistakable impression is that the swing today is distinctly toward the President." He reported also that California would "unquestionably go for Hoover," and that Republican conditions in Michigan and Kansas were O. K.

Midwest a Storm Center.

The President's invasion of Michigan in an attempt to save another wabbling Republican state from losing its traditional Republican moorings makes the central states the dominant storm center of the 1932 political show during this week. At the same time that the President is moving out of Washington for Detroit, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, his rival for the presidency, will be ending a day of campaigning in Illinois and Indiana. The Democratic candidate will move on into Missouri and Kentucky, as President Hoover takes the center of the middle western stage on Saturday night.

The anxiety with which the Republicans are looking over political forecasts from the middle western states is clearly indicated by the President's speaking program thus far. Up to date every major campaign address delivered by the President has been made in the central states. The President's first major attack on the Roosevelt-Garner ticket was delivered at Des Moines on Oct. 4. Last Saturday the President chose Cleveland as the sounding board for a second attack on the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

Hopes to Give Impetus to Drive.

In going to Detroit, Mr. Hoover will be entering another industrial section where unemployment has brought turmoil in Republican ranks and upset the normal certainty of victory. The normally rock ribbed Republican state of Michigan is wabbling in its allegiance to the Grand Old Party for the first time in many years. Even Republican leaders have been predicting victory for the national ticket by but 50,000 votes.

Republican officials today said the Detroit trip was decided on in the belief that a quick follow up of the Cleveland speech by the President would give new impetus to the Republican campaign. It was learned also that the Hoover trip was planned in part as a counter offensive move to offset whatever gains Gov. Roosevelt is able to make in that section during the campaign tour he begins tomorrow.

Secretary Mills spoke optimistically of business conditions and the political prospects of his party when he emerged from a long conference with the President. He said he had given Mr. Hoover an accurate account of his trip as well as conditions throughout the country.

"Business is on the mend," he said. "That is an observation supported by published statements. Everywhere I went I found better sentiment. The election is the biggest obstacle to business now."

A reporter asked about the political situation.

Calls Kansas Safe for G. O. P.

"As a whole the political situation looks pretty good for President Hoover," replied the cabinet member. "My unmistakable impression from my trip was that the swing was distinctly toward the President; California will unquestionably give its electoral votes to the Republican party."

Asked about specific western states, Mr. Mills said that Michigan was O. K., Missouri was debatable, Kansas safe for the Republicans, Oregon apparently Republican, and Washington doubtful. He added that Republican leaders were very confident of carrying Wyoming and confident of winning Utah. He said the President had a good fighting chance of securing Nebraska's electoral votes. He referred to Minnesota as fighting ground.

Roosevelt to Start Today on Tour of South, Mid West

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt once more goes campaigning tomorrow to pick up scattering votes in the south, in the midwest and in the eastern lands of the factory workers.

It is the second major campaign expedition of the Democratic nominee for the presidency, the first having taken him overland to the Pacific. The New York governor will leave Albany at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

But one change in the original itinerary has been announced, and that will give the citizens of Terre Haute, Ind., an opportunity to see and hear the banner carrier of democracy.

Speaks at Terre Haute.

Instead of tarrying at Indianapolis until 11 o'clock on the night of Oct. 20, as was first planned, the Roosevelt special train will depart from that city hours earlier and will pull into Terre Haute at 5:30 o'clock that evening.

The change was made at the suggestion of Earle Peters, Hoosier state Democratic chairman, and Mr. Roosevelt will visit Terre Haute to make a short informal address there on some issue of the campaign.

Gov. Roosevelt said today that in his conferences with his advisers he has assembled ten subjects, any of which may be discussed during the coming tour.

"I expect to make speeches on perhaps half a dozen of these ten subjects," the governor said. "The others will await the closing days of the campaign."

In New York Today.

The first day of the tour will have the governor making speeches in Rochester and Buffalo, and these addresses, he said today, will deal chiefly with the New York state campaign. Gov. Roosevelt will devote himself, he said, to promoting the cause of his friend, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who is the Democratic nominee for governor of the state.

Wednesday the governor will take a side automobile trip to Wheeling, W. Va., and that night he will make a major speech at Pittsburgh, where he is expected to tell his views on the veterans' bonus. Mr. Roosevelt has decided, it is reported, to oppose the immediate payment of the bonus, countering with another suggestion by which world war veterans who are in desperate need of funds will receive them through federal agencies, similar to the material time draft boards.

At Springfield Friday.

The next day will find him in Indianapolis and on Friday he will make a bid for the vote of downstate Illinoisans at Springfield. Gov. Roosevelt today added his personal word to that given the other day by National Chairman James A. Farley to the effect that he had never planned to speak from the steps of the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, but that he did expect to visit the tomb. The governor regarded as "vicious Republican propaganda" the critical rumors broadcast that he would make a political speech from that shrine of Republicanism.

Accompanying the governor on his special train will be his son, James Roosevelt, and the latter's wife, Betsy; the governor's daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall; his former law partner, D. Basil O'Connor, and Mrs. O'Connor; Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia university, a technical advisor; Senator Key Pittman of Nevada; F. Bruce Kremer, committeeman from Montana, and Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state under President Wilson.

Wife to Use Plane.

Mrs. Roosevelt, whose duties as head of a private school in New York City will occupy her until Wednesday noon, will leave by airplane at that time to join her husband at Pittsburgh.

Among today's visitors at the governor's mansion was F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central railroad, who discussed the railroads' plight with the presidential candidate.

NORRIS EXPLAINS REASONS WHY HE DESERTED PARTY

Doesn't Like Mr. Hoover, Among Causes.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—George W. Norris, radical Republican senator from Nebraska, who is supporting the national Democratic ticket, tonight declared his platform on which he opposes the election of Herbert Hoover.

GEO. W. NORRIS.

Mr. Norris, one of the insurgents who have been declared the sons of the wild jackasses, asserted that party fealty at times becomes a frailty. He said that at times it was necessary to break party lines and declare one's independence of party.

He quoted Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson to the effect that at times obedience to party rule becomes a subversion of the interests of the country and real citizenship. In support of this theory, he advocated the abolition of the electoral college. He claims that the electoral college is one of the methods by which the "bosses" maintain control of the policies of the country.

Defends Desertion of Party.

The beginning of the Norris speech was a discussion of the theory that present day politics denies to the citizen the right of decision. Here, in Pennsylvania, he said, is given a perfect example of that theory of political control.

"Pennsylvania," he said, "is under the control of 'bosses.' It has had great political machines. It has had Quay, it has had Penrose, it has had Vare and Mellon, the only man who has had the distinction of having had three Presidents serve under him. The answer can be summed up in one word: Partisanship."

This, Mr. Norris said, was a direct result of the boss system of government. The people, he said, were not allowed to choose candidates whom they favored.

Prays, but Won't Vote.

Mr. Norris, in illustration of the partisan spirit which he claims now rules the country, told a story of the early days of his political life. He mentioned a minister who in his own early days told him that every morning he appealed to heaven for Mr. Norris' success.

"But," Mr. Norris said, "will you vote for me?" And he quoted the minister as saying: "No, Mr. Norris. I cannot. I am a Democrat."

Senator Norris then went into the workings of national conventions. He asserted that the delegates to a convention, Republican or Democratic, were unable to choose their own candidates. He claimed that the candidates and platforms of either national convention were decided upon and dictated by an inner circle who neither obeyed nor considered the wishes of the delegates.

The Republican party, he declared, was under the control of the federal officeholders, the federal employés, and the party leaders, who followed only the wishes of the master and the mandates of those who controlled the great political machinery of that party.

Says Machine Named Hoover.

"That convention was not representative of the rank and file, but only had to carry out a duty that that machine demanded," he said. "And so it went according to prearranged plan and Hoover was nominated."

"In the Democratic party there was the same kind of a machine. Special interests, trust, and monopolies were trying to control that convention. But the people were aroused. The terrible condition of the country had caused millions to begin to think and to wonder what it would mean if the Democratic nominee came from the same school as Mr. Hoover.

"We knew that on the one side was ranged all the political machinery that could be dominated by monopoly and human greed. On the other side the people, arrayed against odds, were striving to nominate a man whose heart beat in unison with the heart of the common citizen.

"Millions of loyal citizens, regardless of party, were hoping and praying that the people would win and that Roosevelt would be selected. When the fight was over practically every lover of good government gave a sigh of relief. The machine had been defeated and the hopes and aspirations of the common man had been renewed."

"Urge False Doctrine."

Mr. Norris then returned to his theory of the evils of party fealty.

"The leaders," he said, "have made a strenuous effort to inculcate into the breasts of men the false doctrine that party regularity is loyalty to the country. They know that their doctrine is false. Representatives of the great combinations of wealth and of the trusts do not apply this doctrine to themselves. They know no party. In reality they are for no party. If they control the nominees of a party they leave it without second thought.

"Their cry of party regularity is for the purpose of getting the votes of honest people who forget sincerity for party vote.

"We once had a Roosevelt in the White House, and he stood manfully for the rights of the people. He did not hesitate to cross his party line whenever he believed the welfare of the country demanded it. He called himself a Republican, but he would not have been different had he called himself a Democrat. Millions of patriotic Democrats did not hesitate to vote for him. His party name was nothing sacred either to him or to the people. Party loyalty was always subservient to the duty he owed his country.

Likens Two Roosevelts.

"Now we have another Roosevelt who stands for practically the same things, who believes in the same kind of government, who believes that political machines and political bosses have no place in our government. If the people of the country want righteousness, the protection of their homes, they demand honesty, courage, and belief in the doctrine of Washington and Lincoln. The same theories of government which were advocated by Theodore Roosevelt are now advocated by Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Mr. Norris turned to the reading of quotations from the past by the men who now support Mr. Hoover. Summarized, they may be stated thus:

Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana: "Now, then, gentlemen, you may differ with me with reference to Mr. Hoover. I think he is the most expensive luxury ever fastened upon this country. . . . It has been said that we ought to congratulate ourselves because we have an American at the head of this distributing committee. I deny that we have an American at the head of this committee. He is an expatriated former citizen of the United States and he has never found it necessary to become repatriated."

[Congressional Record of Jan. 13, 1919.]

Quotes Senator Glenn.

Senator Otis L. Glenn of Illinois—[A telegram sent to Ruth Hanna McCormick at Kansas City, 1928]: "It would be suicidal to the party chances in the coming election to nominate Hoover as the leader."

"We have come upon strange times. We used to nominate men because of what they stood for. Now we are asked to name a voiceless candidate to lead us."

Former Senator Guy D. Goff, West Virginia: "He [Mr. Hoover] came into my state and brought more money than the people had ever seen, but he went out licked by 20,000 votes. . . . No man who lived for more than 25 years under the Union Jack can love the Stars and Stripes. . . . We have a candidate for the presidency who lived until he was 42 years old without taking sufficient interest in the problems of our country to cast a vote."

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, said on April 1, 1920: "The Republican party cannot accept an internationalist as its standard bearer. It will demand a leader whose Americanism is not in question and whose political views are not a matter of speculation."

"And how often," Mr. Norris added, "have the senate and the country been listening to Mr. Fess demanding that Herbert Hoover should be renominated, defending his every act, attempting to question every criticism made against him? The man whom he denounced a few years ago has become the corner stone of the temple."

Mr. Norris said that Mr. Hoover is a bitter partisan; that when he first returned to this country, after an absence of more than twenty years, he allied himself with the Democratic party. Some time later, Mr. Norris said, he issued a statement in which he declared he did not know to which party he belonged. He had been holding office as a Democrat for three years. He had advised the voters to vote the Democratic ticket.

Shortly after this date, said Mr. Norris, the Republican administration went into power and Mr. Hoover went into the cabinet as a Republican.

"It seems as if, as Senator Fess said, 'Hoover desired to be with the winner in the race'," Mr. Norris commented.

Attacks Business Record.

Mr. Norris then made an attack, based upon letters from the past, on Mr. Hoover's business integrity. He quoted from an article in a London Mining magazine which, he said, was written by Mr. Hoover in 1912. This article defended the so-called "insiders" in mining deals. It concerned the sale of stock to the public in which the "insiders" had pocketed the proceeds and the investing public was left out in the cold. Mr. Norris alleges that Mr. Hoover wrote:

"From an economic point of view, this $30,000 pounds of capital in the hands of the insiders is often invested for more reproductive purposes than if it had remained in the hands of the idiots who parted with it."

"This," Mr. Norris said, "is the keynote of Mr. Hoover's character. He explains how, according to his theories, it was proper to make fortunes in the way he probably made his own."

Launch Drive for $7,500,000 Chicago Relief Fund down the underpinnings of our society," he said.

Samuel Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, declared that private charities have been spending about $30,000,000 a year in Chicago, of which about $12,000,000 has been contributed annually by individuals. The present drive is being conducted to provide funds for the overload on charities, he said. Seventy-five per cent of the fund will be devoted to family relief, which is represented by 15,000 families now on the rolls of private charities. This is five times the normal number.

Hopes for R. F. C. Funds.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, expressed a hope before the city council's unemployment committee yesterday that the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation would advance the state sufficient funds to support unemployment relief for the entire month of November. Funds on hand will run out the first of November, he said.

Such a move would give the legislature, which will reconvene its special session the day after the Nov. 8 election, sufficient time to work out a definite plan for additional state relief funds and to put the plan into effect through proper legislation, Mr. Reynolds said. About $5,000,000 a month is being spent for unemployment relief in the state, $4,375,000 of which goes to Cook county, he asserted.

Heads of leading women's organizations in Cook county yesterday inspected the Women's Municipal home at 5120 South Park way, conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, commissioner of public welfare. The home, which cares for unattached, unemployed women past 40, was established a year ago and now accommodates 235 women.

GOVERNOR SIGNS THREE BILLS IN RELIEF PROGRAM

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today signed three bills adopted by the recent session of the general assembly. They carry emergency clauses and become effective at once. The bills signed follow:

S. B. No. 6—Gives Chicago sanitary and other political subdivisions the right to borrow money from the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation for improvement purposes.

H. B. No. 6—Amends the act creating the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by adding the names of the state auditor, the state treasurer, and director of finance to the membership of that body.

H. B. No. 15—Amends park policemen's annuity and benefit fund law to protect the rights of eligibles whose salaries have been reduced because of the depression.

Sue Walter Dill Scott for $25,000 After Auto Crash

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university was sued for $25,000 in the Superior court yesterday by Frank and Marie Schuller, 2636 Orchard street. The complainants were injured on July 24 in an automobile crash which involved five cars, among them Dr. Scott's sedan. The accident occurred one mile south of Fox River grove. Dr. Scott was shaken up and Mrs. Scott suffered a broken nose and a throat injury.

RITCHIE JOUSTS WITH ALLEN ON ISSUES OF 1932

for 'beer by March' is simply a Democratic catch-all. The constitution specifies the process to be followed in amending the constitution. The dry Democratic territory in the south embraces thirteen states, enough to prevent a change in constitution.

Dwelling upon economy in government, Gov. Ritchie said it is the great economic issue.

"It is idle to say there has been any economy in the Republican administration," he said. "In 1931 we had a deficit of 903 million dollars; at the end of the fiscal year 1932 we had an additional deficit of $2,885,000,000; the combined deficits amounting to $3,788,000,000. The pledges of economy by the Republican administration have not been kept."

Mr. Allen came back with a rejoinder that Gov. Roosevelt's record as chief executive of New York ought to be put into the evidence, concerning economy.

"During Gov. Roosevelt's administration," said Allen, "there has been an increase of 95 million dollars in the cost of government in New York in three years. It is three times the sum which the expenses in government increased in New York under the six year administration of that great New York Democrat, Alfred E. Smith."

Allen spoke of a committee that has been looking into waste in New York.

"They found a cowbarn that cost $45,000, and they protested against another cowbarn which cost $85,000," he said.

"Interested in G. O. P. Deficit."

Gov. Ritchie, countering on Allen, remarked: "I'm not interested in cow barns in New York. I am interested and the American people ought to be interested in a Republican federal deficit of almost three billion dollars."

On the bonus Mr. Allen ripped into "Postoffice Jack."

"The Democratic house, under leadership of Speaker Garner," he said, "passed the cash bonus bill, proposing to issue 2,300 million dollars in bonds. It was proposed they pass the Goldsborough rubber dollar bill for inflation of the currency.

"The President's attitude is well known. He is unequivocally opposed to the cash bonus."

On the depression, the opposite arguments ran about as follows:

Ritchie held that Republican policies got the country into the depression and the voters will give the Democrats the job of pulling America out of the hole. Allen said the issue is whether the Republicans are to finish the task of restoring prosperity, or whether three years of constructive progress in building up economic recovery are to be scrapped, and America is to "embark upon an uncharted course with an inexperienced pilot."

The dedicatory exercises of Thorne hall were simple. Hallett R. Thorne, grandson of the late George R. Thorne, presented the building to the Northwestern university trustees. It was made possible through the generosity of Mrs. Ellen M. Thorne as a memorial to her husband. Arthur E. Andersen, president of the board of trustees, accepted, and President Walter Dill Scott of the university gave a dedicatory address. Gov. Ritchie was introduced by Melvin A. Traylor, and Mr. Allen by Silas H. Strawn.

TIPPERARY TWIST

A Staunch Fabric That Makes Just as Staunch Friends

When man after man, who has bought a suit of Tipperary Twist, comes in and declares spontaneously that he "never saw such cloth" or "never had a suit he liked so much," it can't be just a coincidence. Because in every case he wants another suit of exactly the same kind of cloth.

Some men have bought their second successive suit, some their third, some their fourth—but in every instance they seem to be permanent converts.

This we feel constitutes a stronger indorsement than any amount of technical description.

We need only add that Tipperary Twist is our own direct importation. And suits made of it are obtainable nowhere else in Chicago.

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

HORNER ASSAILS LEN SMALL AT WAUKEGAN RALLY

2,800 Hear Judge Open His Metropolitan Drive.

Judge Henry Horner opened his campaign for the governorship in the metropolitan area with a speech last night before an audience of 2,800 in the Waukegan High school gymnasium.

He denounced the record of his opponent, former Gov. Len Small, declaring that even today Small "would not promise the state a decent administration."

"Small and his principal backer, the former mayor of Chicago," asserted the Democratic candidate," have desecrated the memory of Illinois pioneers by taking a boat load of hula dancers down the Illinois river. The former mayor is sticking by Small because he hopes that he will be able to clean out the state treasury as he cleaned out all Chicago's treasuries."

Conscience His Boss.

As to the charge that if elected he will have Mayor Cermak as boss, the speaker declared: "I have never had any boss but my conscience."

John O'Keefe, chairman of the meeting, said that the gathering was by far the largest the Democratic party had ever had in Lake county, a Republican stronghold. Other speakers were senatorial nominee, William H. Dieterich, and Charles H. Weber, candidate for congress in the 10th district.

Judge Horner said his candidacy is not a personal issue nor a party issue, but "a campaign for decency in Illinois, to save our state from men who would use the powers of state office to further selfish and greedy aims."

"I have but one ambition," he continued, "and that is to serve my state. I do not conceive of public office as an opportunity to satisfy personal desires for power and profit.

"To me, public office is a trust, the administration of which must be for the welfare of the people who have placed their faith in me."

Cost of Government.

Turning his attention again to Small, Judge Horner said: "My opponent also has made a record. I do not intend to dwell upon his record, part of which is written in the records of the courts, for it is not my intention to seek office on the weakness of my opponent, but on the strength of my own position. Nor will I stoop to practices which are being used by my opponents in this campaign, for my self-respect means more to me than a dozen governorships."

The task of reducing the costs of state government was given serious consideration in the Horner talk. The candidate promised to give the farmers and the city dwellers relief by cutting taxes and abolishing unnecessary jobs and state bureaus and commissions.

"I am not, as my opponent is doing, promising jobs by the wholesale for that is not the way to reduce the costs of government," said the judge. "If it were not so serious it would be ludicrous to see my opponent promising jobs by the thousands while at the same time declaiming, for public consumption, that he will economize.

"He had eight years in which to practice economy. Where he practiced it no one knows, but certainly not with state funds."

Whispering Campaign.

The Democratic county central committee took cognizance yesterday of the "whispering campaign" against Judge Horner by denouncing the "propaganda" being circulated among civil service employés that the judge is opposed to the civil service law and the relief bond issue.

A letter from Judge Horner was read at a committee meeting in which the candidate called attention to the fact that both the county and state platforms of the Democratic party indorsed the civil service law and called for its rigid enforcement. Many of his speeches have included those facts, Judge Horner said, and he has repeatedly asked his downstate audiences to support the charity bond issue.

Two Former Officials Blamed by Cermak for Chicago's Ills

Carlinville, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The two most discredited men who ever served in public life are trying to recapture the public treasury of Illinois," declared Mayor Cermak of Chicago in an address here today. His reference was to Len Small, Republican nominee for governor, and to the Republican politician who preceded Cermak as Chicago's chief executive.

In an effort to discredit his administration, the mayor charged, Republican orators downstate have falsely placed the responsibility for Chicago's financial condition upon him.

State's Chance to Clean Up.

"All the troubles and misfortunes of Chicago," he asserted, "not only in a financial way, but its gangdom and racketeering, I inherited from the previous mayor. Now he is talking economy and efficiency in office on behalf of Len Small."

Mayor Cermak then outlined what he had done to remedy the city's finances and asserted that he was speaking in favor of Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, only because he knew that with him in office there would be a business like administration and closer cooperation between the metropolis and downstate.

He also took occasion to deny forcibly that he wished to become the political dictator of the state or to build up a new Tammany. Then he added that if he were politically ambitious he would be striving to build up public pay rolls rather than to cut them down.

"We are grimly determined to restore the credit of Chicago by cutting down, rather than by adding, expense," the mayor continued. "I believe that the city's credit, in fact, is already restored and that the credit of every taxing body in Cook county will be restored soon. There is only one way to do that—by drastic reductions, unrelenting cutting, in the cost of government to the lowest possible figure consistent with efficient public service."

Inheritance of Extravagance.

The mayor then painted a word picture of extravagance under both Small and the former mayor. Under Mayor Dever, he said, the city in four years levied taxes of 252 million dollars. Under the mayor who went out of office when Cermak came in, he asserted, the levy in the same period was 344 million dollars. The school tax under Dever in four years was 288 millions and under the Republican mayor 377 millions.

Next he told how the ex-mayor was telling the school teachers they were paid in his administration and were not paid in Cermak's. He explained how the "payments" in the previous administration were made.

"The city had a barrel which it called the traction fund," he said. "We accumulated 68 million dollars with which to build a subway. The Republican mayor discovered it and began dipping into it. He pulled out millions and put in I. O. U.s until that fund was completely exhausted. Now we can't build the subway, which would give employment to thousands, because they would not accept those I. O. U.s. He and his school board destroyed the credit of Chicago."

Mounting of State Pay Rolls.

Turning his verbal guns on Small's record, Mayor Cermak said:

"He was governor following Lowden. The last year of Lowden's administration cost the state 37 million dollars. Small's first year cost 47 million dollars. The next year it was 54 millions, and the third it was 67 millions, and the fourth, when he was running for reelection, 123 millions. The average cost of state government under Lowden was 31 million dollars; under Small it was 80 millions."

The mayor referred to Small as a "spendthrift who was tried for stealing a million dollars from the treasury and collected $650,000 from state payrollers to make good the debt."

"These two men, a spendthrift and a clown," he continued, "have brought Illinois and Chicago nothing but disgrace and contempt. They hope to capture the state government in the belief that there are more imbeciles in Illinois than there are responsible men and women."

Praises Career of Horner.

Mayor Cermak strongly urged the qualifications of Judge Horner. As judge of the Probate court, he said, Horner has constantly in litigation 40,000 estates and not a dollar has been lost through error or faulty administration.

"We are asked," he said, "to choose between this gigantic public figure and the two pygmies who have been dancing on showboats while shooting poison gas into the eyes of citizens of Illinois."

FORD COMPANY IN VOTE APPEAL TO AID HOOVER

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—In a statement issued today to its employés throughout the country the Ford Motor company advocated reelection of President Hoover. The statement follows:

"The Ford Motor company is not interested in partisan politics. We do not seek to control any man's vote.

"We feel, however, that the coming election is so important to industry and employment that our employés should know our views.

"President Hoover has overcome the forces that almost destroyed industry and employment. His efforts to start the country back to work are beginning to show results.

"We are convinced that any break in his program would hurt industry and employment. To prevent times from getting worse and to help them to get better President Hoover must be elected.

"These are our convictions and we submit them to the serious consideration of all Ford employés throughout the country and their families."

HOSPITAL AID TACKLES ROBBER AND IS SHOT DOWN

Lester Moberg, 33 years old, an attendant at the Veterans' hospital in North Chicago, was shot in the abdomen by a bandit last night when he tried to wrest the latter's gun away from him. Mrs. Ethel Miller, 30 years old, a nurse at the same hospital, witnessed the shooting.

The two had been to a movie and were driving back to the hospital in her car when in Buckley road, just southwest of North Chicago and near the government reservation, the robber stopped them.

Getting no money from either, he took the keys to Mrs. Miller's car and told her to follow him if she wanted the keys back. As she started after him Moberg ran ahead and grappled with the robber. The shooting followed. Moberg is in a serious condition.

Since the bombing Wilbur has been a patient at the Chicago hospital. Mrs. Vera Ada Moyer, 16 years old, of 4558 Oakenwald avenue, who was injured with him, left the hospital about two weeks ago.

No one has told the boy that he will never see again, according to Dr. S. J. Conway of the Chicago hospital. The boy never mentions the matter.

G. O. P. RIDICULES GOV. ROOSEVELT'S VIEWS ON TARIFF

Haugen Says They Favor Foreign Countries.

Charges that the "competitive tariff" views of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt are "poison" to the beet sugar industry of the west but the cause of jubilation to the Cuban sugar interests were sent out yesterday by Republican national headquarters in the form of a statement from Congressman Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, coauthor of the McNary-Haugen bill.

"On Aug. 24, said the Haugen statement, "the Havana Post, an English language newspaper, of which I have a photostatic copy, carried a story stating that officials of La Casa Grande, a large mercantile establishment interested in Cuban sugar, had written Gov. Roosevelt congratulating him upon his nomination as Democratic candidate for the presidency, and stating that they were glad to note his 'statement in which he declared as confiscatory and dishonest the duty of 2 cents per pound on Cuban sugar and that in his opinion this duty should be reduced to 20 per cent ad valorem or less.'

"The Cuban newspaper then quoted Gov. Roosevelt's reply as follows: 'Thank you for your hearty congratulations. It gives me a great deal of pleasure to discover that my political ideals are understood and appreciated by my friends in neighboring countries. It was good of you to write me as you did. Yours very sincerely,

"'FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.'

"It may give the governor a great deal of pleasure to discover that his political ideals are appreciated in neighboring countries; in fact, I am sure that if the Cubans could vote Roosevelt into the presidency of the United States they would do so.

"Certainly the Mexicans with their surplus of live stock would be delighted to vote Roosevelt into the presidency of the United States.

"Competitive tariffs are always welcomed by other countries, but they are poison to American producers. The political ideals most appreciated abroad are exactly the political ideals which would deprive the American producer on the farm and in the factory of his market."

CUT RATE TAXIS PROTEST DELAY IN CITY PERMIT

Attorney Lee Daniels, counsel for the Public Taxi Service company, told Ald. James B. Bowler [26th] yesterday that the public vehicle license commission had not yet issued licenses to the company to operate taxicabs in accordance with the agreement between the company and Ald. Bowler and approved by Mayor Cermak. The company now is operating out of garages on telephone calls at lower rates than are charged by other cab companies in Chicago, but it has no public stand licenses permitting its cabs to pick up patrons in the street.

"There should be some one to whom a person denied a license by the commission could appeal," said Ald. Bowler, after hearing the attorney's protest. "I believe that the council will adopt a new taxicab ordinance which will either abolish the commission or curtail its powers."

Attorney Daniels also protested against the arrests of the company's drivers. He said that most of the arrests are made by Policeman William McAvoy of the vehicle bureau, who "seems to follow our cabs around just for that purpose."

NEGRO DOCTOR WINS RIGHT TO VOTE IN TEXAS

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. L. A. Nixon, El Paso Negro physician, won his damage suit against El Paso election officials who refused to permit him to vote in the 1928 Democratic primary, it was revealed today.

Through an agreed judgment, the $5,000 suit against C. H. Kolle and James Condon, election officials, who Dr. Nixon alleged would not let him vote, was settled for $1 and costs. Dr. Nixon said he was satisfied because he was "fighting only for a principle."

It was the second time Dr. Nixon had been victorious in court action involving his right to vote in Democratic primaries. Both cases were carried to the United States Supreme court. This case was remanded to the federal district court.

As a result of the Supreme court decision in the first Nixon case, a policy followed by the Democratic party in Texas since reconstruction days in barring Negroes from Democratic primaries was overthrown, and in the August primary this year Negroes were allowed to vote in many counties. Because Texas has been a "one party state"—so far as state officers are concerned—since carpetbagger rule was overthrown, it was claimed the policy of making Democratic primaries strictly for "white men only" had deprived Negroes of the franchise.

PARENT-TEACHERS ELECT.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The North Wisconsin Parent-Teacher association today named the following officers: Mrs. Roy Lawles of Gordon, president; Mrs. B. A. Munger, of Ashland, vice president; Mrs. Mels Christman, of Superior, secretary; Mrs. J. D. McDonald of Spooner, treasurer.

PRESIDENT OF OAK PARK 'FIRES' ITS PROSECUTOR

Thomas W. Barrett Jr. was "fired" as village prosecutor of Oak Park by Village President Willis McFeely last Saturday, it was learned last night. Reports were that Barrett would resist the dismissal and be on duty today. McFeely's action is said to have been based on differences with Barrett over the institution of a new court system in Oak Park. Barrett is a candidate for judge in the village.

Final action on McFeely's order will be taken by the trustees at a board meeting tomorrow night. At that time Barrett will test the village's president's power to discharge him.

REPLIES SLOW IN CONGRESS ECONOMY TEST

Only Half of Illinois Candidates Respond.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

About half the major party candidates for congress in Illinois are maintaining silence on a questionnaire as to how they stand on reduction of the cost of government, the overshadowing economic issue in the campaign. The questionnaire has been sent out to candidates for the United States senate and house in the various states by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, which embraces the 48 states, and it puts up to them three direct questions covering the problem of reducing public expenditures and taxes. In essence the questions are:

1. Do you favor cutting federal expenditures by at least 750 million dollars?

2. Are you in favor of reducing expenses by [a] consolidation of bureaus and reduction of personnel; [b] by reducing compensation of government employes; [c] by eliminating less essential governmental activities?

3. Will you make reduction of federal expenditures by at least 750 million dollars a major feature of your platform and not permit this objective to be defeated solely by differences of opinion as to ways and means?

Senate Candidates Respond.

In Illinois both candidates for the senate—Senator Otis F. Glenn, Republican, and William H. Dieterich, Democrat—have put themselves on record in almost identical pledges to force greater economies in the operation of the federal government.

Candidates for the house, however, have been slower to respond. Out of 54 major party candidates for representatives in congress only 25 have replied to the economy in government questionnaire, or somewhat less than 50 per cent. The 25 who have answered declare that at least three-quarters of a billion dollars should be trimmed off federal expenses.

Walter W. Williams, president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and Illinois chairman for the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, reports that the only diversity of opinion in the answers concerns the question of reducing federal salaries.

List Candidates Who Replied.

The candidates for members of the house who have so far answered the questionnaire on the predominant economic issue, and who pledge themselves to go along with the taxpayer are the following, asterisks denoting present members:

Senator Glenn, in answering the questionnaire, said he is in thorough accord with the idea of slashing national budgets by at least three-fourths of a billion dollars.

Sees Need for Cost Cutting.

"I early realized the pressing necessity for drastic reduction in federal expenditures and federal taxation," said Senator Glenn. "In my mind the burden of taxation, local, state and national, is probably the most substantial reason for the continuance of the present economic and financial situation.

"I believe that if we could very greatly reduce the tax burden and in doing so abolish, or at least minimise, the interference of the government in private business affairs a very great forward step would be taken toward prosperity. The great and growing army of federal employes and state employes, all functioning at the expense of the overburdened, the almost destroyed taxpayers, must be stopped. Drastic and severe reductions must be made forthwith in the expenditures of the federal government. It is coming next December or next January."

Mr. Dieterich, while opposing any reduction in compensation for federal pay rollers, urged all possible reductions of needless government employes, the discontinuation of nonessential government activities and the closing of all federal bureaus and departments that duplicate work done by similar departments operated by the various states.

"The reduction of federal expenditures by at least $750,000,000," he wrote, "will constitute one of my major activities if elected to the senate, and I will not let this objective be defeated for reasonable surrender of any opinion I may have on ways and means that will accomplish the economy."

For guidance of the voters, the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures plans to publish nationally before the election the pledges of the various candidates on the twin questions of government budgets and government taxes. George W. Rossetter, general chairman of the organization, said:

"The people are entitled to know how the candidates stand on proposed economies. We intend to publish the pledges of the candidates. Where candidates equivocate or show indifference on these all important questions, we also intend to make these facts known to the electorate."

Answers from congressional candidates in Wisconsin are now being compiled, and after that the answers from candidates in Iowa, Michigan, and Indiana are to be made known.

SENATOR WATSON WOULD END RAIDS ON U. S. TREASURY

A permanent organization to block the efforts of groups seeking appropriations from congress was suggested by Senator James W. Watson of Indiana in a letter received yesterday by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures.

"It has occurred to me that if your organization should continue as a permanent association," wrote Senator Watson, "it could render a service invaluable to the taxpayers. Representatives often appear in Washington who are interested in measures that mean expenditure of public funds, rather than their saving. Members of congress would be very glad to know that there is an organization such as yours that stands ready to support them in their efforts to effect all economies possible and to provide for the necessaries of government."

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio also expressed his interest in economy in a statement to the national organization. "The only effectual way to make reductions," he wrote, "is to authorize the President to consolidate bureaus where it is possible and abolish where it is needful, a proposal I have been urging for the last ten years. Our experience on the economy bill shows that it cannot be effectually done by congress."

DEMOCRATS PICK MISSOURI JUDGE FOR GOVERNOR

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Guy B. Park, 60 year old Circuit judge of Platte City, today was nominated unanimously for governor by the Democratic state committee to replace his old friend and fellow townman, the late Francis M. Wilson, as head of the state ticket.

Thomas J. Pendergast, head of the Kansas City Democratic organization, strongly supported the nomination of Judge Park, who fills a vacancy caused by the death last week of Wilson, nominated at the state primary election in August.

Chairman Arthur M. Curtis of the Republican state committee, commenting on the selection of the Democratic nominee, said Lieut. Gov. E. H. Winter, Republican candidate for governor, is "now certain of victory since Boss Pendergast has named his candidate for governor."

Both parties tonight reorganized plans for intensive campaigns during the three weeks between now and the general election Nov. 8.

Certify Porter on Ticket.

Springfield Ill., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Frank Porter of McLeansboro today was certified by the secretary of state as Democratic candidate for state representative from the 51st senatorial district. Porter, a member of the 57th general assembly, was appointed by the district board following the recent death of Nominee John McElvain of Broughton.

ROSSETTER LAYS HIGH TAXES ON PAY ROLL WASTE

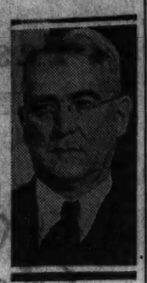
The menace of an increasing army of payrollers as a check to any effort to reduce public expenditures was described by George T. Rossetter, president of the Chicago association of commerce, speaking before the Western Railway club in the Hotel Sherman last night.

"Thousands of public payrollers are worse than useless, as every business man knows who has had any contact with them," said Mr. Rossetter. He declared that the 416 separate local governments in Cook county could be reduced fifty or sixty per cent with a distinct gain in efficiency.

BAR COMMENDS JUDGE HOOD IN RACE FOR BENCH

Gives Reports on Other Candidates.

City Judge Craig A. Hood of Chicago Heights, one of the two Republican nominees for vacancies on the Superior bench, received special commendation in a report of the Chicago Bar association made public yesterday.



JUDGE HOOD.

The report, prepared by the committee on candidates and approved by the board of managers of the association, was mailed to all members of the organization in connection with a postal primary on the candidates for the two Superior court vacancies caused by the deaths of Judges Albert C. Barnes and Martin J. Isaacs, and candidates for two seats on the Municipal bench not covered by the indorsements resulting from the July bar association primary.

Take Poll on Amendment.

Simultaneously the bar association is taking a poll of its membership on the Gateway amendment to the state constitution which will be submitted to the voters at the election of Nov. 8. Ballots on candidates and on the constitutional question are to be returned on Thursday and the results probably will be announced Thursday night.

Judge Hood, who frequently has sat as a judge of the Circuit court of Cook county, is a candidate for the Barnes vacancy. His opponents are Municipal Judge James F. Fardy, Democrat, who withdrew from a renomination for his present office to make this race, and Richard P. Garrett, the Farmer-Labor candidate.

Praises Judge's Record.

Of Judge Hood, who served two terms as city attorney and two terms as mayor of Chicago Heights before being elected city judge in 1927, the report on candidates said:

"In his service in the Circuit court of Cook county he has been sincere, hard working, conscientious and efficient, and has demonstrated that he is well qualified to be a judge of the Superior court."

The expression, "well qualified" is one of the regular forms used in these reports, others lower in the scale being "qualified," "fairly qualified," and "not qualified." Rarely, if ever, has a new candiate received higher praise than is conveyed by "well qualified."

"He is now finishing his fourth year as a judge of the Municipal court," said the report in reference to Judge Fardy, "where his services in the main have been satisfactory. He is fairly qualified for the office of judge of the Superior court."

Attorney Garrett, the Farmer-Laborite, also was classified as "fairly qualified."

On Other Candidates.

The three candidates for the Isaacs vacancy were passed upon in the following language:

FRANCIS B. ALLEGRETTI, Democrat—He has served eight years as a judge of the Municipal court, about one-half the time having been spent in the Boys' court, where his services received much favorable comment; but his general experience and judicial service have not been sufficient to qualify him for the office of judge of the Superior court.

THEODORE F. EHLER, Republican—He has served as a judge of the Municipal court for twelve years, and his courtesy, patience, industry and careful judicial work has demonstrated his fitness for the office. He is qualified for the office of judge of the Superior court.

PETER SIEGMAN, Farmer-Labor—On the whole we doubt his qualifications for the office.

Two Candidates Off List.

Two of the Municipal court candidates indorsed in the July bar primary are no longer candidates for that court. One was Judge Fardy and the other was Edgar B. Elder, crowded out of his supposed nomination by the Supreme court decision in favor of Joseph F. Haas.

The Democratic city committee named Frank H. Block to the ballot vacancy caused by Judge Fardy's withdrawal, and in the supplemental primary the members of the bar are asked to vote on his qualifications and those of two other Democrats who ran thirteenth and fourteenth in the July primary. The members will vote for two in order to complete the association slate.

The verdicts on these three follow:

FRANK R. BICEK—He is courteous in manner, even tempered, conscientious, and is qualified for the office.

EUGENE HOLLAND—In his public service he has been conscientious and efficient. He is qualified for the office.

CECIL CORBETT SMITH—He is industrious and conscientious and possesses judicial poise. By ability, character and temperament he is well qualified for the office.

The board of managers made no recommendation in reference to the Gateway amendment.

POLES PROTEST RESOLUTION OF GERMAN GROUP

Rap 'Nationalistic Spirit' of Demands.

Presidents of three major Polish organizations of Chicago joined yesterday in issuing a protest against a resolution adopted by the mass-meeting of Germans of the city in their annual German day celebration on Sept. 28. The measure referred to the status of the Polish corridor, and was drafted by Julius Klein, vice president of the German Day association, according to information from Capt. George Weideling, president of the German group.

"Heartfelt is the gratitude of every Pole to the United States," said the Polish protest yesterday, "and deep is the reverence of the memory of George Washington, the father of the liberty of nations. It was expected that the Washington observance should, above all, avoid connections with political aims of foreign countries.

Attack German Statement.

"With great astonishment and profound indignation we have learned that a German nationalistic group, which, intending to honor the memory of Washington at an observance arranged in the Stadium of Chicago on Sept. 26, in unanimous resolutions, announced the political program of a foreign power, voiced a demand which was an insult to the memory of Washington and his high ideals for which Kosciuszko and Pulaski fought and for which the latter laid down his life at Savannah.

"This German nationalistic group made demands tantamount to the tendencies of another partition of Poland, having for their purpose the restoration of political conditions of the pre-war era, with gross violations of not only the rights of the United States and Poland but of other nations which with the help of the United States have been restored to their own independent existence.

"This incident deserves the severest censure and evokes our severest protest. We firmly believe that the American nation, in which is incorporated a citizenry of 4,000,000 of Polish extraction, shares our indignation and we call upon the committee of the Washington celebration, the representatives of the people in congress, and the public at large for an unequivocal condemnation of this deplorable and dishonest incident."

Signers of the Protest.

Signers of the protest are J. Romanskiewics, president of the Polish National Alliance of the United States; John Olejniczak, president of the Polish Roman Catholic union; and Albert F. Soska, president of the Polish Alma Mater of the United States.

Capt. Weideling, who was chairman of the German day celebration, said yesterday that he personally had disapproved introduction of the resolution.

The Yuvaraja of the state of Mysore, India, paid a visit to Chicago and the World's Fair yesterday. The potentate, Sir K. N. R. Wadiyar, conferred with officials concerning Indian participation in the exposition next year.

A site at 23d street and the lake front, about two acres, was selected by the Yuvaraja and his friend, Sardar Jagjit Singh, New York importer, for the Indian pavilion. Later in the day Mr. Singh drafted a rough plan for the pavilion, which will contain exhibits associated with the industries, life, and philosophy of India.

Exposition officials announced that among the exhibits at the electrical building will be a fever machine, with this apparatus physicians will employ nature's own method of fighting disease by raising the body temperature.

Scripps Howard Papers Will Support Roosevelt

New York, Oct. 17. — [Special.] — The Scripps-Howard newspapers announced today their support, with reservations, of Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential candidacy. The same newspapers in 1928 supported Herbert Hoover, and this year, prior to the Democratic convention, they urged the nomination of Alfred E. Smith.

VOTERS IN OHIO MAKE FEDERAL EXPENSE ISSUE

Candidates for Congress Put on Spot.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Ohio is one of the few states in which economy in federal government expenditures is an issue in the campaign. It has been made so largely by the Cincinnati Enquirer, which is putting the Ohio candidates for congress on the spot regarding their attitude toward a drastic reduction in the cost of the central government.

The Enquirer has submitted to each candidate a 14 point questionnaire asking whether, if elected, he will vote in congress for the abolition of many of the paternalistic, subventionary and regulatory activities of the federal government which encroach upon the jurisdiction of the states and for a radical scaling down of the expenditures on legitimate federal functions.

Nominees Are Squirming.

The questionnaire is being printed daily together with the answers of the candidates. A good deal of squirming on the part of the nominees, particularly sitting members who are candidates for reelection, has been the result. Some answer all of the questions in the affirmative, some are evasive, and some decline to answer at all.

The questionnaire has been a pillory for those members of the Ohio delegation who voted against the various economy proposals at the last session. On the whole, the economy issue has not figured conspicuously in the campaign. Neither party is stressing it at present and for more than a month, neither the President nor Gov. Roosevelt has made more than passing mention of it.

Both parties declared in their platform for reduction of the cost of the federal government, the Democrats being more specific with a pledge to scale down the aggregate expenditures to the extent of 25 per cent. Inasmuch as the expenditures for the fiscal year 1931 aggregated more than four billion dollars and those for 1932 touched five billion dollars, the Democrats propose to reduce the annual outlay of the federal government not less than one billion dollars.

Questionnaire on Budget Cuts.

The Enquirer questionnaire follows:

"1. If elected, will you vote for immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus?

"2. Will you favor investigation of the one billion dollar veterans' expenditures with a view to cutting off benefits of nonservice disability?

"3. Would you vote for a general pension for world war veterans and their dependents?

"4. Will you vote to reduce by at least half next year the $11,500,000 which it costs the government to carry franked letters and documents through the mails?

"5. Do you favor a substantial reduction in appropriations for expenses and luxuries for congress? This item has jumped from $14,500,000 in 1924 to $29,530,000 in 1931—doubled in seven years.

"6. Last year the government printed 200,000 pamphlets, informative and propaganda, of which 72 million copies were printed. Will you urge and vote for a drastic reduction of this flood of government reports, millions of which are stored or burned, at additional cost to the government?

Cost Jumps to $52,000,000.

"7. Will you favor a reduction in appropriations for the city of Washington which jumped from 26 million dollars to 52 million dollars in seven years?

"8. Capable business executives believe that one-fourth of the officials and clerks in the federal service could be released without detriment to the public interest. Will you vote for cuts and consolidations proposed to eliminate bureaus and reduce bureau personnel?

"9. If elected will you favor retrenchment in the department of commerce, which is spending 61 million dollars a year now, as against 22 million dollars seven years ago?

"10. Appropriations for the department of agriculture increased from 110 million dollars to 220 million dollars in the last seven years outside the farm board. Do you think this amount could be drastically reduced without serious harm to the farmers?

50-50 Federal-State Road Fund.

"11. Do you favor elimination of the 50-50 federal state aid policy, under which the states raise 275 million dollars to match a similar federal fund for roads?

"12. Do you believe that the shipping board should be abolished?

"14. In view of the fact that the national income has decreased at least 30 per cent, would you favor a 25 per cent reduction in federal taxes, following present emergency taxation—the reduction to be made, 10 per cent in 1934 and 5 per cent annually for the next three years?"

Declines to Answer Questions.

In the Enquirer issue today Representative Arthur P. Lamneck, Democrat, answered most of the questions in the affirmative, although to the first one he replied that "my action with respect to cash payment of the bonus will be determined by the policy of the Democratic party." He voted for the bonus payment at the last session. His opponent, former Congressman John C. Speaks, Republican, declined to answer any of the questions.

Hopper on Program

In the chef's costume, Mr. Hopper, in company with Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, who also will appear on the cooking school entertainment program, and Miss Mary Meade, cooking editor of THE TRIBUNE, visited the kitchen of the Knickerbocker hotel, where Mr. Hopper is staying, and there Elson "broadcast" some fancy carving done by the stage star.

During the June Baker Household period on W-G-N this week, pre-radio talks about the second CHICAGO TRIBUNE Cookery school are being given by home economic experts. This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Miss Kathleen Keen, representing Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, who will conduct the school, will extend a welcome to the women of Chicago to attend the 12 sessions which will be held at the Trianon, Guyon's Paradise and Aragon ballrooms. The dates and places of the schools are as follows:

Oct. 25 to 28—Trianon ballroom.
Nov. 1 to 4—Guyon's Paradise ballroom.
Nov. 8 to 12—Aragon ballroom.

Other speakers on the June Baker period will be Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, from the Procter & Gamble company, who will speak tomorrow afternoon, and Miss Nellie Snavely, from R. Cooper Jr., Inc., Friday afternoon, who will talk on "Kitchen Emancipation."

Bridge Builder Sued for $50,000 on Shooting Charge

The praecipe of a suit for $50,000 was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by James Spelina Jr., 22 years old, of Stickney, against Ernest Sporry, 45 years old, superintendent of a construction concern which is building a bridge over the Des Plaines river in Lyons. Joseph Lustfield, attorney for Spelina, said that Sporry shot and wounded the youth on Sept. 10 while Spelina was fishing in the river near the bridge.

Britain Invites Germany to Rejoin Disarm Conference

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Another invitation to Germany to attend the Geneva disarmament conference, which she quit recently because of the refusal of the former allies to recognize the principle of arms equality, was held out by Prime Minister MacDonald today in a speech at a luncheon given in his honor by the national labor committee.

"I profoundly regret," the premier declared, "that Germany, while declaring its readiness to attend such a conference, refuses to go to Geneva for reasons the substance of which are difficult for me to detect.

"I hope her latest word is not her last. The government is continuing to pursue its purpose, with hopes to make a further announcement in a few days."

Britain Favors Claim.

The premier continued that Germany knew perfectly well that Great Britain does not oppose her claim to be regarded as an equal at the disarmament conference.

"She knows also that we are very anxious to bring her and her neighbors into relations of greater confidence," he declared. "Everything points to the necessity of securing a general agreement on the German case and therefore we must know the whole of it. In preparation for that agreement, Germany ought to see that she has to be present and exchange views with us all."

In conclusion the premier said that he was not sure whether he had played the part of peacemaker a little too long, but that he would rather be blamed for that than for precipitating a situation which would make an agreement impossible.

"The keynote of our policy is not rearmament but disarmament," he said.

Berlin Rejects Invitation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The British charge d'affaires today called on the German foreign minister and reiterated Britain's invitation to Germany to participate in a four power conference on Germany's claim to arm equality at Geneva.

Baron Konstantin von Neurath again turned down the invitation. He explained that he objected to holding the meeting in Geneva because of the unfavorable atmosphere there, but declared Germany is willing to negotiate on some other town for the conference.

Wilhelmstrasse stressed that it believes the conference will take place soon, despite the initial difficulties.

LEG IRON KEYS FAIL TO EQUAL SHERIFF'S PACE

Everett, Wash., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Sheriff Walter E. Faulkner was taking no chances when he left Chicago with Julian B. Ferguson, Gerald Webber and Theodore R. Olson, escaped Snohomish county jail prisoners, so he mailed the keys to "Oregon boots" the men wore, to himself here.

Faulkner arrived today with his prisoners, but the keys didn't, so Webber and Ferguson will wear the heavy irons until they do. The boot worn by Olson was unlocked by a spare key found in the sheriff's office, but the key would not open the others.

The three escaped from jail here Sept. 23, after beating two jailers, and were arrested in Chicago about two weeks ago.

UNION IS ASKED TO SHARE A CUT IN MILK COSTS

Dealers and Drivers Talk of Price Reduction.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Further conferences seeking to find means of reducing the cost of distributing milk in the Chicago area were held yesterday. It was learned that four dairies now are getting milk at sufficiently low prices from unorganized farmers to enable them to sell at retail below the 11 cents a quart price maintained by the organized dairy companies.

In the morning a three hour closed conference was held at the Hotel La Salle by officials of the milk companies and the milk wagon drivers' union, local 753. In this meeting, it was learned last night, the union spokesmen were asked to share with the dealers a reduction in costs sufficient to justify a lower retail price.

No Conclusions Reached.

"The meeting was devoted entirely to discussing the general market situation," declared Dr. F. D. Walmsley, president of the Borden Farm Products company, spokesman for the dealers.

Robert Fitchie, president of the wagon drivers' union, also declared that no conclusions had been reached when the meeting adjourned. He pointed out that the drivers had voted only last week to permit $2 a week to be taken from their wages to create a fund for the union's unemployed drivers.

It was learned yesterday that several hundred Illinois and Wisconsin farmers now have applications filed with the Chicago board of health asking inspection of their farms so that they may receive permits to ship milk to the city.

Few Permits Since June 1.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, declared that no farmers had been issued permits since June 1, except in those cases where inspections had already been made and farmers had made investments to meet health regulations.

Shutting off all additional milk from Chicago, regardless of its quality, has been done to prevent glutting of an already well supplied market, Dr. Bundesen said. He further explained that Chicago's milk was of superior quality and that he expected farmers to be paid enough to maintain that quality.

"But if I find that any attempt is being made to overcharge the consumers," Dr. Bundesen said, "we can soon bring in more milk. I am making no statement as to how soon the present ban on new milk will be lifted. At present, with our curtailed inspection force, we are busy reinspecting the 25,000 farms now supplying Chicago."

During the day investigators were seeking to identify the gunmen who early on Sunday kidnaped the driver of a milk truck owned by the Crescent Dairy company, 515 North Crawford avenue, and dumped four tons of milk bound for Chicago. The gunmen sent the truck over a retaining wall of the new grade separation under construction at Lake street and North avenue, near Elmhurst, spilling the milk in all directions. The truck driver, Stanley Zientarski, was released near Bellwood.

Edwin D. Buell, receiver for the Crescent dairy, and his attorney, Archie Schimberg, declared they would report the result of their investigation of the milk dumping to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who appointed the receiver for the company.

The same truck made its collection trip yesterday followed by an automobile filled with armed guards, Police Chief Walter Pflaume of Elmhurst said. Fifteen McHenry county farmers who sell their milk to the company visited Assistant State's Attorney Russell Keaney of Du Page county yesterday at Wheaton, and received his promise that the incident would be investigated.

HUNGRY PUPILS' FACES TELL THE STORY OF WANT

Two More Schools Show Need of Lunch Fund.

Miss Nellie M. Quinn, principal of Hans Christian Andersen school, 1155 North Lincoln street, didn't need to bring forth statistics yesterday to prove why 160 children in her school should be fed by the Hungry School Children's fund. The children themselves were evidence enough.

Sitting in the principal's office during the early afternoon, the fund's reporter observed the coming and going of boys and girls sent there on classroom errands. Most of them were thin and inadequately clothed, and their faces bore the marks of undernourishment. There seemed little spontaneity among them. Their teachers said the reason for this was lack of food.

"That 10 year old girl who just came in—the spindly-legged one with the blue dress—is in need of hot lunches at school," said Miss Quinn. "You might not believe it, but she had never been to school in her life until last week. We found her and two other little girls down on Milwaukee avenue last week. None of them had ever been to school and they were much neglected. We put them in the special division room. They are now learning rapidly and enjoying their school life."

Two Pupils Are Gypsies.

Another child who entered the office was a dark eyed girl of 8. She wore a new dress three sizes to large for her. Shortly afterward her 13 year old sister appeared, also in a new dress.

"Those children are gypsies," Miss Quinn said. "They live near here. The little one watched the children playing in the schoolyard and came over and asked if she might come to school. That was the first we knew about them. The first day they came in the rags of their gypsy costumes. Now we are giving them clothes. They, too, will need nourishing hot lunches."

Miss Quinn said that she had visited 100 homes in the school's neighborhood, investigating the needy families not being cared for by relief agencies. She found that the children do not have adequate food at home.

"We wanted to start feeding 160 of the most desperate cases at the beginning of school, but we had no money," Miss Quinn said. Now we are pinning our hope on the Hungry School Children's fund."

At the Washington School.

Not many blocks away William H. W. Wasson, principal of the Washington school, watched his flock file out of their rooms at the noon hour and remarked:

"There is no hot noonday lunch to be had free at this school for these hungry pupils. I don't know what they'll do when cold weather comes. Last year we fed them with the aid of teachers. We have no money for free lunches this year."

Just before dismissal the fund's reporter stepped into a second grade room with the principal.

"How many of you had milk for breakfast this morning?" Mr. Wasson asked the pupils. Only eight of the thirty children raised their hands.

"How many had an egg for breakfast?" Four hands went up.

A Mother Sends $25.

Among the gifts received by the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday was one of $25 sent by a mother in honor of the second birthday anniversary of her son "Gordon." Other contributions brought the day's total to $161.45 and the grand total to $3,065.12. The contributions:

U. S. OFFICIALS LEARN JAPAN HAS INCREASED BUDGET FOR ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The department of commerce was informed today that Japan is contemplating a larger expenditure for military activities in the coming year than in any year in her peace-time history.

In a radiogram to the department, Commercial Attaché H. A. Butts, at Tokio, stated that about one-half of the two billion yen budget for this year is to be devoted to the army and navy. Calculated on the par value of the yen, such an expenditure would approximate half a billion dollars, although on the basis of the yen's present value of 23½ cents, it represents an outlay of 235 millions for the military.

"For the current year, the Japanese budget amounted to 1,943,000,000 yen, of which 680 million yen went for military activities and was largely expended in the Japanese campaign in Manchuria. In the previous year, 400 million yen was allotted for military purposes out of a total budget of 1,439,000,000 yen.

Mr. Butts' statement on the Japanese budget, as given out by the department, was as follows:

"The Japanese budget, which is expected to exceed 2 billion yen, will, according to reports in Tokio, provide about one billion yen for the army and navy."

U. S. MISSIONARY SLAIN IN CHINESE RAID ON JAPANESE

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 17.—(AP)—An American believed to have been a Catholic missionary was killed today near Mulantien, east of here, by a band of fifty Chinese, who attacked a detachment of five Japanese soldiers escorting refugees to safety.

The American was not immediately identified. He was riding on a horse which carried the American flag.

Two Koreans and two Manchurians made up the rest of the refugee party, who were on their way from Hsinpin, 70 miles east of Mukden, to the railway station at Nantsamu. The American was killed at the first burst of fire from the attackers. The survivors returned to Hsinpin, where there is a fairly strong Japanese garrison.

AIR PASSENGER TRAFFIC SHOWS 18% INCREASE

Managers of 15 Lines Are Meeting Here.

General traffic managers of the fifteen major air lines met yesterday at the Palmer house for a two day conference on traffic problems. They announced that during the first eight months of this year 336,409 passengers were carried on all air lines as compared to 286,088 for the same period last year, an increase of 18 per cent.

In the same period 5,369,575 pounds of air mail were carried as compared to 5,158,107 pounds for the same period last year, a decrease of 13 per cent. Air express carried amounted to 903,322 pounds compared to 566,582 pounds for the first eight months of last year and 190,524 pounds for the same period in 1930, an increase of 59 per cent over 1931 and 374 per cent over 1930.

Commercial Outlook.

James M. Eaton, president of the Ludington Air Lines, declared that the outlook for commercial air transportation has never been better. Representatives of other air lines said the only adverse element in their business is the decrease in the volume of air mail. They said August, usually a peak month, showed air mail volume 25 per cent less than the same month in 1930 and 34 per cent less than in 1931.

The first convention of the Air Line Pilots' association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, opened a three day session at the Morrison hotel yesterday. The meeting was held behind closed doors. Representatives of 24 councils of pilots attended the meeting, according to the head of the organization, David L. Behncke.

Members Go On Strike.

The pilots' organization first came into prominence early this year when 21 of its members went on strike when a pay cut was ordered by the Century Air Lines, their employer. Since then the Century lines have been merged with American Airways, Inc. Mr. Behncke, a pilot for United Air Lines, refused to state the purpose of the meeting, but made this comment: "In our opinion this will be one of the outstanding events in the history of air commerce."

CABINET FALLS IN RUMANIA OVER RUSSIAN POLICY

Moscow Plans for Peace Pact Blasted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 17.—Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod's government was forced to resign today as a result of the bitter dispute between Nicholas Titulescu and the premier over Rumania's policy toward Soviet Russia.

Titulescu, who recently resigned as minister to Great Britain to take the foreign portfolio, has consistently opposed proposals for a nonaggression pact with Russia as advocated by Vaida-Voevod.

France Seeks to Save Premier.

The blasting of plans for an early conclusion of a nonaggression pact between Rumania and Russia, it is pointed out, may delay ratification of similar pacts between the Moscow government and France and Poland. Premier Edouard Herriot today sent an urgent message to Bucharest in an attempt to prevent the resignation of Vaida-Voevod. The French premier pledged his government's support of the Rumanian premier's policy for a treaty with Russia.

King Carol, faced with the embarrassing choice of throwing either Vaida-Voevod or Titulescu overboard, decided to drop the premier despite France's last minute effort to patch up the differences.

Vaida-Voevod has been offering to resign since last Friday, but the king had hoped to arrive at a compromise. It was made clear this afternoon that the attitudes of the premier and Titulescu could not be reconciled and Carol accepted the government's resignation.

Treaty Efforts Fail.

Thus, for a second time Rumania has refused to recognize the commitments made by its own authorized representatives for a nonaggression pact with Russia. Titulescu has contended that no treaty should be concluded with Russia until Moscow officially recognizes Rumania's seizure of Bessarabia.

King Carol has summoned Dr. Juliu Maniu, leader of the National Peasant party, to appear at the palace tomorrow. The peasant leader will be instructed to form a cabinet with Titulescu as foreign minister.

The return of Maniu, who was responsible for Carol's airplane coup d'etat a year and a half ago, is the king's last hope to patch up some sort of a cabinet which will win the support of parliament where Maniu's party has a huge majority.

Open Trial of Damage Suit Brought by Judge

A jury in the court of Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday began hearing evidence in the $30,000 damage suit brought in behalf of Miss Evelyn C. McIntyre, 4254 Hazel avenue, by her father, Municipal Judge George C. McIntyre, against Thomas V. Cannon, 628 Sheridan road. Miss McIntyre, who now is a freshman at Lake Forest college, was injured in a fall in an elevator shaft at the Sheridan road apartment building, which is owned by Cannon, on Jan. 3, 1930, while her parents were living there.

Bill Mennen

SCOWLING and growling—that's the morning routine if you haven't learned the WILTED WHISKER lesson—scowling at your mirror; growling at "those bad blades"!

Maybe you're too stubborn to try Mennen Shaving Cream. O: K: Brother! Quit reading right here—and I pass you up as a customer. But if you're broad-minded enough to buy just one tube, here's what you'll find out:

The minute Mennen lather gets busy on your whiskers they WILT! Your blade zips through them. Off they come. Clean and close. No pull. No yank. The reason is that Mennen contains specially processed tri-stearin. That's the greatest whisker-wilter known—and our special process makes it do its work even with the hornless beard.

It's a neat trick—the way Mennen does it. Try it! You'll thank me for it.

Skin Health in Every Tube

You gain two ways by shaving with Mennen. You not only get better shaves, but you also get a skin health treatment. How come? Here's the answer: the pores of your skin are dirt traps. They catch dust and grease deposits. Then skin troubles may start—pimples, blackheads, muddy skin. Mennen lather gets into the pores—deep in—and loosens the imbedded deposits. Then, when you rinse off the lather, you leave your face clean, fresh, healthy.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE STRIPED TIGER

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal artist, Paul Bransom... inspired by the savage ferocity of the striped tiger, known throughout the world as the terror of the jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

ATTACK VALUES ASSESSOR PUTS ON PERSONALTY

39 Complaints Heard by Tax Appeals Board.

Residents of half a dozen country towns yesterday attacked estimated valuations of personal property made for the 1931 tax rolls by local assessors who never viewed the personalty. The attacks came during the second hearing of complaints against the valuations held by Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, the members of the board of tax appeals.

During the day 39 property owners appeared before the board. Thirteen of them won reductions in valuation. Five others were granted continuances on the ground that their homes never had been visited by a deputy assessor. In the other cases heard by the board 17 valuations were confirmed and four were canceled. Out of assessed valuations totaling $83,361, as fixed by the assessor, only $9,895 in valuations were left on the books. The board ordered new appraisals of property assessed at $64,270.

Cancellations Total $1,479.

All of the cancellations of yesterday, involving property totaling $1,479 of assessed value, were made at the recommendation of H. Gordon Bollman, head of the personal property division of the assessor's office, who represented J. L. Jacobs at the hearing. The confirmations were ordered when taxpayers could produce no evidence to refute assessed valuations.

All the reductions occurred when taxpayers produced their sworn complaints, listing their property as they listed it in their original schedules, and compared the figures with arbitrary increases in value made by the assessor. Bollman could produce no evidence to support these increases.

Among the cases held under advisement by the board was that of Homer J. Buckley, 915 Bonnie Brae avenue, River Forest, head of the Buckley-Dement Advertising company. He protested an increase to $5,550 assessed valuation of belongings which he had scheduled at $1,028 full value.

When he appeared before the two board members he handed them a typewritten statement that he believed his assessment was grossly excessive as compared with those of his neighbors. He listed nine of these neighbors, all living within a block of his home, and their assessments, which ranged from a maximum of $2,248 to $925.

Willing to File Complaints.

"Most assuredly I am," said Buckley.

He then said that his original schedule had listed all his property and demanded to know the reason for his increased assessment. He said his home was a seven room house valued at $22,000. He said all the furniture in the house was valued at not more than $500 and enumerated an automobile, a radio, and other items to complete his own valuation.

"Have you no stocks, bonds, or securities, or any bank account?" asked Brummel.

"No, I have not," said Buckley. The board asked Bollman to explain the increase. He said it was based on general information and agreed to make a new assessment of Buckley's home.

As Buckley left the room the board members called him back and asked him to sign the complaints against his neighbors.

"Why, I'll sign no complaints against these people," Buckley replied. "I believe their assessments are right and mine is wrong. I want to be assessed on the basis they are."

Oak Parker Makes Protest.

Sampson Rogers, 735 North East avenue, Oak Park, protested an assessed valuation of $50,000 placed against his schedule, which had listed his holdings at $1,757 full value. He said that his home was worth $15,000, denied having a bank account or any securities, and said that neither he nor his wife possessed any jewelry on April 1, 1931, the day fixed by statute for the assessment. Bollman said that his records showed no reason for the increase in valuation and the board ordered a new appraisal.

An attorney, R. D. Thomason, appeared for Delbert Clithero, 370 North Scoville avenue, Oak Park, former president of the defunct Garfield State bank. Thomason said he wished to protest an increase to $3,700 of his client's $500 schedule.

"This is a poor precedent to start," said Brummel. "I believe we should have the complainant before us. If we begin this we will be besieged by lawyers who are trying to reduce their clients' taxes. We will not hear your objection."

At the conclusion of the hearing the board members announced that they would hold a meeting with Assessor Jacobs and County Attorney Hayden Bell to determine a policy in reference to the acceptance of the assessor's estimated valuations.

Stomach Sufferer, 60 Yrs. Old, Relieved

"I used ACIDINE as directed and found it to do all you claim for it," says M. A. Funk of Riverton, N. J. "I am 60 years of age and had been bothered with acid, fermentation and gas in stomach. I had tried everything without results. ACIDINE gave me relief at once."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

ROBBERY VICTIM

(TRIBUNE Photo.)

Three gunmen threatened 50 patrons of the Triangle restaurant, 57 West Randolph street, with revolvers yesterday morning and escaped with $138 taken from the cash register. While one man covered the diners, the other two forced the cashier, Miss Alice Alamsah, to hand over the money. They fled in a dark blue sedan in which a fourth man waited at the curb. Six detective bureau squads assigned to guard against window breaking burglars were touring the loop at the time of the robbery.

3 GUNMEN HOLD UP DEPARTMENT STORE ON 22D ST.

Three armed bandits escaped yesterday with $2,200 and $800 in checks from the New Grand Leader company department store, 2740 West 22d street, after threatening 60 men and women with their revolvers. One of the gunmen forced Miss Bernice Wiecyc, 25 years old, a stenographer, to open the cashier's cage, and Miss Wanda Pylutki, 23 years old, the cashier, was forced to open the safe and hand over the money. Warning the clerks and customers to make no outcry, the bandits backed down the stairs, and fled to an automobile in which a fourth man waited. Joseph C. Vleek, president of the store, was downstairs during the robbers' visit and was unaware of the holdup.

CHURCH REVOLT PLOT BARED BY MEXICAN POLICE

Guns and Bombs Seized in Raid on House.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17. — (AP) — Police authorities announced today they had frustrated plans for a widespread religious rebellion in the state of Jalisco by raiding a house at Guadalajara.

The police seized the house after a battle lasting an hour in which two of the alleged plotters were killed. Several others escaped.

The authorities said they found a large quantity of rifles, pistols, ammunition, dynamite bombs, field equipment, a printing press and considerable printed matter urging the rebellion.

Church Admonishes Communicants.

One of the men killed was Juan Rincon Fregoso who, the police said, participated in the bloody religious rebellions in Jalisco from 1926 to 1929. His papers, the authorities asserted, revealed that he was to be a general in a new movement.

Catholic church officials admonished their communicants not to participate in any uprising.

A pastoral letter by Archbishop Pascual Diaz, denouncing any attempt at armed resistance by Catholics, was read in all churches yesterday. All loyal Catholics were cautioned by the archbishop to obey the laws of Mexico and to avoid any movement that might be construed as resistance. The pope, the archbishop pointed out, would not approve any departure from peace.

Urged to Obey Laws.

In Catholic circles it was reported that all bishops had been instructed by the pontiff to publish pastoral letters in their dioceses charging the clergy and laymen to obey all civil laws.

From Guadalajara came reports that the people were indignant at news that the state legislature planned to pass a law limiting to eight the number of priests who may function in Guadalajara, the second largest city in the country, and to fifty the number for the rest of the state.

Fear Many Hondurans Killed in 5 Day Storm

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 17. —(AP)—As communications with the interior are slowly reestablished it is developing that the storm which lashed Honduras for five days last week caused heavy damage. The city of Choluteca suffered heavily. It is feared that many persons were killed in the interior districts from which no details have come.

"WHEN I first noticed my hair getting a little thin, I consulted a Thomas' scalp specialist. He determined the exact cause of my falling hair and administered The Thomas' treatment to correct this condition. My hair soon stopped falling and new hair started to grow on the thin spots. Thomas' treatment is scientifically sound and positively produces results," Dr. O'Connell says.

More than a quarter-million persons have been successfully treated in Thomas' offices for dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, baldness, and other scalp troubles. Thomas' 16-year proved treatment can benefit you just as it has benefited thousands of others. Come in today. Let it awaken your sluggish scalp and invigorate those dormant sources of hair growth. Thomas' will not accept you for treatment unless results seem very probable. It's poor economy to try to get along without the new BRITANNICA

It's poor economy to try to get along without sufficient food, rest, sunshine, knowledge—indeed, without any and every advantage you can enjoy.

All men and women of any experience know that it's poor economy to ignore these facts.

But Britannica owners and users know something else, besides—that it's poor economy, also, to try to get along without the Britannica.

The Britannica Can Be Your Education

The new Britannica is an education for the man and woman who have not been able to go to high school or college, and who need to keep pace with what is going on about them; for the child who goes to school and needs authoritative information at hand to help with his lessons; for the graduate of college who is actively concerned over the necessity of keeping informed.

It is not only the moderately educated people who own and use the Britannica to good advantage. The better your education the more you realize the necessity of keeping it refreshed and renewed. Forgotten facts or useful information are at your finger tips in the Britannica. Education is not static: you go ahead or you lag behind.

The new Britannica is a safe guide for the mother and the father in the home in the practical affairs of good housekeeping. The Britannica holds the essential elements of all business knowledge and brings to the business man, the financier, the manufacturer sound information on his business and other subjects pertinent to his success.

It's poor economy to do without such advantages. It is shrewd economy to make sure of them by owning the Britannica.

Buy Now and Save Money

Now as never before is the time to buy the Britannica. Considering its completeness, authority and beauty, it is the least expensive encyclopaedia available. It costs less to buy today than a good radio.

Besides, we are in the midst of great political and economic changes. We do not know how long it will be possible to sell the Britannica at the present low figure. The latest Fourteenth Edition is today an investment of extraordinary advantage for yourself and for every member of your family.

$5 Down and $5 a Month

Almost everyone can afford to buy the Britannica immediately. As little as $5 down will bring the set to your home. An economical time payment plan over a short period is arranged for your convenience. The moment the Britannica is within reach it begins to work for you.

Britannica Owners Know Their Advantages

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt
"One of the first things we must have for ourselves as well as our children is some kind of general reference library, and I find that the Encyclopaedia Britannica fills this need admirably."

George C. Warner,
Glen Ellyn, Illinois
"A regular college education has been denied me, but I find its equivalent in these remarkable books."

Frank Oberst,
Forestdale, New York
"I believe this to be the most profitable investment any home could make."

L. DeKoning,
Spokane, Washington
"The Encyclopaedia Britannica is extremely instructive in every detail, and as a matter of fact, since I have the books I can not understand how I have been able to get along without them for nearly half a lifetime."

Bishop Francis J. McConnell,
Methodist Episcopal Church
"I do not see how I could get along without the Britannica. I find myself constantly consulting the latest edition. Not only that, but the style of much of the work is so attractive, that I often find that what started as an errand to look up a bit of information ends in a delightful literary journey in the company of some masters of English. I find myself more and more indebted to the work as the days go by."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE BIG SHOW AND THE MAIN TOP.

A prevailing if not a chief characteristic of American politics in this presidential year is morbidity. Disaffection, discontent and illusion have produced desires which are largely desires for a change regardless of consequences. Many thousands of people will determine their votes merely because they need or want something they haven't got. They will very little consider whether government can give it to them or should. The ultimate security of the country in the conditions which they vaguely comprehend as desirable is ignored. They believe or have been taught to believe that government should provide them with what they want, and, whether they see the way by which a change would bring this to them or not, they intend to try it.

There may be enough such people, and it seems highly probable just now that there are, to put a Democratic administration in the place of a Republican. Whatever else this will mean, it inevitably means an increase in uncertainties and a multiplication of the doubts as to future government conduct, and very likely a suspension of many enterprises waiting for a clearer view of the future. These consequences are mostly psychological, but we know that in American politics they take very tangible form. Every change of government involves such a mental attitude on the part of the citizens, and this change, if it comes, is one to be made in times already extraordinarily clouded with doubts.

Such unquestionably are the conditions under the main top. The show under the big canvas is the interesting one and it is the one which fills the eye. But the actual contest is found in the congressional districts. A change of national administration with another President taking office in March may affect the minds and moods of the people, but the following year, so far as government practically is concerned, will be made or marred by the type of congressman who sits on Capitol hill. In the short session of congress which begins in December, in which the elections will not be represented, some things may be done, but it is probable that the big issues will arise in the new congress. There are three principal ones which begin and probably will end in the congressional disposition of them. One is the reduction of government expenditures. No President can resist a congress determined either to continue the federal bureaucracy and its costs or to trim it down to the taxpaying ability of the people. Congress will do or not do the things required for the stability of the American republic. Congress will determine what shall be done with national prohibition. A President cannot force a congress controlled by Bishop Cannon to restore America to a sane way of living and a replenished treasury. It is conceivable he might prevent it with a veto, but we are fairly certain that congress will have its way. There is then the question of the bonus. If congress does as it has done in the past, it will take this frightful chance with the credit and currency system of the country and pass a payment bill. If the vigorous campaign against such fallacy has had the desired effects in the congressional districts, the members taking their seats again will have a change of opinion and mood. What Mr. Roosevelt would do with such a bill we don't know, because he has refused to say. Mr. Hoover will veto it. There are, of course, infinite possibilities in other directions to which a sensitive congress could expose the nation, but action upon these three questions—government costs, prohibition, and the bonus—will chart the congressional program pretty completely. The upshot of the matter is, for the thoughtful voters, that a responsible congress must be elected if the nation is to be protected in a future which frequently seems none too good.

THE COLLECTIONS TELL THE STORY.

At last reports the county treasurer had collected about 55 per cent of the taxes billed to Cook county property owners early this year.

It is instructive to compare this figure with the federal income tax returns. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, the United States government collected a total of $1,860,000,000 in income taxes. In the year ended last June the government collected only $1,057,000,000, a reduction of $803,000,000, or about 45 per cent. Last December the secretary of the treasury forecast income tax collections for the year ending next June at $1,100,000,000, to which he later added $178,000,000 which he estimated would be raised by the higher rates in the new law.

As certainly as Mr. McDonough has been able to collect only a little more than half of the money demanded of the property owners of Cook county, so certainly will the estimates of the treasury prove to be fanciful. The money isn't there. Both federal and local taxes are paid from the same incomes, and if the incomes have been erased the taxpaying power has been rubbed out at the same time. The increase in the rates has not kept pace with the decline in incomes.

When the federal government has destroyed enterprise with its heavy taxation it has also destroyed the taxes which flow from incomes. Precisely the same thing is true of local taxation. The increase in the rates on real estate has reduced the return derived from real estate and to that extent reduced the power of the owners of the property to pay their taxes. In this county the process has gone so far that the county cannot even sell real estate on which the taxes are in default because no one wants to own property against which so heavy an annual charge exists.

THE OLDEST GOVERNMENT IN THE YOUNGEST NATION.

John W. Davis, speaking at the corner stone ceremonies of the new Supreme court building in Washington, rather understated than overstated the case when he reminded his hearers that this, the youngest among nations, possesses one of the oldest among governments. It, in fact, is the oldest major government in the world. The American planned society was laid upon foundations driven so deep in human experience and need that it has preserved the only great government unchanged in any revolutionary sense within the period of its existence. If you will look about you will find new evidence and cause for admiring the completeness of the work. The American plan has stood the test.

Within this period, which began when an English king was trying to work his way back to an exercise of the constitutional prerogatives at least of William III., Great Britain has presented a shift of front. A hundred years ago it was shaken by a revolution, happily not bloody, which destroyed the caste electorate. More than forty years after manhood suffrage was the rule in the United States the English won something like it. It wasn't complete, but subsequent extensions brought the Englishman to the privileges of the American. Wellington, when he contemplated it in 1832, exclaimed that England was done for. Within the period of the American republic the English king has been deprived of all pretense to his former rights to rule, the house of lords has been reduced to senility, and the Church of England now gets its ritualistic guidance from nonconformists. The changes have not seemed to be more than might be expected in the natural evolution of a government, but England today bears little resemblance in government methods to the England of 1780. If we had abolished the authority of the President and of the senate we'd have a new form.

Elsewhere among the governments existing at the time the American planned society made its bow to the world the changes are more striking. France, then an autocratic monarchy, has had almost every change known to man in the way of control. Spain has thrown out both king and church. Italy has unified itself and has gone from a parliamentary to a syndicalist state, with the king in the shadows of a dictator. Germany has thrown out its royal house and is a republic staggering between communism and monarchy. Austria has virtually disappeared and Russia has destroyed one autocracy to take another, has exterminated private property, ruined its middle class, and is starving its peasantry. With these changes going on all about, slowly evolutionary as in the case of Great Britain or violently destructive as in the case of Russia, the planned society of the United States has survived and its government is the only government which in its essence is now what it was planned to be. That is something which can be said for the chaos which the liberal mind finds in the so-called American scene.

Editorial of the Day

THE BOBCAT RACKET.

[New York Sun.]

Vermont seems to be infertile ground for rackets. So much indignation has been aroused in the state over recent revelations concerning the fraudulent collection of bounty on bobcat pelts that at the next session of the legislature the bounty law may be repealed. At present the state pays $10 to every citizen who presents the skin of a bobcat at the office of the town clerk of his own town and makes under oath the declaration required by law. The bounty act has been popular, for almost every Vermonter is an occasional hunter; his favorite game is the ruffed grouse, known all through the north country as the partridge. Bobcats slaughter partridges in great numbers.

A vulnerable feature of the law is that after a man has killed a bobcat and has collected his bounty he is permitted to take the pelt away with him. The town clerk punches holes in the bobcat's ears, but the art of mending these punctures has been developed to a high degree. Even in cases where the ears have been cut off new ears have been known to appear. The fact that the racketeers have been able to deceive sharp-eyed Vermont town clerks, many of whom probably were hunters themselves, is sufficient proof of their skill.

A man suspected of practicing these tricks was captured recently and the hand of the law descended heavily on him. Although a resident of Plymouth, he was accused of having collected $20 on two bobcat pelts from the town clerk of Londonderry, a woman, after swearing that he was a resident of Londonderry. He was indicted for perjury and convicted by a jury in the Windham County court at Newfane. Judge John S. Butties sentenced him to serve not less than two and a half nor more than four years at hard labor in the state prison and to pay a fine of $100. He appealed and was released on $2,500 bail.

The severity of this sentence is an index of the feeling in Vermont against the bobcat racket and against frauds and rackets in general. It is a healthful feeling, even though to outsiders it may seem to concern itself in this case with a matter of minor importance. If it were more widespread there would be no Capone problems. Vermont would have had Scarface Al behind the bars before he acquired his first silk shirt.

DEPARTURE.

I shall go softly—you will never guess
That I have gone beyond your last caress.
To help you find my half-remembered face.
And though you search all trails there'll be no track
To act as guide if you should call me back.

I shall go softly—with my head held high
Though I shall find few stars in any sky . . .
Though I shall know a loneliness so deep
It will not pass in waking or in sleep.
And you may wonder, missing me some day,
Just why it is that I have gone away.

But when you walk a river street some night,
Where we have walked; and when moon-tortured light
Makes gardens bright, or when a verse or two
Comes drifting back from some old hour we knew,
I think you'll know that I had never gone

RANK, RANKER, RANKEST!

My Dear Colonel: I saw in the papers of your recent elevation to the rank of aide-de-camp on the staff of Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky with the rank and grade of Colonel. I wish to call your attention, Colonel, to the fact that I was appointed Colonel by Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma over a year ago, so that I rank you. Yet the other evening, Colonel, as both our cars halted for the red light you failed to salute me. I do not wish this to happen again. Raising your hand to your cap, Colonel, would be of no avail as you do not wear a cap and besides I wouldn't know but what you were brushing away a fly or giving the high sign to some friend. I would suggest, Colonel, that in the future as your car passes mine you give three respectful toots on the horn in recognition of my seniority in rank. Most sincerely.

AN OKLAHOMA COLONEL.

But listen, Colonel, our horn won't give three respectful toots for anybody; the best it can do is a horrible howl such as would be made by a lost soul with its left hind leg caught in a trap. And besides, Colonel, we challenge your seniority. Kentucky invented colonels and has seniority over all the other states in that respect. Therefore, Colonel, our Kentucky title ranks your Oklahoma colonelcy to hellengone. And you, Colonel, must in the future get out of your car and stand at attention when your car passes us or we'll have you yanked up in front of a firing squad. Return to your quarters, Colonel, and in the future, Colonel, salute your superior officer. And make it snappy!

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW says that every nation should exterminate patriots. He says that patriotism is a pernicious psychopathic form of idiocy and is the only force that leads to war without reason. We beg our one hundred per cent Americans to remain as calm as possible under the circumstances while we explain our thoughts on the subject. George Bernard's statement sounds a good deal like an advertisement. Is it not possible that seeing the enormous sale of cockroach exterminators, mosquito exterminators, and boll weevil exterminators that he has invented some kind of patent patriot exterminator? George takes 'em a bit too seriously. Professional patriots, when they get going good, waving the flag and jumping up and down and whooping things up generally, are really quite amusing and add a lot to the general gayety of mankind. It might be well sometimes not to feed them too much raw meat nor let them run off the leash, but we would never think of joining Mr. Shaw in his campaign to exterminate them.

G. A. R. EXPECTANCY.

IN reporting the 1932 reunion of the G. A. R. the newspapers said that 13,000 veterans of the civil war are living and their average age is eighty-nine years. Three thousand died in the year 1931-'32. There were one thousand in round numbers in attendance on this meeting. The commander was quoted as saying the organization would meet in 1933, and the yearly meetings would continue as long as there remained two or more members strong enough to travel and to be away from home for a week.

Glover's tables are based on the census of 1910, and they are drawn from the reports of the original registration states. Therefore, they do not apply as to their fractions to this case, but they are sufficiently applicable to suit our needs. From these tables we learn that the death rate among men eighty-nine years old is 240.61 per thousand.

That means that during the next twelve months approximately thirty-two hundred of the present survivors will die, leaving less than ten thousand. A large part of these ten thousand will be confined to the house. The average expectation of life of the members of the group is 3.17 years.

This does not mean that the entire corps will be wiped out by 1936. On the other hand, in that year the number living, according to the tables, will be between five and six thousand, and they will have an average life expectancy of a little more than two and a half years. If one-thirteenth of the living were able to attend a meeting held in a central place in 1932, one-thirtieth of those surviving in 1936 should be able to get to an attractive, convenient meeting place. That would mean a meeting attended by about two hundred veterans of the civil war, the meeting being held seventy-one years after the termination of the strife.

If the commander proves to be right in his prediction that annual meetings will be held so long as there live two members, one of whom is capable of traveling, this last meeting should be held somewhere about 1943. According to the Glover tables, there should be two surviving veterans in 1952. The reason for setting the date forward about four years is because probably neither of the two survivors will be able to travel in the last few years of the period.

MUCUS COLITIS.

J. E. writes: 1. What causes mucus colitis?

2. Can it be remedied?

3. My sister suffers a great deal with gas and bloating. In fact, it is misery for her to eat, although her appetite is good. Sometimes she belches gas for hours and, while these symptoms are not always accompanied by nausea, when they are the vomit is foamy and of a greenish-yellow color. She is a very nervous person and I used to think that it was because of this trouble, but now, it seems to me, it is too severe and chronic to not come from a cause other than nerves. We tried a milk diet and it made her worse. My mother insists that her symptoms indicate gall stones. Could this be the cause? She is active and busy and does not "enjoy poor health."

REPLY.

1. Maybe your guess is as good as the next one. Among the causes offered are spastic colon, chronic constipation, the cathartic habit, nervous instability.

2. Many cases are cured. Time is required.

3. Among the more frequent causes are nervousness, gall stones, and infected gall bladder. "Belching gas for hours" means that she swallows air and then belches it. Nervousness is one cause of that. However, generally there is another cause operating at the same time. Gall stones may be the other cause.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES.

M. S. O. writes: Perhaps you can help me by telling me what causes me to have dizzy spells. I have been sitting talking with friends when all of a sudden I would feel faint and gradually everything would go black in front of me. I get so weak I have to lie down wherever I happen to be. Even though I am so weak and helpless I am vaguely conscious of every one around me. Cold sweat stands out all over my face. I turn very white, and dark circles appear under my eyes.

REPLY.

Of course you are mixed in your terms. You mean "fainting" spells. Dizzy spells is a different proposition.

The spells you have are due to a sudden drop in your blood pressure. The pressure falls to a little below 100—not quite to the fainting level.

There are many causes of this. Have your physician find which is your cause. Among them are hysteria, nervousness, epilepsy, constipation, chlorosis, and anemia.

HAVE GROWTH EXAMINED.

M. L. H. writes: Do you consider serious a growth upon the back of a bunch the size of a walnut? I have been told that a woman of 58 need not fear such swellings. There is no pain whatever connected with it. It is located to the right of the spine above the waistline. It is soft and puffy. In three years it has grown somewhat, so that it is slightly noticeable through the clothing. It does not hinder a very active household life and health as good as ever.

REPLY.

The fact that you are 58 does not rule out cancer. Some hold that there is a decline in the relative prevalence of cancer after age 75, but this is disputed. At best, the decline in relative prevalence is not great. Have this growth examined. It is probably not cancer and the examination will quiet your mind.

CONSTIPATION.

A. F. writes: Will you please print a list of foods which I may eat in order to correct constipation?

REPLY.

Eat plenty of vegetables, fruit, sour milk, and fats. Wheat bran is a good addition to the diet. Drink an abundance of water. Regularity is even more important than diet

POLICE EXAMINATIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—Could you give me the following information about becoming a patrolman on the Chicago police department? When is the next examination to be held? What are the physical requirements? What is the age limit? C. A. H.

An examination was just recently completed for patrolman, the results of which have not yet been posted, and another examination for same will not be held for some time. We have, however, placed the name of your correspondent on our mailing list for notification of same when called. At this time the rules provide that applicants at the time of examination must be between the ages of 21 and 28 years [must not have reached the 28th birthday]. The minimum height and weight required is 5 feet 9 inches, 145 pounds. Applicants for examination must also be citizens of the United States and residents of the city of Chicago for a period of at least one year immediately preceding date of examination.

SECRET ORGANIZATIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a secret organization under the laws of this state in its financial obligations to the membership? 2. If so, what course should one pursue to obtain justice. J. J. B.

1. Yes, in the sense that contracts between the organization and its members could be enforced in the courts.

2. The ordinary course for enforcing a contract is to employ an attorney.

UNPAID RENT.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A owns a two flat building and rents one flat to B on lease. B buys expensive furniture and a radio on time. B loses his job and cannot pay the rent. A gives B notice to move. B's furniture is not entirely paid for. 1. Now A intends to hold B's radio in payment of part of the rent. Can A do this? 2. If so, does A have to make final payments on the radio or is B still liable for the radio? C. R.

1. If the dealer has a validly recorded chattel mortgage or a conditional sale contract then his rights would be superior to those of the landlord.

2. Depends on what you mean by "have to" and on other facts that are not before us.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have recently been advised that after twenty years cemetery lot ownership reverts to the cemetery association. Is this true? 2. I have also been advised that the cemetery association has the right to remove the deceased after this period of time. 3. This is supposed to be a new law passed recently: the body may not be removed after twenty years, but it is optional with the cemetery. E. P.

1. Twenty years adverse possession of real estate defeats the rights of the previous title holder, but the mere lapse of time would not be enough.

2. There is no such general rule.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 18, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Chicago's voting population for the November election breaks all American records with the unprecedented total, men and women, of 808,728. This is not only the highest total in the city's history by many thousands, but places New York in second place. Gotham's high water mark of 738,000 is put in the shade by the western metropolis by nearly 71,000. The women put Chicago at the head of all American cities. Their total registration for the coming election is 304,261. The total men enrollment is 504,467.

LONDON. — A Reuter's dispatch from Athens says: "The situation here appears to be dangerous. There have been royalist demonstrations in the streets. Admiral Du Fournet, commander of the entente allied fleet in the Mediterranean, was hissed and a detachment of French sailors was driven back by a hostile crowd. A procession of some 4,000 malcontents, headed by the Greek and American flags, stopped outside the American legation, protested against the landing of foreign marines and demanded the protection of the American minister, who was absent. The demonstrators then paraded the streets, singing the Greek national anthem."

BERLIN.—The Russians have suffered a heavy defeat in Galicia, the war office announced. Repeated attacks were repulsed and trenches on a front of one and a quarter miles were taken by the Austro-German forces. Nineteen hundred prisoners and ten machine guns were captured.

PARIS.—Two German attacks east of Belloy-en-Santerre, four miles southwest of Peronne, were completely repulsed. The new group of houses captured by the French at Sailly-Saillisel last night were stormed by the Germans today and part of them retaken, but a vicious counter attack drove them out.

ROME.—Repeated attacks by the Austro-Germans on the Pasubio and Trentino fronts were repulsed by the Italians, the war office announced. "On Monte Pasubio during the night of Oct. 15 and on the following morning the enemy attempted attacks which were checked promptly," the official statement says.

PARIS.—French and German aeroplanes fought sixty-five engagements in the region of the River Somme, says the French official statement. Five German machines were brought down.

BERLIN.—Concerning aerial activities on the western front the war office says: "On the front under command of Prince Rupprecht our battle airmen shot down six enemy aeroplanes, three of them falling behind the enemy lines. Capt. Boelke again put two enemy machines out of action."

CHICAGO.—Eugene S. Pike, father of the city controller, banker, and member of numerous Chicago and suburban clubs, died in St. Luke's hospital. Mr. Pike was 81 years old and was born in Perry, Lake county, O., Oct. 5, 1835. Mr. Pike was one of the directors of the Columbian Exposition company, a trustee of the Presbyterian hospital, a trustee of the home for incurables and of the Second Presbyterian church.

KINGSVILLE, Tex.—Cheering and singing, the First Illinois cavalry left Brownsville homeward bound, after nearly four months of Mexican border service. The first section of the trains bears Col. Foreman and his staff. Maj. Robert H. McCormick commands the second section, composed of troops A, D, E and H. The third section, in which are troops I, K, B and C, is commanded by Maj. Charles A. Wais.

CRITICIZING COOLIDGE'S SPEECH.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14.—While listening to Coolidge's Tuesday night radio talk it seemed almost incredible that a former President of the United States would stoop to an attempt to incite class hatred in an effort to win an election for his party.

Four years ago we listened to the spellbinders tell us that Smith did not have the proper cultural background to become President. Now that they find that Roosevelt has what they thought was lacking in Smith we have to listen to insinuating remarks like those of Coolidge, which obviously were broadcast with the hope that they would reach the ears of the common people and influence their votes.

Franklin Roosevelt has about the same cultural and educational background as Theodore Roosevelt. Apparently Mr. Coolidge thought nothing of repudiating one of the best Presidents the Republican party has produced.

Coolidge insinuated that Roosevelt was inheriting the prestige of his family name. How about Coolidge inheriting the presidency of the United States? If President Harding had not died while in office the United States, outside of Massachusetts and Plymouth, Vt., would have known very little about Calvin Coolidge.

In Hoover's Fort Wayne speech he said he thought true sportsmanship and statesmanship called for the elimination of bitter personalities. How about it, Mr. Coolidge? GOLDEN J. RUEL.

LIGHT FROM THE FOURTH CENTURY.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—If our history teachers knew their subject, I am sure they would explain to their fellow teachers why the tax drain cannot be met. They should know that ancient Rome fell through heavy taxation. Note the following from Lactantius Firmianus' "De Mortibus Persecutorum":

"So numerous were the receivers in comparison with the payers, and so enormous the weight of taxation, that the laborer broke down, the plains became deserts, and woods grew where the plow had been. . . . It were impossible to number the officials who were rained upon every province and town. . . . The crack of the lash and cry of the tortured filled the air. The faithful slave was tortured for evidence against his master, the wife to depose against her husband, the son against his sire. . . . Not satisfied with the returns of the first enumerators, they sent a succession of others, who each swelled the valuation—as a proof of service done; and so the imposts went on increasing. Yet the number of the cattle fell off, and the people died. Nevertheless, the survivors had to pay the taxes of the dead."

REAR ADMIRAL BYRD'S PENSION.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—I see that Admiral Byrd is barnstorming the country in the interest of the National Economic league, which is headed by Gen. Pershing, Admiral Sims, and a few dignitaries of the country, to stop the pensions of the veterans of our late wars.

I understand that Admiral Byrd is retired and he himself has drawn a very nice healthy pension in the amount of $5,000 or more, and was just wondering if he is patriotic enough to tell Uncle Sam he does not care for his pension.

At the present time I have no ax to grind, although I went over the top about a dozen times with the 33d division, but due to the rugged constitution I inherited from my forbears I was able to stand the rigors of trench life, etc., and therefore am not drawing a pension. I am writing for some of my poor buddies, where effects of the war showed later on in life, and I think they ought to get something.

JAMES O'DONNELL.

LIQUOR AND MERCENARY CRIME.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—I see from first page headlines of this morning's TRIBUNE that "Lawyers Lay Crime Increase to Prohibition." Reference is made, in the body of the article, to the 1932 report of the committee on mercenary crime which was submitted yesterday at Washington, D. C., to the section of criminal law and criminology of the American Bar association.

The 1931 report of the committee on mercenary crime of which I was chairman submitted a year ago at the Atlantic City convention was neither a wet report nor a dry report, but was a general survey of the whole field of mercenary crime, including the evils of bootlegging as a proper part of the problem, but by no means as the whole of the problem of mercenary crime.

While it is true that, by virtue of the referendum vote of the members of the American Bar association taken two years ago on the wet and dry question, the association may properly be classed as a wet organization, it by no means follows that the rank and file of the membership of the American Bar association would hold that prohibition accounts for the vast majority of crimes committed for profit. It certainly does not account for the Insull affair, or for the Kreuger affair, or for any of the great number of gigantic swindles that have recently come to light.

The 1931 report of the committee on mercenary crime was approved and adopted unanimously by the section of criminal law and criminology in convention assembled last year and a resolution was adopted increasing the membership of the committee from three to fifteen persons and continuing the committee for another year. This, however, was not pleasing to the majority of the members of the executive committee of the American Bar association and, consequently, the committee was not increased in membership but it was reconstituted so as to be composed wholly of prosecuting officials.

This accounts for the radical change in point of view of the two reports. The 1932 report does lay the problem of mercenary crime at the door of prohibition; unjustly, as many of us believe. Prohibition is an easy alibi, a convenient goat upon which to lay the blame for the appalling breakdown in the matter of the enforcement of the criminal law. But no right thinking man, be he wet or dry, really believes that prohibition accounts for anything like the major part of the vast and ever growing volume of crime committed for pecuniary gain unless, of course, he is willing deliberately to close his eyes to the gigantic crimes constantly being committed in the field of finance, and certainly no right thinking man would be willing deliberately to do that.

FOR A LOCAL POSTAL RATE.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The postoffice department in Washington again reports an immense deficit. I believe this can be reduced considerably if congress would allow for cities where there is delivery by carrier a local postal rate, such as is in effect in every other commercial country of the Postal union. By that I mean a rate 50 per cent less for local letters. This is bound to stimulate business because manufacturers, wholesale and retail dealers, etc., would send offers to their local customers regularly if the local rate would be 50 per cent less. The increased use of this service will soon wipe out a large part of the deficit. There is in force a local parcel post, telephone, telegraph, express rate, etc. Why not a local rate for letters? Why ask 3 cents for a letter to be delivered in the same block or even in the same building when the postoffice only asks 2 cents for a letter sent to Alaska, California, etc. CONRAD GLOGAU.

Turns On Gas After Rival Visits Home.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Jean Phillips, 32, knew that her husband, Guy Phillips, an English actor and dramatic coach, was in love with another woman. He entertained that woman in his own home in Woodmere, L. I., last night. Today Mrs. Phillips and her two children, Norma, 6, and a son, Chubby, 9, died in that home from fumes pouring from six opened jets of the gas stove in the kitchen.

Phillips, who had two closed doors between his bedroom and the kitchen, was the only surviving member of the family.

District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county, who conducted an investigation, had a brief explanation of the tragedy.

"Mrs. Phillips turned on the gas and killed herself and her children. She wished to remove all obstacles to the happiness of her husband."

Had Threatened Suicide.

Neighbors supported that verdict by declaring that Mrs. Phillips frequently had threatened to kill herself and the children.

Phillips, who was awakened by the gas fumes, telephoned the police for aid, turned off the gas jets and then apparently collapsed, for he was found unconscious on the floor. He was taken to a hospital, where he was revived. There, he told a story of tangled domestic affairs.

Last night, he asserted, he met Mrs. Joseph J. Seltzer, wife of a traveling salesman. Seltzer's suit for $50,000 for alienation of affections against Phillips is still pending. Mrs. Seltzer, according to Phillips, dined at his home with his wife and children.

Invites Husband to Party.

After the meal, he asserted, she went to a drug store and telephoned her husband, asking him to join the party, but he refused. Later, Phillips said, he escorted Mrs. Seltzer to her home and then returned to his own home.

Phillips declared that when he reëntered the house his wife and children apparently were in bed. He said the doors between their rooms and the hall were closed.

Phillips was released under bonds of $1,500 when Seltzer brought suit against him on Sept. 10. The salesman declared that the actor had deprived him of the affections of his wife. He said Phillips and his wife had told him of their love for each other and had requested him to obtain a divorce. His refusal, according to Seltzer, was followed by an attempt on the part of Mrs. Seltzer to commit suicide.

Four Youths Arrested in Armor Plated Auto

Rogers park police yesterday discovered the latest in gangland accessories, an armor plated automobile equipped with a police radio. Four youths arrested in the machine are suspected, according to Capt. Patrick Harding, of belonging to a gang that has been preying on dress shops and smashing windows for hire. They identified themselves as Sam Larusso, 23 years old, 2102 West Erie street; Anthony Berda, 22, of 2320 West Grand avenue, both said by police to be members of the notorious "42" gang, Thomas Harschman, 22, 1101 North Central Park avenue, and Mike Cerese, 22, of 2035 West Erie street.

(Acme Photo.)

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Carole Lombard, movie actress, has been "off salary" since Friday, her studio, Paramount, said today because she has refused to play the feminine lead in a picture for which Paramount loaned her to Warner Brothers. Miss Lombard did not like the part and said she would not act it. The studio decided upon the expedient of stopping her pay and is waiting to hear from her. The picture is one starring James Cagney, himself only recently returned from the contract wars. He went back to work at Warners several days ago, after an absence of about four months.

BERTHA DELIN IS PROSECUTOR FOR WOMEN'S COURT

Mrs. Bertha Moller Delin, 648 Roscoe street, was named as prosecutor in the new Women's court yesterday. Last week she was appointed to Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton's staff and then transferred to the prosecutor's staff to complete the personnel of women attendants at the newly established branch of the Municipal court. Other women officers at this branch are Public Defender Penr. Hart and Bailiff Nellie Hickey. As Mrs. Bertha Moller she was graduated at the Northwestern University Law school in 1925 and later was one of four American women delegates to a conference on industrial legislation for women held in Berlin in 1929. She was an attorney for the sanitary district under the Crowe régime.

Charged with Two Wives, He Finds He Hasn't Any

George Sapyta, 53 years old, 9304 Ellis avenue, who was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Jay A. Schiller on a charge of having two wives, left the courtroom cheered by the judge's ruling that he was married to neither. Mrs. Bernice Sapyta made the charge. Sapyta testified that his first wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Sapyta, had had him arrested on a charge of bigamy, but that he since had obtained a divorce from her. "The bigamy conviction annuled your marriage to Bernice," Judge Schiller ruled." So if you are divorced from Elizabeth you haven't any wife.

HELD AS OAK PARK ROBBER.

Leonard Gusiafson, 27 years old, 403 East 61st street, was held yesterday by the Oak Park police charged with the $25 robbery six months ago of Arthur Malow, attendant in a filling station at 6201 West North avenue, Oak Park.

OPERA MANAGER MISSING; STATE STARTS INQUIRY

Impresario's Note Tells of Postponement.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Dudley started an investigation yesterday into the reported disappearance of Alfredo Salmaggi, impresario of the Chicago Opera company, and $400 in advance sales for the opening performance scheduled for tonight in the Studebaker theater.

A note left by Salmaggi for John Benaro, house manager of the Studebaker, announced postponement of the opening performance until after the election. Salmaggi promised in the note to return in three weeks with money enough to pay all debts.

Meanwhile the stranded opera company and ballet discussed plans for a "breadline opera" to obtain money for food and lodging. Salmaggi left behind checks for the opera company, but neglected to sign them, investigators said.

Receives Phone Calls.

The investigation started after Prosecutor Dudley had received several telephone calls that something was amiss in the opera company's affairs. The callers failed to give any details.

Policeman James Zegar, sent to the theater to investigate, reported that Salmaggi had checked out of the Auditorium hotel Sunday night. Salmaggi had left instructions with the management, Zegar said, for his mail to be turned over to his secretary, and had announced he was going to New York.

A red headed woman, who said she was Salmaggi's secretary, appeared yesterday afternoon at the Studebaker theater with the note for Benaro, Zegar learned. He also discovered that several of the cast had departed for New York.

Sends Letter to Critic.

In a letter yesterday to Edward Moore, music critic for THE TRIBUNE, Salmaggi announced that the opera opening would be postponed until after election. The letter said that "due to the presence in the city of another first class opera company, it seems wisest for me to postpone my opera opening."

Prosecutor Dudley said he had progressed as far as he could in his investigation and that the next step would be for some one to file a complaint against Salmaggi.

KRENN AND DATO NAMED IN $600,000 SUIT OVER LOAN

Edwin D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato were named defendants yesterday in a $600,000 suit for breach of contract filed in the Superior court by the Columbia Building and Loan company of Columbus, O. W. L. Ulmer, a Cleveland real estate broker, and Ernest T. Hertz, an employe of Dato, also are named.

Only the praecipe of the suit was filed, but Attorney John Hershberger, counsel for the building and loan company, said the sum named was the principal and interest due on a note for $550,000 which had been guaranteed by all four men. The money had been lent to a Cleveland concern in which the defendants were interested, for the construction of a woman's hotel, he said. The note was guaranteed in 1926, the lawyer said, but no payment on the principal had been made. The defendants also defaulted on interest payments, he asserted.

3 WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH AFTER FUNERAL

Three women were injured yesterday when the automobile in which they were returning from a funeral crashed into an Armour & Co. meat truck at Howard street and Asbury avenue, Evanston. Mrs. Lucille Grummitt, 30 years old, 7127 Ellis, suffered a fracture of the left leg; Mrs. Frank Rolston, 51 years old, 3541 South Albany avenue, and Mrs. Mae Carey, 41 years old, 2801 West 38th street, were cut and bruised.

John Carey, husband of the injured woman and driver of the automobile, was held for questioning. Arthur Burke, the truck driver, was not injured and was released by the police.

Two deaths yesterday in Cook county brought the motor toll for 1932 to 901. The victims:

Philip Anderson, 42 years old, 6012 Eberhardt avenue. Died in the Belleview hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by an automobile at 61st street and South Park avenue.

Earl Bellante, 6 years old, 8727 South Ada street. Died in the Little Company of Mary hospital. He was struck by an automobile on Oct. 15.

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Ethel Albert, 30 years old, of 1543 West 80th street, who was killed by an automobile at 82d and Justine streets Sunday, was continued to Nov. 1 for further inquiry yesterday when Anthony (Tony the Barber) Magliano, 30 years old, of 8213 South Marshfield avenue, suspected of being the driver, refused to testify. He is being held by Gresham police. Earlier Magliano denied owning or driving the death car. He said it belonged to William Bonner of 7407 South Halsted street. Bonner and Benjamin Kremin, whose name was also mentioned in the case, are being sought.

Act to Prevent Further Suits to Block Taxes

A petition will be presented to Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom at his home at Aledo tonight asking him to file information in chancery to enjoin further litigation by persons protesting their taxes, according to plans announced yesterday by the Chicago Teachers' federation. The purpose of the action will be to bring 360,000 cases pending under one ruling and end the tax strike. The delegation going to Aledo will consist of representatives of several organizations of school and city employes.

OFFICERS BLAME EACH OTHER FOR DOUBLE KILLING

But Kentucky Affray Was Due to Dry Law Raid.

Bowling Green, Ky., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Federal and state officers today blamed each other for the clash near Russellville Saturday night in which a federal prohibition investigator and a deputy sheriff were killed.

They appeared to be in agreement, however, that Frank A. Mather, 49, the prohibition investigator, and Huch Soyars, 57, a special deputy sheriff, shot each other, but the federal authorities arrested three others in the Russellville officers' group and released them in $10,000 bond each.

The men—Mike McKendree, Russellville chief of police, Dick Taylor, Russellville policeman, and Jack Kemp, a deputy sheriff—were charged in the federal warrants with conspiracy to rescue federal prisoners, conspiracy to prevent federal officers from doing their duty, and conspiracy to take seized property from the custody of federal officers.

The shooting affray occurred in front of a Negro cabin on the outskirts of Russellville, where federal officers had corralled eight persons charged with prohibition law violations. The prisoners escaped in the melée, but were rounded up Sunday by federal investigators aided by Sheriff George C. Russell. Three federal men who were arrested after the shooting were released yesterday when county officials decided no one except Soyars and Mather fired.

Police Chief McKendree said his party went to the Negro cabin on hearing reports of a disturbance there, that the federal officers refused to identify themselves or tell what they were doing, and that Soyars halted Mather when the latter started out the door and drew a blackjack. Both men then drew their pistols and fired at each other.

Sheriff Russell said had he known in advance of the raids there would have been no misunderstanding, but W. M. Woodruff, prohibition administrator at Cincinnati said Logan county citizens complained that officials are not enforcing the law.

DECIDES GENIUS MUST BE TRIED ON RAPE CHARGE

John F. Mellish, 46 year old genius, must stand trial soon on an indictment returned in the Kane county Circuit court more than a year ago charging him with rape. This was decided by Judge Frank W. Shepherd at Geneva yesterday. Mellish, who has been technically in jail since his indictment, waived a jury trial and requested that the case be tried by Judge John K. Newhall. No trial date was set.

Mellish, whose home is in St. Charles, is a maker of optical instruments. Scientists have asserted that he is one of only half a dozen men in the world who can design and construct lenses and telescopes accurate enough for astronomical observatories. Once a professor of astronomy, he discovered four comets himself.

Following his arrest on the rape charge, scientists petitioned the court to allow him his freedom, declaring that his scientific attainments outweighed the usual prejudice against the criminal. State's Attorney Carbary of Kane county, however, insisted that he be tried.

There has been a long series of continuances. Meanwhile Mellish sleeps every night in the county jail at Geneva, but spends his days in his workshop. His wife has filed a suit for divorce, which is pending. He has eight children.

OF course you watch your weight! And you should. But don't stop there in caring for your attractiveness.

For every girl and woman has to consider her teeth and gums, too. Unless you keep your teeth sparkling white and your gums firm—some day you may be afraid to smile!

It's like this: you eat soft, cooked foods. These fail to give gums the stimulation needed for health. Your gums gradually become tender. Next step—"pink tooth brush."

"Pink tooth brush" can dull the teeth. It may lead to serious gum troubles—such as gingivitis, Vincent's disease, and even the dread but more infrequent pyorrhea. It can endanger sound teeth, too.

To have a lovely, alluring smile, sound teeth and healthy gums, do this: today, get a tube of Ipana Tooth Paste. Clean your teeth with it. And each time, rub a little extra Ipana into those soft gums of yours.

Your dentist will tell you why. "Ipana contains ziratol," he'll explain. "This ziratol, with the gum massage, stimulates the circulation through the gums. It tones them."

Under this Ipana regime your gums will be firmer, healthier—and you won't have to worry about "pink tooth brush"!

START THIS NEW CASH PRIZE GAME TODAY!

CAN YOU NAME THE COUNTRIES PICTURED HERE?

HAVE you started this interesting, new game? If not, do so at once.

Simply clip out the pictures at the right and name the countries they represent. It is interesting and educational. It will familiarize you with the Countries of the World.

A picture will appear in the Chicago Daily Tribune each day. All you have to do is to name the countries pictured. No subscriptions to solicit—no hard work to do! No strings—no catches! Just pleasant amusement for you and a chance to win a big cash prize. 430 Cash Prizes totaling $5,000.00 will be paid by the Chicago Tribune for the best answers submitted.

If you wish to have the Chicago Daily Tribune delivered to your home by Carrier each morning before breakfast during this series, notify your newsdealer or telephone the Tribune, Superior 0100.

Follow These Simple Rules:

1. ELIGIBILITY: Any man, woman, boy or girl is eligible except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It costs nothing.

2. WHAT TO DO: Name the countries of the world represented by pictures printed in the Chicago Daily Tribune. A new picture will be printed each day for 42 consecutive days except Sundays. Each entry must consist of answers to the 42 pictures. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set. It is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. Pictures may be copied or traced. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at public libraries or at its offices free of charge.

3. WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: When you have the complete set of 42 pictures mail them by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid, to "Around the World," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Picture No. 42 has been printed. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department.

4. THE PRIZES: 430 Cash Prizes totaling $5,000.00 will be paid by the Chicago Tribune to the persons who send in the most nearly correct and neatest entries. (See prize list below.) Correctness is the prime consideration. Elaborate entries will receive no greater consideration than simple ones.

5. THE JUDGES: A committee of judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

Ellen Terry's Memoirs Win Literary Place

Story of Her Life Is Little Changed in 24 Years.

"Ellen Terry's Memoirs." [Putnam.]

ELLEN TERRY, one of the most famous actresses in the history of the English stage, whose whimsical and fascinating letters to George Bernard Shaw were published last year, in her memoirs writes herself down as not only a brilliant actress but also a fine woman and a literary artist whose genius cannot be denied.

ELLEN TERRY.

The memoirs, under the title of "The Story of My Life," were published in 1908, though there was little recognition of their literary merit at the time except by such original and distinguished critics as Max Beerbohm, George Bernard Shaw, and George Wyndham. The memoirs have been little changed since their publication.

The editors and commentators, Edith Craig, Ellen Terry's daughter, and Christopher St. John, have now and again cut the text to give room for the final critical and touching biographical conclusion, but for the most part this chronicle of the life of Ellen Terry remains the same as it was when it appeared 24 years ago. It rests with the present generation to bestow the final word of praise on a personal document that has slowly come into its own as a record revealing the unique and distinguished literary genius of a great actress.

Ellen Terry's first memories are of the stage. Her parents were both actors and she, with her sister, appeared on the stage at the earliest possible age. Even as a youngster she won bouquets from the critics for her charm and poise. At the age of sixteen she was married to the famous Pre-Raphaelite painter, George Watts, twice her age, who admired her delicate elfin-like beauty. After a tragic two years with him, living in a circle in which she was too young both mentally and emotionally to feel at home, she was as peremptorily dismissed as she was summoned.

A little later, with an interlude on the stage, she retired from acting for six years to live with Edward Godwin in the country. She bore him two children. Charles Reade, an old friend, finally persuaded her to return to the stage. She won almost immediate success and soon afterwards, though not too soon to marry a Mr. Kelley and legalize her position, she entered upon one of the most remarkable partnerships of the English stage. She and Henry Irving, the great Shakespearean actor, took the artistic world by storm. For twenty years they toured England and the United States together.

In connection with the termination of this friendship, the editors of these memoirs, after quoting a page or two from Ellen Terry's diary, conclude, ". . . It (the diary note) makes clear that Ellen Terry loyally continued to serve Henry Irving, against her own interests, until she was finally convinced she could no longer be of any use to him. The note has further the interest of having been compiled during the years when Ellen Terry was corresponding with Shaw. His claims in his preface (to the published correspondence) that he 'destroyed Ellen Terry's belief in Henry Irving.' The note hardly confirms this, but it suggests the probability that Shaw gave shape and consciousness to Ellen Terry's disillusionment. She had, however, never been blind to the fact that there were flaws in the diamond."

In 1906 the world celebrated Ellen Terry's jubilee on the stage. And in the same year she married James Carew, twenty-nine years her junior, a marriage as ill-fated as her others, since it lasted but two years. So much for the brief outline of Ellen Terry's personal life.

Her life in the theater was perhaps more important to her than anything else, though she never spoke of her "art." It was always her "work." She writes enchantingly on all aspects of the theater, the designing, lighting, costuming, directing, producing and acting. From the actor's point of view, her elaborate, penetrating and interesting analysis of technique and its importance, with ample illustrations from specific scenes, should be almost invaluable. To the layman it is a revelation of the problems of the actor, and because of the clear and vivid style holds him enthralled.

The shrewd power of Ellen Terry's observation and understanding of character in both men and women convince the reader that had she chosen the literary field she would also have won her laurels there. The great and the near-great of the age file across these pages. Oscar Wilde, James MacNeill, Whistler, Disraeli, Gladstone, Tennyson, Browning, Lewis Carroll, Duse, Bernhardt, Graham Robertson, Bernard Shaw, and Henry Irving are among the thousands of men and women she met in her eventful lifetime.

As for the purely personal aspects of the memoirs it is not enough to say that the writing itself is delicate, penetrating, whimsical and humorous, so infiltrated with charm and individuality that her personality stands out crystal clear; so original and thoughtful and wise that many great writers could well learn many lessons from reading it, that the narrative reveals the life of a woman who lived both bravely and unconventionally, of a great actress who made an impress upon her time. It is not enough to say, but what else can be said?

Bori Charms at Concert of Girl Scouts

Aristocrat of Singers Is at Her Best.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Girl Scouts of Chicago were lucky last night, for they had the benefit of a song recital at Orchestra hall by that superb artist and distinctive personality of the stage, Lucrezia Bori. Here is one who is well known for the way she plays lovely, fragile heroines of the operatic stage, and, unluckily, is less well known for her abilities in recital. It would seem to be a matter of her own choice. Anyway, she excels in the one no less than the other.

She was never more of a picture or more of an artist than last night. Radiant, serene, her glossy black head with its single gleaming lock of white nodding in time to the music, she had not finished her first song before the audience was figuratively if not literally at her feet.

She is an aristocrat among singers, and she is at her best when confronting an aristocratic melody, one like the aria from Handel's "Xerxes," which opened the program, or Fourdrain's "Celle que je prefere" at the beginning of the second group. But, canny stage body that she is, she does not confine herself to one manner. She has the power of converting each song into a miniature dramatic scene of its own, sustained here, agitated there, pathetic, humorous, and all with her individual stamp.

It was a cleverly constructed program that she presented. The first dealt with the ancients, the second with modern French, concluding with Massenet's "La Vierge," wherein she had the double accompaniment of Frederick Bristol at the piano and Walter P. Zimmerman at the organ. Then she retired for a time while Mr. Bristol played works by Debussy and a pair of blameless pieces by Lecuona and Chasins.

Returning, she introduced a group of songs of America, one of which, a tricky little bit called "Spooks," is dedicated to her. At the end she brought in some works from her native Spain by Turina, Obradors, and Nin.

This was by no means a conventional song program. It was better than nineteen out of twenty of the conventional order. And for that matter, so was she. In fact, a useful educational lesson might be drawn from what she sang and certainly how she sang.

Good Morning!

This little picture, though made abroad, has English dialogue. It is a comedy with some tuneful music and one decidedly unusual situation. I refer to that in which the daring and rambunctious hero threatens to turn his ship's cannon on the Casino at Monte Carlo IF——!

The piece's romantic concern is with a princess and a captain of her fleet. She follows the latter to punish him for mutiny. The two fall in love, neither knowing for a long, long time who the other is. A somewhat slow start is to be deplored, but after the picture gets under way it is reasonably amusing. Direction is able enough, but lacks the Lubitschian finesse that distinguished his "Monte Carlo." Photography is fair.

Sari Maritza, who is being so heavily promoted over here, is pleasing enough, but for the life of me I can't see anything about her to get excited over. Hans Albers, who resembles Francis X. Bushman, is rather fat for a romantic lead, but is a seasoned and likable actor. Supporting rôles are unremarkably portrayed. At times there are considerable action and suspense. Most of the former occurs in and around the Casino of Monte Carlo and in a ship anchored in the Monacan harbor.

Directed by William Cowen.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.
THE CAST.

There must be a demand for films like "Kongo," or surely producers wouldn't waste time, money, and able players upon them; but I have no personal acquaintance with anybody who goes to a theater that his flesh may be made to crawl.

From start to finish this piece is crammed with revolting incidents. Its locale is a jungle. Its principal character is a crippled white man eaten with a murderous passion for revenge. His shrewd brain and dominating personality have made him the terror of the natives, whom he rules with an iron hand. No white man dares cross a certain "line" that Flint has designated. Ivory hunters in that neck of the woods accordingly have a tough time getting away with any merchandise—for Flint's blacks are brutal and alert.

The horrible, or, rather, the MOST horrible, part of the photoplay is the stretch relating to Flint's treatment of a little convent girl he lures to the jungle, believing her to be the daughter of the man who has wrecked his home.

The cripple's degradation of this poor child is truly terrible to witness—but God's in his heaven and Conrad Nagel has not as yet succumbed to the deadly drug that sends him reeling into the sty that Flint calls home. . . .

The acting is excellent throughout, but why, WHY should we be nauseated in the name of entertainment?

New Neckwear Makes Frocks Serve Longer

Shops Offer Endless Array of Exciting Collars.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's practically an endless array of new neckwear . . . you plod homeward after a busy day completely submerged with ideas of what you can do with a few new collars and cuffs, and promise yourself the next day will find you at the task. Then for some reason or other you dash downtown again, and during the interlude while you planned and a had a grand time mentally rehabilitating no less than five or six frocks with clever new necking ideas all the smartest shops were reflooded with startling new things that leave you gasping.

Exciting round collars have gone in for tails. Some really outstanding furry comforts that will decorate as well as keep your throat warm, are made of a string of ermine or mink tails, and if you don't believe these are decidedly different and distinctive, just wait until you see them. A simple black evening gown can go out to dinner, or double for dancing with one of these snowy white round collars filling in the evening décolletage. You might accomplish a very stunning new white or ivory dinner dress with a mink collar topping the neckline of a not so new evening model that is in too good a state of fashion to be ignored.

Another collar trick is a flashy one but extremely good for this year of gleam and glitter, and some of the brightest and most cheerful collars for subdued and dull sheened dinner or dance dresses are made of sequins. You can buy them in various widths and this year you can find the new copper color, as well as silver and gold. These sparkling round collars are particularly effective for evening clothes, although the rusty copper glow of some of them are ideal for dull crêpe afternoon frocks in all shades of brown or black and dark green.

Deep swinging cape collars of alternate white and black shining bugle beads make any last year's pet black gown a devastating 1932 model . . . you've no idea what magical effects are possible until you test your creative ability. All white beaded affairs frost the top of black and deep brown dresses with startling but effective contrast. You can wear them buttoned over your shoulder, in front, or down the back.

If you are looking for strap ideas to transform or rejuvenate a perfectly good dance frock that is too faithfully flattering to your silhouette to be sold down the river, shop for the new velvet lei's. Small, though moderately sized for efficient shoulder straps, these lei affairs are mighty good looking and do everything for clinging, well designed evening dresses.

You can also use these exquisitely natural gardenias made of pearly white velvet to outline either a front or back neckline. Huge tropical blooms also of gardenia white velvet in triple combine, can easily dramatize any afternoon or evening costume, whether you wear them tucked in your belt, perched high on your shoulder strap or anchored around your wrist, which is a new and rather unusual invention practiced by a lot of clothes hounds who clamor for something different each shopping day.

Miss Ruth Wenter, 1269 Ashland avenue, Wilmette, former Northwestern university co-ed and radio singer, announced her engagement to Paul Cummins, 23 years old, of the Orrington hotel, Evanston. Miss Wenter was voted the most beautiful co-ed on the campus last year, and won the title of Miss Television at the radio show in Chicago. Cummins, who was graduated last year, was voted the best dressed man in his class. He is the owner of a cooperative book store on the campus.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

For protection during our five blustery, cold months a sectional vestibule gives generous return for money spent. It saves on fuel as well, not to mention drafts, which are neither pleasant nor profitable. Removable vestibules are practical. You install one in the fall and remove it in the spring. Ask your local carpenter about these or make inquiry at some lumber or material company. MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 by the Tribune, Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

AS BLACK SAW IT.

"Give me a crack at this case, professor," said Milton Black, one of his students. "You sit down in that nice easy chair and I'll tell you exactly how it was done!"

"All right, my boy. Go ahead"—laughingly.

"First, take a look at the position of those chairs. Facing each other. The powder burns on Hamilton's forehead and newspaper tell us plainly that he was shot at close range."

"True enough," responded his listener.

"Now, Hamilton was sitting there, with his legs crossed, reading the wide opened paper which hid his face. His murderer [undoubtedly some one he thought a friend] took careful aim at what he figured was the center of his forehead and blazed away. He made a good shot. The paper that Hamilton was reading was one week old—but we'll leave that."

"Will we?" laughed the famous criminologist.

"For the moment," said Black in his best voice. "You see, the murderer used an automatic, here's the cartridge. Observe, please, that the bullet passed entirely through the head and lodged in that woodwork. Our murderer plucked it out. He was taking no chances on Col. Goddard's knowledge of bullet identification! Then, the object for which he was hunting was a large one. Note that none of the small drawers in the room have been searched."

"The only flaw in your interesting theory, son," interjected the smiling professor, "is that it's major premise is wrong!"

Service Club Chat Indicates a Great Show

Hear Reports on Revue at Tea Party.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"ETHEL DIXON will be the 'hit' of the show" — "Well, I don't know, she's awfully good and her cakewalk is wonderful, but Helen Gillette and Mary Cook are lovely dancers, too"—"O, I think Louise Dow's the best"—"I like Ruth Seanor"—"And did you ever hear anything more marvelous than Harriet Madiener's and Lou Tilden's playing?"—"Eleanor Page, Julia Kramer, and Edna Doering are so darling"—these were a few of the remarks that one heard yesterday at a tea the board of directors of the Service club gave at Miss Letitia Channon's residence at 222 East Chestnut street.

The directors, of course, have been regular in their attendance at the rehearsals for "Stepping High," which is to be given on Friday and Saturday nights of this week at the Goodman theater, so that listening to them yesterday was like having a preview of the revue.

And judging by what we heard, "Stepping High" is going to be one of the snappiest and most entertaining revues in the club's history of successes. To hear Louis Tilden and Mrs. Albert F. Madiener Jr. were going to do a two piano number was something of a surprise, for Mr. Tilden has been noted for his accordion playing since the days when he was a star of the Princeton Triangle club, and I had forgotten, if I ever knew, that he was equally proficient on the piano."

Festival Winner Will Sing.

Waldemar Schroeder, the young baritone who won first prize in the third Chicagoland Music Festival in August as being the best man singer in Chicagoland, is to sing the lead in "Stars of Night," a scene in which Miss Cook, who has just returned from several years in Munich, and Miss Gillette will do a ballet dance.

The chorus men, or rather ensemble—they object to being called the former, I understand—are all members of the Black Friars at the University of Chicago and Miss Imogene Bucklin, the club's amateur publicity agent, says they are a stunning crowd of young men.

In addition to those already mentioned some of those who will be featured in the revue are Miss Harriet Fenner, Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman [Emily Pope], Miss Marion McKinley, Miss Ann Robinson, Floyd Eldridge, "Jimmy" White, Milton Owen, Benjamin Rawlins and John Goehst, among those in the chorus are the Misses Janet Bard, Martha Lee, Helen Marie Castle, Virginia Cross, Margaret Goehst, Honore White, Barbara Eldridge, Eleanor Litsinger, Betty Whatley, Eleanor McNally, Grace Fitzmorris and Susan Badgerow, who is a sister of Mrs. Dow.

Tea Table Is Lovely.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer named Tilbury as bailiff and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister Rachel are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Brasselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The coroner's inquest is held. Murder by person or persons unknown is the verdict.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

A GROTESQUE LEGACY.

On the way home little was said. In spite of the result of the inquest Natasha was still oppressed and subdued. Declining the urgent invitation to lunch with her friends, she went straight back to the inn, a lonely and listless figure.

"I can't understand what's come over her," remarked Rachel in a troubled voice. "It's as though some spring inside had broken."

"I can't help think it a bit extraordinary that nothing was said about Carrie's will. Easter holidays, of course, may have tied things up a bit, but even so—well, I admit I'm curious to learn what disposition she's made of her property, especially in view of this new will executed only two days before her death. That circumstance has a queer look, say what you like."

No one disputed this, but not one of the three was in the least prepared for the bombshell which burst in their midst that very afternoon. The bailiff called again and was closeted with Gisborne for a quarter of an hour at the end of which time he departed and the vicar returned to the drawing room with a strange look on his face.

"Well?" cried Rachel impatiently. "Did he have any news?"

"News! Yes, and with a vengeance. You'll neither of you believe what I have to tell you. It's—grotesque. Carrie's solicitor, a man called Powyss, has just been down for the purpose of reading the will. And what a will! After a few minor bequests the residuary legatees of the entire estate are—Alfred Tilbury and his wife!"

"Tilbury!" he burst out at last. "Why—you're joking. What in God's name do you take this to mean?"

"On the fact of it, an infatuated woman's crowning act of folly," replied the vicar with grimly set features. "If there's more behind it, who can say? One thing's certain—the fellow himself knows how bad it looks. He's knocked to bits. Declares he had no idea of such a thing—is afraid of what people will think, and all the rest of it. Came to me for advice."

"And what advice did you give?" demanded Rachel sharply.

"What could I say? If the will is legally sound, as it appears to be, he must take what's his and put up with gossip, that's all."

"Unless the courts can prove undue influence."

"Precisely—and that, I imagine, was his real reason for coming to me. He wanted to show me the letter Carrie wrote in Powyss' presence and deposited with the will—a queer document, but it pretty well disposes of any suggestion of influence. According to her, she was acting on her own carefully considered judgment, with neither the knowledge nor counsel of the beneficiaries, to insure the carrying out of certain definite wishes. In short, she stipulates that the heirs shall open up the tunnel under the hill and conduct a thorough search for the Holy Grail."

"O!" gasped Rachel incredulously, "so that's what it's all about."

"Quite. Her precarious health warned her she might not live to see the project through to its conclusion, consequently she has left it to this couple as a sacred trust, with her money to back it. Tilbury, acting in her behalf, is to be the Galahad of the twentieth century."

The picture evoked was so hopelessly comic that for a moment no one could do anything but laugh. When they had grown serious again Neil said confidently: "You may be quite sure the will won't stand."

"Who is there to contest it?" retorted Gisborne caustically. "The only near relatives are Natasha and her brother, Michael. Are they likely to put up a fight, particularly as the other will—the one recently destroyed—left them each the same legacy as this new one? A thousand pounds apiece—that's all they would have got in any case. A woman may leave her money as she sees fit."

"What a blessing, Tasha gets something, anyhow," cried Rachel spontaneously, only to stop as she saw the cryptic expression on her brother's face.

"Is it such a blessing? I'm not sure."

Neil, distinctly uncomfortable, bridged the awkward silence by inquiring who were the executors.

"Ah, you may well ask! There's only one executor—Tilbury himself. Staggering, isn't it? A line at the end of Carrie's letter spoke volumes of fatuous trust. After a biting reference to those in spiritual authority ridiculing her idea—a dig at me—she said that throughout the ages God's work had been done by people of simple faith. Simple faith, indeed! Simple instruments to do her bidding and incidentally see that the accruing glory goes to her. Pathetic, that touch of vanity. . . . Poor, misguided creature! Her one act of shrewdness was to make it a condition of inheritance that the legatees are to set about their undertaking at once and carry it through. If they fail to do this the money goes to a fund for scientific research."

"But does Tilbury himself believe in this rubbish?"

"What does it matter whether he does or not?" Gisborne shrugged and began to refill his pipe. "He must have played up to the scheme while she was alive. Actually, I can't make him out at all. Something disarmingly childlike about him. He professes to have been in a trance during the seances and says he has not the slightest idea what revelations have been made through his mediumship."

"Is he faking ignorance?" asked Neil bluntly.

"Can't say. I tell you, he's a complete puzzle to me, but however that may be he's shown himself remarkably practical in some directions. He's arranged for Powyss to obtain an immediate advance from the bank in order to start in on the digging and he's offering a reward of five hundred pounds for information leading to the conviction of the criminal. He declares he can't rest till the murderer is found."

Neil said nothing. Strongly as he distrusted Tilbury he was forced to ask if it was not Natasha who had first roused his suspicions. Yet there was no denying the feeling now present in his mind over the inexorable swiftness with which Miss Bundy's death had followed the redrafting of her will. Coincidence, perhaps, but all the same it had a decidedly wrong appearance . . . Five hundred pounds reward for the criminal's arrest! No one could quarrel with this commendable gesture on the part of the chief beneficiary. The sum was large enough, but not too large. It would quicken justice without inciting any one to manufacture evidence. But would it bear fruit? For Natasha's sake, he hoped that it would, and soon.

Suddenly he sprang up, declaring his intention of acquainting the girl with the new development.

Crossing the street he went straight upstairs, but as he neared the half open door of No. 16 low, angry voices issuing from it made him draw back and retreat into the adjacent bathroom. Who was with Natasha? He heard the latter saying with cold obstinacy:

"You have no right to question me like this. Surely you know I would tell everything if it had the slightest bearing on my aunt's death."

"Why should I know anything of the sort? I consider you capable of the basest deception."

There was a stifled outburst of: "This is outrageous! Exactly what charge are you bringing against me?"

"I shall not put the whole of my idea into words," came the guarded retort, "but quite definitely I do accuse you of shielding the person who alone or with help from you was responsible for Caroline Bundy's death."

A cry of horror followed by an indignant "How dare you!" which sent a vibration along the listener's nerves.

"I dare anything for the sake of a lifelong friendship. If you have nothing to do with this prove it—if you can. You think you can pull the wool over my eyes as you did with that stupid coroner; but, thank God, I am not a man!"

"Please go. I refuse to discuss this any longer."

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Deserves Another Chance.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow and for no reason at all I went out with another. The one I love found out. Don't you think I deserve another chance? JOE."

Yes, you should. Perhaps that's how you found out you love the first one.

Another delightful tea party that was given yesterday was one that Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. Francis Johnson gave at the Casino for the nurses' alumnae of the Passavant hospital. Plans were discussed by Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Charles King Corsant, ticket chairman, for the Tibbett concert to aid the free bed fund of the hospital.

The concert is to be given in Orchestra hall Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6, and tickets are for sale in room 1114 Congress hotel. Mrs. Loyal Davis is assisting Mrs. Corsant with the ticket sales and is helping with the program. Mrs. Eames MacVeagh and Mrs. George Carpenter presided at the tea table.

Lucie Jacobs Is Engaged.

This morning we are announcing the engagement of a popular north shore girl, Miss Lucie Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Jacobs of Woodley road, Winnetka, and a La Grange man, Willett N. Gorham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham of the west suburb.

Miss Jacobs, who is a Junior league member, attended the North Shore Country Day school and Pine Manor at Wellesley, Mass. She made her debut two years ago. Mr. Gorham prepared at Exeter and went to college at Princeton and now is finishing his law course at the University of Chicago. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne are giving a Halloween party for their debutante daughter, Laura, on Saturday, Oct. 29, at their Lake Forest residence, but the party is not to be Miss Thorne's formal presentation to society. Her mother hasn't decided definitely just what she will give to introduce her daughter but she thinks they will have several at homes after they move in town on Nov. 1.

The Thornes' town residence is at 2430 Lake View avenue. Miss Thorne's injuries in several falls she took Sunday when she was hunting with the Onwentsia Hounds amounted to nothing more serious than a slightly sprained ankle so she was up and about yesterday and able to keep all her engagements.

The Thornes' Halloween parties when their older daughters, Mrs. George Gillespie, Mrs. George Corson Ellis and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, were unmarried, always were among the gayest parties of each season so the debutante set is looking forward with pleasure to this year's party.

Debut Tea for Kathryn Evans.

Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans has decided to present her daughter, Kathryn, to society at a tea on Thursday, Nov. 10, instead of at a dinner dance during the holidays. The tea will be at the Evans' apartment at 179 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Evans and her daughter are planning to sail on Jan 12 from New York for a three and a half months' cruise to Australia and the South Sea islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Pike of Lake Forest are giving a dinner party for Miss Louise Dewey, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, on Saturday of this week. After Miss Dewey's debut tea tomorrow afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Dewey will entertain at dinner and the theater for their daughter and the young girls who will assist at the tea, Miss Jean Schweppe, Miss Josephine Patterson, Miss Nancy Traylor, Miss Mary Senior, Miss Barbara Eldridge, and Miss Marjorie Goodman.

The latest news from the Bachelors and Benedicts seems to be that they won't give their usual Thanksgiving eve ball, although that news isn't official for the members of the committee haven't gotten together yet to make a final decision about whether to resume their gay parties this year after not holding one last year.

The Assemblies were not given last winter, but the governors of those exclusive balls think they will have them again this year. Their meeting will not be held until next month, however, so a definite decision will not be made until then.

At Springs for Tennis Tourney.

Miss Mary Reed, daughter of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, and Miss Margaret McLennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, are at the Virginia Hot Springs for the tennis tournament and are expected to return to Lake Forest next Sunday. Among other Chicagoans there now are the Gustavus F. Swifts and their daughter, Miss Geraldine Swift.

Cyrus Hall McCormick Sr. and his son, Gordon, have gone duck hunting in Michigan and upon their return Gordon will spend a few days in Chicago before returning to New York. The junior Cyrus Hall McCormicks are spending several days with Mrs. McCormick Sr. on their way from New York to their ranch in Santa Fé.

Mrs. Leslie S. Gordon has been in Winnetka for the last ten days getting her house on the Indian Hill grounds ready for occupancy by a tenant who has rented it for a year. The Gordons moved to Ridgewood, N. J., about a year ago.

Mrs. Gordon's aunt, Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt, who had the Gordons' house last summer, is back at her town residence at 1411 State parkway where she will be until later in the season when she probably will go to California, as she usually does every winter.

Mr. Gordon's mother, Mrs. Thomas W. Ritchie, who spent the summer abroad, is visiting Mr. Gordon in Ridgewood now and will return to her Indian Hill residence about Nov. 1.

Coonleys Take New Apartment

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Coonley have given up their apartment at 1130 Lake Shore drive and have taken a smaller one on Elm street, nearer the one on Cedar street where their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, are living.

Mrs. Joseph H. Defrees of the Windermere East hotel is expected to return next Monday from her summer estate at Camden, Me. She has closed her house there and is now in New York with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donald Defrees of Winnetka.

Mrs. Ralph H. Small and her daughter, Miss Ann Small, have gone to New York for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Scofield of Highland Park are leaving next week for their usual winter sojourn in California. They expect to be near their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hilliard Oborne, who were married in Highland Park on July 23. Mr. and Mrs. Oborne have taken a house at 1693 Homewood drive, Altadena.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Rosenthal have returned from abroad, where they spent part of the summer at Biarritz and part with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tartiere, at their Château Fortoiseau at Dammarie Les Lys.

The Junior Friends of Art will have their opening meeting of the season this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. This year the club is planning to have American programs for the opening and closing meetings, and a different nation will be featured at each of the other ten meetings. The consul of each nation will be in charge of the program on the day when his country is featured. This afternoon Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius and Merrill C. Meigs will speak and a musical program will be given by stars of the "Opera in English League." Miss Olga Menn is president of the organization.

Lake Geneva is gradually being deserted for the winter, although some of the summer colonists are keeping their houses open for week-ends. The Kellogg Fairbanks, the Hubbard Carpenters, the Chauncey B. Blairs, and the Otto Schmidts were there last week-end.

Mrs. Gardiner G. Hammond is in St. Luke's hospital convalescing from an operation for appendicitis. She has had an apartment at the Ambassador East since she returned from Lake Geneva a few weeks ago.

Fashionables suffering at present from minor injuries and bruises are not limited to the hunting crowd. Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell broke her wrist the other day when she stepped into a gopher hole on a golf course at Lake Geneva.

Miss Libby Chase says the children's horse show she is planning to give around the first of November will not be anything like the one she staged last July. This one is to be more of a picnic to close the season for the pupils of her riding school, and though there will be some contests and prizes it will be a small informal affair.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The first junior assembly of the season will be held in the main ballroom suite of the Ritz-Carlton on Friday, Dec. 2. Dates for the remaining assemblies, also at the Ritz-Carlton, are Friday, Jan. 6, and Friday, Feb. 3. Mrs. Richard C. Colt, chairman of the committee, has as her associates Mrs. Walter Phelps Pliss, Mrs. Harry T. Peters, Mrs. M. Walker Rogers, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Albert Zabriskie Gray and Mrs. Adrian V. S. Lambert.

"Screen Stars must keep Youthful Charm . . ." says Aileen Pringle

Never was Aileen Pringle, lovely screen star, more popular than she is right now. "I'm over 30," she says. "But I don't mind admitting it one bit. No woman needs to fear birthdays if she knows how to care for her appearance. I use Lux Toilet Soap!"

Of the 694 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 686 use this fragrant white soap. Surely you will want to try it!

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief is twice as easy in the first stage.

For prompt relief take a couple of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately upon catching cold. This will usually expel the cold overnight and thus prevent the spread of the infection within your system.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. Kills the cold germs and fever in the system.

Artists Offer Interpretations of Chicagoland

October Exhibitions Open in Two Galleries.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Chicago is open to many interpretations. Various artists have given their views of the city in the exhibition now open in the Increase Robinson studio gallery, Diana Court building. Some of the painters have used symbolism, some realism, some humor and others a curious vagueness with which to express their personal sentiment about this city of lake, towers, teeming millions and all the issues which go with a huge, shifting populace.

Davenport Griffen locks forces with the occult and upheaval is rampant in "Forces Within." Ramon Shiva dares us to put a meaning into "Composition No. XXX.," which portrays a magnificently painted nude Negress floating confidently near a railroad switch, with a glorious reflected background made up of cubes in all the colors of the rainbow. Ethel Spears is distinctly funny in "All Around the Town," where jolly cupids roll back the curtain and reveal rural and urban delights that tantalize the imagination.

Beatrice S. Levy has one of the best sober pictures of Chicago as she is, at least on one side, "Jackson Park Parapet." Josephine L. Reichmann offers a well handled canvas, "South State Street Market," telling the story of Chicago's picturesque street market: Vegetables, booths and nearly all the atmosphere of a like place discovered abroad.

Increase Robinson offers a solid piece of painting, "South East Gateway," which is a palatable bit of truth telling. Frances Badger shows an interesting doubling up of matter, "Chicago Silhouettes," the old and the new, the horse-cab and the motor car, Fort Dearborn and the Indian stroking the bases of THE TRIBUNE and Wrigley Towers, that is forceful.

At the Cordon club paintings by Angus Potter Lowrie were put on exhibition yesterday. Landscapes predominate and the effect of the exhibit as a whole is reassuring. Her most recent picture, "St. Malo Fortress," is splendid, rich in color and gorgeous in its careful limning. "Modern Farm Yard," is amusingly like a new pin; "Begonia," is an attractive plant; "Against the Sky," is a Japanese print in oils of young buds and slim branches, the whole traced delicately on a silvery gray background. The drawings are interesting, the sketches delightful. The exhibit is one which will give great pleasure to many people.

Both exhibitions will continue through October.

THE STAGE

Subscribers to the American Theater society's program of plays at the Erlanger theater may expect to see "There's Always Juliet," a comedy by John Van Druten, this winter. This piece had a successful run in New York last season, with Edna Best and Herbert Marshall as its central characters. It will be restaged at the Ritz theater, New York, Oct. 27, with Violet Heming and Roger Pryor as stars. After its Broadway engagement the play will be given a tour over the American Theater society's circuit.

Walter Hampden's return engagement in "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Apollo theater will open next Monday night, in spite of the conflict with the première of "Reunion in Vienna" at the Erlanger theater, and will continue until the following Saturday night. The booking to follow Mr. Hampden at the Apollo is the cinema version of "Strange Interlude."

The Theater Guild brought the dramatization of "The Good Earth" to its New York première last night. The Irish Players from the Abbey theater of Dublin also figured on Broadway's first night list, beginning an engagement that will be followed by a tour. Chicago's prospects for seeing the Dubliners are vague.

Elmer Rice's latest play, called "Black Sheep," opened in New York last Thursday and closed after giving four performances. The reviewers were unanimous in the opinion that the piece was unworthy of the author of "Street Scene" and "Counsellor-at-Law." . . . "Peacock was another casualty of the Broadway weekend, on which half a dozen new productions came to their last gasp.

George White, the revue impresario, has succeeded to the lease of the late Florenz Ziegfeld's Casino theater in New York, which was dedicated about a year ago as the Earl Carroll. His first production there will be an informal revue to be called "George White's Music Hall Varieties." This will be followed by the next "Scandals" and an operetta with Everett Marshall in the leading rôle. C. C.

Dotted Material Contrasts Effectively with Plain Crepe in Becoming Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Polka dots are always popular, and the original model was fashioned of a blue printed silk crêpe with red dots. The bodice shows the higher waistline, which is given supple lines by tiny gathers in the plain blue crêpe upper part. The bow and buttons are red.

The pattern, 2801, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 35 inch contrast and 1 yard of 3 inch wide ribbon for the bow.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City.

The Fall and Winter Fashion Magazine, a new Clotilde pattern book, is now available. The magazine is 15 cents a copy, but if the order for it accompanies an order for a Clotilde pattern the price is only 10 cents. Address THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City.

La Rabida Hospital Will Hold Formal Opening Rites Today

La Rabida Jackson park sanitarium, established for the free treatment of children suffering with heart disease, will be opened formally in a ceremony this afternoon. The corner stone of the $300,000 building, constructed on the land extending into the lake at 67th street, will be sealed by Mrs. Louis T. Orr, president of the board.

The opening of the building will bring about the realization of a plan started in the 1893 World's Fair La Rabida building, which was operated after the exposition as a hospital for the children of the poor by Señor Stud y Zimenes, Spanish consul in Chicago at that time. In 1896 the work was taken over by south side women and continued until shortly after the world war, when the building was destroyed by fire.

The treatment of heart disease in children was carried on by the women in a welfare station at 33d street and Bond avenue and in a day nursery at 4758 South Marshfield avenue.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.—Herbert Hoover Jr. joined his wife at the White House today to make a brief visit. Young Mrs. Hoover arrived Friday night and accompanied President and Mrs. Hoover to Cleveland on Saturday.

Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin, United States public health service, and Mrs. McLaughlin have arrived from Chicago, where they have lived for four years, he being medical director of the Third district. They have opened their home at 2510 Upton street for the season, as Dr. McLaughlin has been assigned as medical adviser to the United States coast guard service.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. H. H. Southerland have returned to their apartment at the Carlton for the winter after spending the summer with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bacon of Boston, in their summer place at Nahant.

Use Great Care in Choosing a Child's Book

Avoid Ones That Inspire Fear or Sadness.

We were passing a book store, and stopped to glance in the window.

"There's that awful book again," said my young friend whose head is now higher than my shoulder. "How that book used to frighten me when I was little! Do you remember how Aunt Bob brought it to me one day for a present, and how I tried to look at it and how you finally hid it away so I couldn't see it?" He stopped and laughed with a backward glance of pity at the little boy he had been.

"I used to have bad dreams about the faces in those pictures. I wish you could write something to keep people from giving children books like that—that scare them so that when they get in bed they won't let a hand or foot stay out of the covers because Something in the Book might catch it."

The book he referred to is one that has been for years a best seller. Whether children of a suitable age love it, I do not know. But I do know that it is not the right book for very little children. Every once in a while it comes over me, as it did that day we were walking, how much we parents think we know and how little we really do know about what goes on in the minds and hearts of children.

More and more are people choosing books as gifts for small children. And each year they grow better and better—in illustration, in subject matter and in type and spacing. But that does not mean that we do not have to exercise our judgment and taste in making a selection. Perhaps it is easier to decide what is desirable in choosing books for the little children than for the others.

One reason is that there is usually little text in their books and you can run through it as you stand on one foot in the book store. The pictures you can look over as you stand on the other.

In judging both text and pictures for little children there is one important thing to look for and avoid. And that is whether there is anything that is apt to inspire fear—anything that is grotesque, or queer in the pictures—anything in the text that is cruel, or allows unpleasant things to happen to the characters, which are so often amusing or lovable animals that become quickly enshrined in children's affections. Later, children can stand these things, but not when they are small.

Other points which figure in the choice of books are gone over in the booklet called "The Little Bookshelf," which also contains lists of books for children under 10. This will be sent on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelop.

Obvious Trick Seldom Makes Girl Popular

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How about this thing of introducing other boys into the conversation when you are being squired about by one, girls? Is it your idea of inflating your stock in the escort's mind? Do you think it gives the impression of how popular you are?

Well, perhaps a hint now and then isn't amiss, but don't you think some of you overplay the act a bit? The boys apparently are of this opinion. And HOW they do not like girl-conversation sprinkled with other boys' names would surprise you!

Of course, we don't think it a good idea, either, plainly to gravitate to a one-man role unless that one young man is pretty well "cinched." For, after all, boys love the glamour of a girl other boys like and want to play escort to. But this little game has to be played with skill. You can't make the moves too obvious. You can't bear down too heavily on names and incidents and invitations in which other boys figure.

A little of that kind of inference goes a long way. It's a bit tough on the ego of the immediate escort. And you can't damage that male attribute without deadening your own stock, too. He just thinks your judgment is not good.

You have to study your man! If he seems to be appreciating you without benefit of outside names, let well enough alone. If he is the kind who goes after a girl because he thinks he's getting her away from other boys—then you can draw on your reserve fund of names and incidents of popularity.

The same goes for boys! Some of them are just as bad as the offending girls in parading outside names as personal popularity boosters. And girls are notoriously less patient as audiences.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The two color ensemble this winter is different. Not only the dress, but the coat as well, flaunts a bit of some vivid shade. This breaks the tradition that a coat shall be in one color, and one alone, with its fur trimming the only contrast. Lelong puts bright cloth bands right around the rib region of his winter ensemble coats. Worth makes the tops of the sleeves in some brilliant shade. These are two of the most successful ways Paris has found for giving the coat its color contrast, the same as the dress.

The Lelong ensemble in the sketch today shows you how it's done. This is a simple black cloth coat, in the new knee length version, with a band of bright green cloth set in around the shoulders, and a collar of black fox.

The dress worn under this coat is a two piece, with the blouse made of the same bright green woolen which forms the coat band, and a skirt of black wool. The blouse has raglan sleeves with deep armholes, so they look bulky at the top. A scarf of green wool is draped closely around the neck and falls over the right shoulder down the front. Close fitting round necklines are the rage in Paris and they end the slip over the head way of getting into your blouse. This blouse, like many others, opens down the back and is buttoned part way down from the neck.

Bandeaux of Tiny Ringlets Worn in Paris

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Wonder if bandeaux are going to be worn much this winter with evening dress?

Each year, about this time, we who have straggling ends that won't stay pinned pray that the bandeau rumor is going to be more than a rumor. I am told that bandeaux of hair matching the individual's own are catching on in Paris under the suasion and artiness of M. Antoine. These bandeaux are coronets, really, made of hair curler in tiny, flat ringlets, the forepart of said crown being fairly wide over the brow and ears, tapering to a neat, single line of ringlets at the back of the head. One's own hair, to make the bandeau a success, must be brushed back tight off the forehead and any longish hair present must be pinned down flat as can be.

If the hair is quite long in back, the bandeau ends are slipped under the knot at the back. Anyway, whether you order one for yourself or not, it is nice to contemplate the ease with which one's hair might be dressed in a couple of minutes' time with the adjustment of one of the afore-mentioned bandeaux.

American women, I note, do not take to "false hair" departures with the enthusiasm we hear tell of the continental play-girls. But this is a time when our straight-from-the-shoulder-sisters are beginning to look the ultra-feminine propaganda over with a new and interested eye. Anything that separates them a few notches from the too-efficient looking person is worth trying, they argue. So, perhaps in spite of my doubts, the coronets of hair or the bandeau of jewels will be seen on opening nights.

But, whether they are or not, the coiffure is going to be just about the most telling thing in summing up a lady's chic.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

BY MARY MEADE.

There's a real thrill to be gained from a chummy hour spent with an old cook book. Mysteriously complicated formulas—cures for everything from mosquito bites to fainting spells—all kinds of facts and fancies are found sandwiched between the quaintest of old time recipes. And those recipes—what visions they still conjure!—of luscious, jolly roly pollies. Of golden brown pandowdies and batter puddings. Of cobblers, shortcakes and fat, feathery dumplings.

While many of these long-loved puddings have been given a gay new lease on life with tablespoon measures instead of the old time "butter the size of an egg," and with cups instead of "flour to make just right," there are still hundreds of delectable old recipes which may be rescued from their yellowing obscurity in almost every home and spirited into modern fall meals.

The usual lineup, however, looks something like this: Puddings with a cake foundation may turn out to be batter puddings, cobblers, or cottage puddings. For the first, fruit—fresh berries, apples, peach or whatnot—is added generously to a greased casserole or placed in individual cups. Over this is poured a plain cake batter and the pudding or puddinglets steamed until light and spongy. A cobbler is of the same family, but after the batter has been added to the fruit, then the pudding is baked till feathery in a moderately hot oven.

Cottage puddings are something else again. Here the fruit—usually in a sweet sauce—is added on each serving after the cake is baked. Another variation—the Dutch cake—favors largely apples and peaches which are sliced and spread over the dough when it is in the oven, reversing the cobbler method.

Roly pollies are close relatives to dumplings, only with them the fruit is spread on a large uncut rectangle of dough and the whole rolled up from the long side and baked jelly roll fashion.

Our deep dish pie or pandowdy calls for a very deep pie pan or a baking dish. In this place the sweetened fruit and over it spread your fluffiest baking powder crust.

The following pot pie topped off meals multitudinous in the good old days of huge appetites and it still tempts as alluringly today. A score of different fruits may any of them be substituted for the cherries here given. It will be necessary to vary the flavor and add or subtract sugar.

CHERRY POT PIE.

When in season fresh cherries are delicious in this pie, but even in the fall and winter delectable duffs may be made from sweetened canned cherries. If fresh ones are used cook one quart of the pitted fruit with one cup of sugar and two and one-half cups of water until tender. With canned cherries three cups of solid cherries with one cup of heavy cherry juice will do the trick. Place the cherry sauce in a deep saucepan and bring to a scald.

Meanwhile prepare a baking powder crust by working two tablespoons of shortening into one and one-half cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt which have been sifted together twice. Into this mixture stir lightly one-half cup of milk and pat out to nearly the size of the saucepan. Now place it on top of the fruit, put on a close cover and cook over a moderately slow heat for half an hour. In the last ten minutes remove the cover and brown under a broiler flame.

Children's Benefit League Has Successful Tag Day

The tag day which had been postponed a week on account of the rain was held successfully yesterday by the Chicago Children's Benefit league. Ten thousand women tagged on busy street corners throughout Chicago, and at the close of the day turned over heavy canisters filled with coins to support the dependent children of 50 child caring agencies in the city. The proceeds of the day will be announced upon completion of the counting of the contents of the boxes. Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds is president of the league.

Cuticura SOAP & OINTMENT

. . . . Over half a century of success in controlling and healing skin troubles

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

FREE PRESS CIRCULATION positively parallels sales opportunity IN DETROIT

Circulation is either powerful or powerless, depending upon where it goes. "Net paid" may mean no pay for the advertiser. Mere figures in the A. B. C. may cut no figure at all when it comes to tallying returns from an advertising campaign.

Selling today is not a procedure of "going everywhere." But it is a serious business of "going somewhere," and the destination should be plainly ticketed "to purchasing capacity" . . . . to buyers, and not merely population.

In Detroit the circulation of the Free Press is pointed at profitable neighborhoods and gets there. Its influence is in "pay dirt" territory . . . . in a buying market. Its readers are thoughtful purchasers who want good merchandise regularly and who regularly respond to intelligent advertising. They buy freely yet judiciously.

Seventy-six per cent of the city circulation of the Free Press is concentrated in those twenty key sales-making districts of Detroit from which comes more than four fifths of all retail business transacted. And this represents a coverage of approximately three out of four homes, meaning nearly every home worth advertising to.

These homes purchase two thirds of all the food sold in Detroit; four fifths of all the automobiles new and used; three fourths of all the radios, plus a major portion of all the things that advertising sponsors, manufacturers make and merchants sell.

Use of the Free Press to sell in Detroit assures coverage without waste . . . concentration upon known units of buying power . . . non-competitive attention value in the morning field . . . circulation that goes home and stays there and that is bringing better results to advertisers today than that of any other newspaper in Detroit.

FIRST FOOTBALL SCANDAL! COPS CHEAT SING SING

Run In Ringers for Annual Game.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—It comes out that the Port Jervis Cops, who lost the second annual classic football game to the Sing Sing Black Sheep, were not genuine policemen at all, but members of the Port Jervis High school team of 1928, who have continued to play together since their graduation and were specially deputized for the occasion.

It may be remembered that the Cops won the first annual classic last year, 13 to 0. Suspicions were aroused at the time of the first annual classic when, every now and again during the scrimmages, members of the Port Jervis club were seen to assist members of the Sing Sing varsity to their feet.

If the ostensible officers had kicked the Sing Sing boys in the head or twisted their arms, meanwhile inquiring persistently "Where were you on the night of July the first? Answer me yes or no," there would have been no suspicion. But the unpolicemanlike behavior of the mock policemen who dusted off the Sing Sing boys, calling them "buddy," and did not even run their hands over them looking for weapons, caused the sordid specter of scandal to stalk the playing field of the big house on the very day the classic was inaugurated.

Now it is confirmed that the cops are not to be trusted to conduct themselves as sportsmen, and it may be all for the best to break off football relations between the Port Jervis cops and the black sheep. The Port Jervis officers have set an example of cheating which cannot have any good effect on the impressionable undergrads of Sing Sing, and they have plainly shown themselves to be unfit to associate with burglars, kidnapers, and blackmailers, on any sporting basis.

The New York police department would furnish a better natural rivalry anyway, as most of the Sing Sing boys are old personal rivals of the members of the New York department. If the New York cops were substituted for the Port Jervis cops, Mr. Ed Mulrooney, the commissioner, would be able to guarantee all members of his team as policemen in good standing in the department, and there would be no unpolicemanlike behavior on the field. It would be contrary to the traditions of the force for any member of the team to assist a Sing Sing boy to his feet or dust him off unless the dusting were done with a blackjack, and the rivalry would be maintained in all its spiritual purity.

What! An Alumnus Plays?

Football must be an incorrigible game, however, for even in Sing Sing an evasion of the spirit of the rules of eligibility was practiced in last Sunday's second annual classic with the Port Jervis Cops. Jumbo Morano, the Sing Sing full back, who was the main offensive force of the varsity, was kept eligible by a subterfuge and the cops might have had grounds to protest the game if they had not violated the rules themselves. Jumbo Morano should have been graduated last week, but his diploma was withheld at his own request and with the connivance of the faculty so that he could remain available for the classic.

Strictly speaking, Jumbo Morano was a post-graduate man when he met the mock-cops and should not have been allowed in the grounds at all, except on payment of one dollar as a spectator. To Mr. Morano, however, the idea of paying one dollar to get into Sing Sing probably was very ridiculous, so he deferred his graduation and closed his career in a glorious stand against the cops who were not cops.

Seek Suitable Trophy.

Now there arises in Sing Sing the problem of choosing suitable trophies with which to reward departing graduates in a manner similar to that of West Point and the Naval academy at Annapolis. At West Point and Annapolis distinguished athletes, upon being graduated, are awarded distinguished prizes having to do with their profession. At both schools the champion athletes are given golden swords for proficiency in various sports, and at Annapolis there is also an award of a compass.

Jumbo Morano is the first athlete of distinction to leave Sing Sing since football was instituted there, and the best the undergraduates could think of in the emergency as a trophy from the corps was the veritable football used in the glorious defeat of the unpolicemanlike alumni of Port Jervis High school. This has been signed by all the members of the team, with their right names and all their aliases, the autographs covering the entire shell of the football.

Here's Just the Thing.

A set of golden burglar tools, to be known as the warden's trophy, might be a more fitting gift for a Sing Sing boy on leaving the old school. A football is a poor weapon with which to attempt to advance one's self in one's profession, unless the profession happens to be football. Football does not happen to be Jumbo Morano's profession. They cannot send people to Sing Sing for playing football.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

PRO FOOTBALL.

THE WAKE was accompanied Sunday to the Bears-Green Bay Packers contest by a friend who had not seen pro football for four or five years. Then individual brilliancy on offense was more common than coördinated team unity, although defense always has been good in the pro article.

Mr. Friend was greatly impressed, so impressed he threatens to become a regular, by the speed of the players where he had expected them to be lackadaisical at times, thinking more of their salary envelope and continued physical well-being than of the issue at hand. He also was impressed by the sureness of punt receivers and the manner in which they took kicks on the dead run.

Both these points are well taken. Speed in starting is essential to a job on a good pro outfit. No slow footed runner can last long in a game where it is possible to comb the country for graduated college talent. This speed is notable on both offense and defense. You see it on the college gridiron, but not among so great a percentage of players. Sureness of punt receiving may receive the same words.

Now there is no particular mystery about these facts. Pro football players of the present day are mostly former collegians. They are, as it were, taking post-graduate work in football.

We're so conservative we probably never will enjoy pro as much as college football. To us it lacks what Bob Zuppke of Illinois calls the "spirit" of the college game. Yet where once lukewarm for reasons which largely have been eliminated since, we now enjoy these games as exhibitions of finished gridiron prowess. We make no effort to compare the campus and the more strictly commercial brand.

Whether a graduated collegian should play pro football is a question for individual decision. Some boys actually love the game so much they wish to continue. Some play to earn money to continue studies in professional schools or to pay obligations incurred at college. Others just "drift" into it because it is the quickest money in sight. The danger, of course, is in becoming what is termed an "athletic bum." The extent of that danger depends on the boy himself.

Pro football, on a large scale, is a growth of the last decade. That is too short a time to form opinion of its effect on the after life of its participants.

From Scout Jack Doyle.

Dear Harvey: I note in your column where a well intentioned Cub fan can't see why I did not figure in the world series money cut. Scouts seldom, if ever, get in the money and that's as it should be. Coaches, however, come in direct contact with the players and, coupled with the management, they are the heart and soul of the organization, therefore deserving to share in the money.

This fan also kindly refers to the good players which I have brought up for the Cubs. But he doesn't know about some of the lemons which we also bring up for trial.

Charlie O'Leary and John Corriden are very dear friends of mine, splendid fellows, great workers, and, in my opinion, deserved to share as well as any of the players.

YOU MUST READ FOOTBALL RULES TO ENJOY GAME

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The rules of football, with their many restrictions and penalties, are more difficult to understand than those of any other popular American sport. This lack of knowledge on the part of spectators and players produces situations for protracted argument in every game.

The new dead ball rule has been booed frequently this fall. When the ball carrier touches the ground with any part of his body other than his hands or feet, the ball is dead. In the Ohio State-Michigan game last Saturday, Ohio State failed of a first down within Michigan's 10 yard line because of application of this rule. The ball carrier, Oliphant, hit the ground and his momentum carried him two yards in advance of the point where his knees touched the ground. Had the farthest point of advance been allowed it would have produced a first down.

The professional game Sunday at Wrigley field between the Bears and Green Bay brought about an argument in the closing minutes. The Bears alleged they had scored a touchdown, which, if it had been allowed, would have defeated the Packers.

Johnsos Does His Best.

The Bears punted and the ball was bounding a few yards short of the Packer goal line. Luke Johnsos, Bears' end, made an effort to capture the ball before it crossed the goal line. If he had succeeded, Green Bay would have been forced to put the ball in play on its one yard line. This play is familiar, and equally familiar was the running block of the Green Bay safety man, who wished to keep Johnsos from the ball until it had crossed the goal line, where it would be ruled a touchback and would give the Packers possession on their 20 yard strip.

The Bears allege that Johnsos did not touch the ball; that the Green Bay player kicked the ball into the end zone, giving impetus to the ball and that Bill Hewitt recovered it there for a touchdown.

The umpire, who was within a few feet of the play, ruled that Johnsos touched the ball before it was touched by the Green Bay player and that Hewitt's recovery made the play a touchback.

Luke Says He Missed It.

Johnsos certainly can testify whether he actually touched the ball on the one yard line, or whether he was blocked out as he claimed. Johnsos said after the game that he didn't touch the ball, but this wouldn't overrule the umpire by any means if the umpire thought he saw Johnsos touch the ball. However, it does appear that if the Green Bay player provided the impetus which sent the ball into the end zone, that Hewitt's recovery would not have produced a touchdown but that Green Bay should have put the ball into play on its one yard line.

Despite many rules, the principles of football are easy to understand. Perhaps this sustains interest, although decisions on interference on forward passes, holding, etc., always will involve individual opinion, just as the fouls in basketball or decisions in baseball. Some violations are merely a matter of fact. This was true Sunday when the Bears attempted a place kick.

The rule governing plays from scrimmage state that seven players must be on the line of scrimmage. Any player with both feet or with one hand and the opposite foot, within one foot of the scrimmage line, which is the nearest point of the ball, is on the scrimmage line. On this place kick, Tackwell, an end, came back to kick. No player replaced him on the line and when the kick was made the Bears only had six men on the line. This would have nullified the kick if it had been made.

Newman's perception of an opening for a forward pass scored the first Michigan touchdown against Ohio State last Saturday. Newman noticed that Ohio State's secondary defense played directly behind the defensive tackles and that the defense was not in position to stop a forward pass on the flank.

Accordingly Regeczi, from a wing back position, where he had at least two yards start of the defending half back, ran flat along the line of scrimmage, received Newman's pass and continued 10 yards to the goal line.

CUBS DENY RUMOR OF TRADES WITH GIANTS, BRAVES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The big league trade winds broke out last night with hurricane force. Eastern ball writers got together and with a few strokes of their pencils turned three National league ball teams inside out.

Without consulting William Veeck, president of the Cubs, they removed Ki Cuyler, Pat Malone, and Gabby Hartnett from the Cub roster, and scattered them around to other clubs supposed to be in on the alleged deal—the Giants, Braves, and Reds.

President Veeck when informed that part of his pennant winning team had been appropriated without his knowledge declared positively that he hadn't talked trade this fall with the Boston club and whatever trade talk he had indulged in did not include Cuyler, Malone, or Hartnett.

This Is All of It.

Just why anybody should think the Cubs would be getting a break by giving up the three named players for Lindstrom and Hogan is a puzzle. Cuyler or Malone alone for both the two Giants would come closer to being a bargain, and even then the Cubs would be justified in asking for a few dollars in cash along with the two athletes.

They Want to Trade.

The fact that practically all the owners are in a trading mood and already snooping around for possible changes is well established. Even the Cubs are in this class, but for the time being will concentrate on cash purchases with only some of the present second string talent included.

Herman or Hafey is almost certain to be moved out by the Reds, mainly because of financial considerations. Any deal the Reds may have in mind will be held up, however, until the signing of a manager. This may happen any day now with Donie Bush, former Washington, Pittsburgh, and White Sox boss, having the inside track on the job.

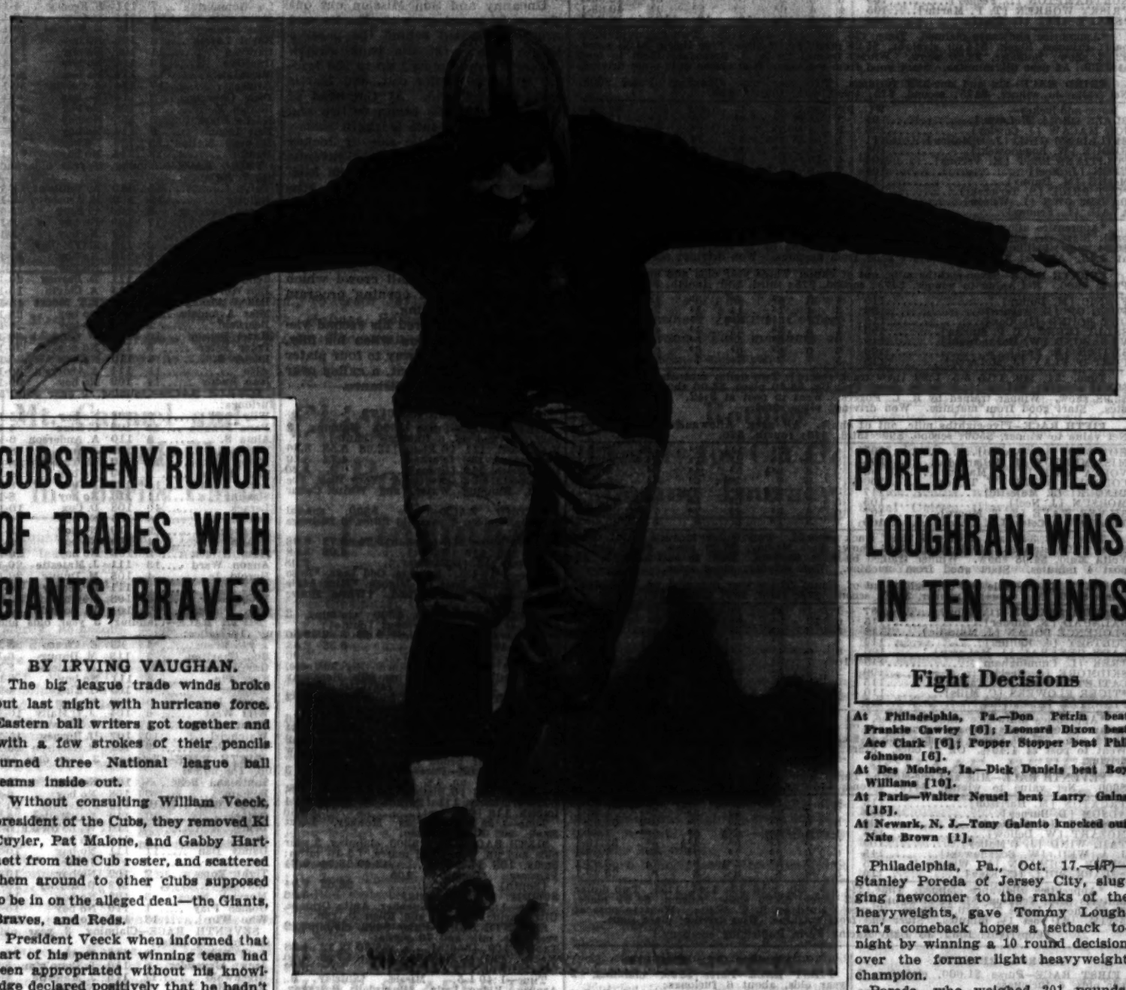
The Giants want a hitter of the Berger type because of the short fences at the Polo grounds. They could make good use of Herman for the same reason. Another swap reported to be in the making is the moving of Hack Wilson, the one time Cub hero, to the Phillies. Hack is said to have worn out his welcome with the Brooklyn club.

NEWS TO BRAVES.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Published reports of an impending baseball deal involving four National league clubs and seven players valued at approximately $500,000, tonight brought denial from Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Boston Braves.

Adams, when informed of the report, said the Braves had no definite trades in mind. The Braves wish to strengthen their roster, but no deals, so far, have advanced beyond the talking stages, Adams stated.

PURDUE'S CANDIDATE FOR N. U. BACK FIELD



Last year Purdue had a center who, it was claimed, played in the Northwestern back field. Boilermaker partisans expect Capt. John Oehler, 1932 center, to do just that against the Wildcats Saturday at Dyche stadium. Look out! Here he comes!

POREDA RUSHES LOUGHRAN, WINS IN TEN ROUNDS

Fight Decisions

At Des Moines, Ia.—Dick Daniels beat Roy Williams [10].

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Stanley Poreda of Jersey City, slugging newcomer to the ranks of the heavyweights, gave Tommy Loughran's comeback hopes a setback tonight by winning a 10 round decision over the former light heavyweight champion.

Poreda, who weighed 201 pounds, never allowed Loughran to get set. Loughran, outweighed by 14½ pounds, put up a beautiful defensive battle, but could not cope with the smashing left jabs and roundhouse right hands which Poreda poured at him from the second to the sixth rounds and again in the seventh, eighth and ninth.

The fireworks for Loughran started late in the second round when with a barrage of battering lefts the Jersey boy opened an old cut on Tommy's nose.

With the start of the third round Loughran began backing away. In the sixth round Tommy rallied and peppered Poreda with a series of left jabs to the body and head. For the rest of the way Loughran returned to his retreat policy.

KNIGHT WHIPS NICHOLS.

The Georgia boy, who has to his credit a victory over Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized as champion in New York state, sailed into Nichols in the opening round. There were no knockdowns, but Nichols was hurt by Knight's left early in the fight, and in the latter rounds was busy covering up and back pedaling.

The decision was unanimous by three judges. Knight weighed 176 pounds against 167 for Nichols.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY FRANK T. HEFFELFINGER.
[As Told to Wilfrid Smith.]

Yale played 17 games in 1888, my freshman year at the university. There was no freshman rule in those days. The climax of our season was the game with Princeton on Thanksgiving day. We didn't meet Harvard that fall, so Princeton held our interest. We won, 10 to 0, scoring two goals from the field. Touchdowns then counted five points and so did field goals.

The thrill of that game for me lay not only in the fact that I was a freshman but in that I broke up the famous Princeton V formation. Breaking up that attack gave me more pleasure than all the games of the seasons to follow.

In our 17 games in 1888 we scored 698 points to our opponents' none. I was the heaviest man on the eleven and I weighed only 168 pounds. I played left guard. There was one other freshman, Lee McClung, a half back, who captained the team in 1891.

Our lineup that fall included A. A. Stagg, who shortly after came to Chicago university. Stagg played left end. Kid Wallace was right end. Billy Rhodes and Charles Gill were the tackles. George Woodruff paired with me at guard and Capt. Corbin was the center. Wurtenberg was the quarterback; McClung and Billy Graves were the half backs, and William T. [Billy] Bull played full back. Bull kicked the two field goals which licked Princeton.

Football was more interesting for the linemen in those days. Any one, whether a back or a lineman, could run with the ball. The center that year (I think) had just been given permission to put the ball into play by his hand as well as his foot. Prior to that the center started the play by using his foot. This required agility on the part of the quarter back. I used to carry the ball frequently but in following years I developed the play of the guard in running interference.

Walter Camp was the coach of our team and he served without pay.

Hector Cowan was a tackle on the Princeton team of 1888. I don't know who originated the use of the V formation wedge from scrimmage, but he was one of the most important players. We had heard a great deal about Princeton and its new formation and there was speculation whether we would be able to stop the Princeton men.

Linemen stood up on defense and some extended their arms to ward off the attack. When Princeton started the game we were on edge to protect our record. The Princeton captain won the toss and chose to put the ball into play by scrimmage on the 50 yard line. There was no kickoff, as I remember that game.

We found it easy to stop the V formation. Our line, and I was one of those who adopted this idea, dived or rushed under the Princeton players. On my first attempt, I not only went under the wedge but I got through to tackle the runner. Stopping Princeton that day was my greatest thrill in football, although I continued for three more years a member of Yale's team.

Frank [Pudge] Heffelfinger, Yale star for four years, 1888-1891, now is a commissioner of Hennepin county, Minnesota. He lives in Minneapolis and he has continued his interest in football.

Then He Has to Punt Against Moss.

Upon Ollie Olson, Northwestern's blond full back, depends much of the Wildcats' hopes for a victory over Purdue Saturday. The Wildcat line plunger will be called upon to do what no other full back has accomplished this season, namely, crack the Boilermakers' line consistently.

The fact that Purdue has not been scored upon through the line this year indicates the size of the job confronting Olson.

Can He Outkick Moss?

In addition to being Northwestern's chief line bucker, Olson will be called upon to match kicks with Moss, the Boilermakers' brilliant punter. They probably are the best kickers in the conference.

While Olson is banging away at the Purdue line, the Wildcats will have a number of other backs to skirt the ends and hit in and around the tackles. They are Capt. Pug Rentner, Jakie Sullivan and George Potter.

The Wildcats started preparations yesterday for Saturday's game. All of the players reported for practice, but the regulars were excused after a brief study of Purdue formations.

Saturday's crowd, which is expected to go above 35,000, will be swelled by several thousand fathers of Northwestern students who will attend the annual Dads' day festivities one the campus. The athletic department announced yesterday that boys of high school age will be admitted to the game for 50 cents plus 5 cents tax.

PURDUE TAKES IT EASY.

La Fayette, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Purdue's regulars were granted a respite from actual drill this afternoon before launching preparation for the battle with Northwestern at Evanston Saturday. Following a chalk talk, in which Assistant Coach Glen Harmeson pointed out the strong points of the Wildcats' attack, the regulars were turned loose and the afternoon was devoted to building up the reserves.

Harmeson reported that Ollie Olson, the Wildcats' full back, would test the Boilermakers' light guards to the limit, and the development of a defense to stop Olson will be emphasized in tomorrow's drill.

FROSH WANT STAGG

Thirty members of the freshman football squad at the University of Chicago yesterday had signed a petition asking for the retention of A. A. Stagg as head football coach for at least one more year.

It was planned to send copies of the petition to Harold Swift, president of the university's board of trustees; President Robert M. Hutchins; Thomas N. Metcalf, who has been designated as Stagg's successor in the office of athletic director; the "Order of the C," composed of varsity and alumni letter men, and the alumni council of the university.

Scent Champion Team.

Feeling among the freshmen was to the effect Maroon football fortunes are on the upgrade and that Coach Stagg deserves to coach a team with championship possibilities, after his eight years of contending with mediocre material.

Among rumors afloat on the Midway was one to the effect that several prominent Yale alumni, members of Skull and Bones, senior honor society to which Stagg belonged as an undergraduate, are starting a movement to have the Maroon coach invited back to New Haven as head coach.

Chicago's annual football game with Indiana, once just an incident for the Maroons, this Saturday becomes the big test of Coach Stagg's rejuvenated eleven. Both teams are undefeated, but Indiana has been under conference fire twice, while Chicago's record in its early games has left the Maroons still a question mark.

Drill on Offense.

Stagg yesterday had plenty of faults to find with his team's play against Knox, and the Maroons were sent through a long drill on offensive tactics, with two freshman teams furnishing the Indiana effect. One new pass play was introduced to the second back field, while Sahlin and Zimmer were sent skirting the frosh ends.

Whether these two sprinters can make any headway against the heavy Indiana line, which includes two 200-pound ends, Dickey and Lyons, is one of the matters to be settled at Stagg field.

HOOSIER REGULARS REST.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Indiana regulars who presented a homecoming throng with a victory over Iowa Saturday were rewarded with a day of rest today. Those who took part in the game were dismissed when they reported, but the reserves were put through a long workout.

Defensive work, aimed to stop Chicago's "whirlwind shift," will be the order of the day tomorrow. Scouts report that the Maroon team, which Indiana will meet on the Midway Saturday, is strong.

QUARTERLY LOSS OF N. Y. GARDEN TOTALS $156,145

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Madison Square Garden corporation reports a net loss in the August quarter of this year amounting to $156,145, after depreciation and all other charges. This compared with a net loss of $314,853 in the corresponding period of last year.

The report for the three months ending Oct. 31 does not include the results of operation of the Boston Madison Square Garden corporation, which is a partly owned subsidiary. This showed a net loss of $35,892, against a net loss of $38,946 in the corresponding period last year.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They shut the half mile crown wearer completely out, and when the brief five furlong spin had been completed Hot Shot, a California sprinter, was a nose in front of Stuyvesant Peabody's Miss Melody in a thrilling finish. The fleet Volta Maid was third. Colonial Belle, a topnotcher on any race track, was fourth.

Beaten by Ten Lengths.

Plodding home in fifth place was Diaquri, beaten by ten lengths. There wasn't even a lock of shame in her eyes. She seemed to be glad it was all over and peered out at the packed stands and lawns where 7,000 racegoers had gathered as if she wanted to say: "They were too fast for me at the weights."

Weight, no doubt, had something to do with Diaquri's downfall, for her impost, following a spectacular victory here last week, was 117 pounds. Hot Shot carried only 105, Miss Melody packed 104, Volta Maid 98, and Colonial Belle 100½.

So the weight handicap and the surroundings of a big city completely befuddled Diaquri, and at every stage of the combat she was whipped. That doesn't mean that if she gets a few pounds off in her next struggle that she will not hug the rail and beat the horses that trimmed her in the Douglas Park.

Hot Shot Sets Pace.

As soon as the start came Hot Shot leaped out in front and he paraded in the lead as the pacemaker. Miss Melody was racing on the outside of him and showed good speed and gameness. Toltec was also up there, as were Volta Maid and Colonial Belle.

Toltec took for the outside fence on the first turn, so he was eliminated. Except for this incident it was a truly run race. Miss Melody gained on Hot Shot at every stride. Finally on the last turn she headed him. Charging down the short home stretch she was a neck in front, but racing out from the rail, Hot Shot pulled up on the inside and when Arcaro outrode McLaren on Miss Melody he got Hot Shot up in the last strides to win by a nose.

The track record was shattered when Hot Shot stepped the five furlongs in 1:01 2-5. This was nearly two seconds faster than the old mark. But these were the best horses that had ever galloped out for a race at Sportsman's Park.

Hot Shot Pays $7.

Another record was hung up on the new track when the veteran Finnic ran seven furlongs in 1:29 to win the fourth race. He got up just in time to get the decision over Fullup, which had cut out a stiff early pace all the way. Outbound, the favorite, was third and was quitting near the end. Finnic was a long shot. He paid $25.40 for $2.

Apprentice Is Neck Victor as Empire Opens

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Apprentice, James Butler's Vulcain colt, an outsider in the six horse field in the mile and seventy yards of the Bedford handicap, feature attraction on Empire City's opening card today, scored a neck victory over Euryalus, another long shot. Sun Mission finished third. Martis, the favorite, after showing early speed, dropped back in the final drive.

Uncanny and Sun Mission out out the early running, with Martis and Apprentice rated behind the pace, a length back. On the back stretch Jockey Bernius moved up to the leaders with the Butler colt, and Martis took a short lead. At the head of the stretch Martis began to tire and Apprentice drew into a length lead.

Under an energetic ride by Jockey Henson, Euryalus, the only juvenile in the field, was sent after the leader, but failed by a neck. Sun Mission passed Martis for the show award. The winner returned 6 to 1 and covered the distance in 1:45.

MICHIGAN TAKES REST CURE AFTER BRUISING AT OHIO

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Coach Harry Kipke developed a liking for blues songs here today in looking over his casualty list and hearing from Scout Wally Weber that Illinois may be a formidable foe Saturday.

Michigan regulars took a pounding from Ohio State last week. Stan Fay and Jack Heston are nursing serious injuries at the university health service. The others were out for a few setting up exercises. The day was the lightest of the season for them.

Heston moved about the health service on crutches, suffering from a broken small bone in his leg which will keep him out at least until the Minnesota game and probably for the season. Fay was X-rayed to determine whether he had fractured ribs, but loose cartilage was found to be the extent of his injury. He will be out of the Illinois and Princeton games and may miss the Indiana contest.

Substitute backs, inspired by the hope they might find a place in the regular back field, tore up the freshmen today. Among them were Shaw, a sophomore quarter back; De Baker, Renner, and Meidman. It appeared, however, that Herman Everhardus, Heston's competitor for one half back job, would take it over. Louis Westover, alternate quarter back and a letter man in 1931, seemed to be first choice for Fay's place, with Russell Oliver next in line.

IRISH GET DEFENSIVE DRILL.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special]—The Notre Dame football team engaged in a long defensive drill today in preparation for what is regarded as its first serious test. Notre Dame meets Carnegie Tech here on Saturday.

With Pitt scheduled just a week after the Carnegie game, Coach Hunk Anderson plans to bring his charges along quickly during the next two weeks. He is taking no chances, however, on overlooking Carnegie's strength, and told his players today that the Scots have a "fast, tough team."

ILLINI IN LONG DRILL.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Encouraged by its showing in the first half against Northwestern last Saturday the University of Illinois football team today went through a long signal drill and dummy scrimmage in preparation for its invasion of Michigan this week-end.

NEW OHIO QUARTER.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Ohio State's football team started preparing for its next game with Pittsburgh today. Work was carried on in a drizzling rain, and consisted of an attempt to polish up the offense as well as forward pass defense.

Marshall Oliphant was shifted to the first team in place of Cramer, who complains of an injured knee. Wilson and Padlow alternated at end in place of the injured Ferrall, and Tanski and Gailus alternated at guard.

Cramer has been given hospital treatment for his knee for the last two weeks and while X-rays fail to show any broken bones, he says the member causes considerable pain.

SHIFT GOPHER LINEUP.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Coach Bernie Bierman called Minnesota regulars together tonight for a review of the disappointing exhibition they put up against Nebraska. He indicated there may be some drastic changes in the lineup before the Iowa game at Iowa City Saturday.

Bierman indicated he will make a regular end out of Butch Larson to replace Tenner, and that he would find a place for Carl Tengler with the varsity even if he had to bench Jack Manders, star full back. Tengler showed more driving power than Manders. It is possible Manders will be shifted to half back.

Bierman noted improvement in only one department Saturday. That was in the line's play defensively. Sulo Koski starred at guard and may stay there in place of Apmann.

BADGERS DRILL FOR OHIO.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football team this afternoon began training for its game with Ohio State two weeks hence. The meeting with Coe college next Saturday being looked upon as a certain victory and every man on the Badger squad is expecting to play after the first team has run up a safe score.

Although Coe lost to the Badgers, 7 to 3, nine years ago and tied them 7 to 7 eight years ago, it is considered improbable that this year's Wisconsin team will have trouble running up a large score against the small college squad. Coach Doc Spears is expected to line up the first team to start the game and then substitute until each man has had an opportunity to show what he can do.

SECRET DRILL AT IOWA.

DICK TRACY—Stumped!

WELL, HERE I AM—ALL READY TO GO TO WORK. CHEE, DIS IS A FUNNY BAKERY—IT DON'T HAVE NO BREAD-SMELL LIKE MOST OF 'EM.
YEAH? WELL, DON'T WORRY ABOUT THAT, KID HERE ARE A COUPLE OF PACKAGES FOR YOU TO TAKE UP ON THE NORTH SIDE.
HEY—KEEP OUT OF THERE, YOU BRAT—
OH, EXCUSE ME, KID—I'M SORRY! I DIDN'T MEAN TO SOCK YOU—BUT THAT ROOM'S FULL OF—OF—OF MACHINERY—AND I DON'T WANT YOU TO EVER GO IN THERE—YOU MIGHT GET CAUGHT IN THE WHEELS—SEE?
OH
TRACY—WHAT HEADWAY HAVE YOU MADE ON THAT DOPE-RING CASE? HAVE YOU GOT A LINE ON MUCELLI?
NOT A THING CHIEF! I DON'T BELIEVE THAT BIRD MUCELLI IS EVEN IN TOWN!

Stapleton Pro Eleven Meets Bears Sunday

The Stapletons of Staten Island, N. Y., who, already have played a scoreless tie with the Bears this year, will make their first appearance at Wrigley field against the Bears next Sunday afternoon in a National Football league game.

It will be ladies' day and the full allotment of 20,000 guest tickets is expected to be mailed out this week. Ladies are instructed to address their requests to the Ladies' Day Ticket office, Chicago Bears Football club, Wrigley field, Chicago, and enclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope. Two tickets will be mailed to each request for ladies over 16 years of age.

Strong Stapleton's Star.

The visitors will present one of the greatest stars in the league at full back and several other former eastern collegians who have never been seen in action here. Ken Strong, former New York university plunger will be the full back and the man the Bears fear most.

In the game at Stapleton it was Strong who held the Bears at bay, although he had excellent support from Doug Wyckoff, half back, and Bob Campiglio, quarter back. Wyckoff is a veteran but Campiglio is a newcomer from the West Liberty State Teachers college of West Liberty, W. Va.

Despite the gruelling battle with the Green Bay Packers last Sunday the Bears came through without any serious injuries. Carlson had a toe mussed up but it will not keep him out of practice and he is sure to be in condition for Sunday's test.

"The Bears feel that they should have won the Packer game, but Coach Ralph Jones told them yesterday to forget it and put their entire attention on getting ready for the eastern invasion.

Sisk Pleases Coach.

The showing of Johnny Sisk convinced Jones that he has the makings of a real star. The former Marquette player made several good gains on plunges and performed generally well. He will be used again Sunday.

The Packer game was the fourth start in the National league for the Bears and they have the rather unusual record of being beaten once, but have not scored a touchdown and neither has the opposition. The safety made by the Packers comprised the only 2 points scored in four Bear games.

WESLEYAN AND MILLIKIN TO MEET FOR 29TH TIME

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Illinois Wesleyan football team, returned today from East Lansing, Mich., where it was defeated, 27 to 0 by Michigan state, but was given no rest. A two hour scrimmage was held.

One of football's keenest rivalries will be renewed Saturday when James Millikin university and Illinois Wesleyan meet in their 29th annual contest. It will be an outstanding game in the Little 19 conference season.

WEE WILLIE DAVIS, O'SHOCKER SIGN FOR MAT MATCH

Ray Steele will meet Joe De Vito in the main event, one fall to a finish. The semi-windup will bring together Hans Kampfer and Joe Stecher. Paul Harper meets Joe Cox, and Stan Lurik takes on Jack Carter.

Ruppert All-Star Meet Medwick Majors Tonight

The Ruppert All-Stars will meet the Medwick Majors, Joliet, Ill., indoor baseball team at White City tonight. In a preliminary game the Walsh Boosters will meet the Horace Lindheimers.

Beware, Bowlers! You Can't Escape the 'Electric Eye

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—A new use for the phototube, or "electric eye," applied by engineers on a local bowling alley, makes it impossible for bowlers to step on or over the foul line without being detected immediately. A small beam of light is focused across the alley so close to the floor as to be intercepted by nothing except the player's toe, and this need slide across the foul line only a fraction of an inch to be detected and registered by a flashing red light. The throwing of the ball in no way interferes with the foul detector because of the speed with which the ball crosses the line.

A referee sitting on a stool must keep his eyes constantly set on the foul line to watch for violations, under present arrangements. His decisions often result in disputes as to whether a bowler's toe slipped over the line or not. The electric eye eliminates all possibilities of such arguments.

BLACKHAWKS TRAIN FOR TITLE CAMPAIGN

The Chicago Blackhawks hockey team assembles at Duluth, Minn., to train for National league season. Mrs. Howard D. Raymond of Evanston was installed as president of the Women's Western Golf association at its annual meeting at the Lake Shore Athletic club yesterday. Mrs. Raymond succeeds Mrs. W. W. Harther of Exmoor, who retired after two terms.

Other officers installed were: Mrs. W. W. Hodgson, Oak Park, and Mrs. Lenox Nairn, Sunset Ridge, vice presidents; Mrs. C. W. Sechler, Westward Ho, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Donald Hamilton, Beverly, recording secretary, and Mrs. H. S. Stimson, Riverside, treasurer.

The Indian Hill team was awarded the par trophy for the season with a score of 34 down. The members of the team are Miss Jean Armstrong, Miss Helen MacMorran, Mrs. Carrol Hendricks and Mrs. Edgars Stevens.

FIVE ITALIAN CYCLISTS ENTER SIX DAY RACE

Five Italian cyclists will compete in the International six day bicycle race which starts in the Stadium, Nov. 2. Alfredo Binda, world road champion, heads the list.

Probably better known to fans in Chicago are Franco Georgetti and Pietro Linari who have competed here many times. Georgetti has one of the most brilliant records of any six day rider. He has won 11 races, finished second in six and third in four. Linari has won four races, finished second in two, third in two and fourth in two.

The other Italians, Edorado Severgnini and Tino Reboli will make their first appearance in Chicago. Reboli is an Italian-American youth from Newark, N. J., who has won the New Jersey state amateur road championship for the last two years. This will be his first six day race. Severgnini was born in Milan, Italy. It will be his first six day race in America and his first appearance in this country.

Spencer Coal Quintet Signs Anne Goldstein

The Spencer Coals basketball team, holders of the Cook county American Legion championship, yesterday announced the signing of Anne Goldstein, star member of the Jewish People's institute quintet last year. The Spencer squad will open the season on Nov. 23.

Mt. Carmel and De La Salle Meet in Charity Game

Mount Carmel and De La Salle football teams will clash next Sunday afternoon at Soldiers' field as the feature of the annual Sisters of Mercy homecoming day. Proceeds are for the Sisters of Mercy building fund. Led by Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, a parade of American Legion and Catholic high school bands will be held before the game, which will start at 1:30 p. m.

MRS. HAROLD P. O'CONNELL.

James A. Kearns, city treasurer, is general chairman of this year's game. County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly is west side chairman, and Sherman Sexton is the north side chairman.

Tilden Tech took the lead in the Chicago Public High School league soccer race by defeating Harrison Tech, 1 to 0, at Sherman park yesterday. It was Tilden's second victory of the season.

Two City league football teams will engage in nonleague contests Saturday. Lake View, tied with Roosevelt for second place in the north section, will play Rockford, Ill., while Crane Tech, which occupies third place in the west division, will meet Waukegan on the latter's field.

Basketball practice will open next week at City league schools. Among the first teams to start drills for the 1932-33 season is Tuley of the west section. Whether Medill will have a basketball team has not been determined. It abandoned the sport last year.

Englewood, central section leader, will seek its third consecutive victory Saturday when it meets Hyde Park at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue. Englewood eliminated Lindblom from the race when it scored its first victory over that school in 11 years.

HOLD BICYCLE RACE SUNDAY, RAIN OR SHINE

Rain or shine, the riders who are entered in the Libertyville to Chicago 35 mile bicycle race, will start from the Libertyville city hall at 1 p. m., Sunday.

Frank Kalteux, who is directing the race under the auspices of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, said yesterday: "There will be no postponement of the race for any reason. This is the grand final of the outdoor bike season, so even if the roads are covered with ice and snow, we will still start the contest."

Gains Loses 10 Round Decision to German Boxer

Chicago Wins 4 Bouts from Cincinnati

Chicago boxers whipped a team from Cincinnati, O., four matches out of five, in the first of a series of intercity matches at White City last night. The best Cincinnati could obtain was a six round draw, which was earned by Dick Clark against Jackie Davis of Chicago.

The best bout on the card was won by Freddy Tompkins, Chicago lightweight. He was awarded a six round decision over Howard Mitchell after a spirited battle. Jack King, Chicago welterweight, knocked out Jess Murdy in the first round of the six round windup. The bout looked even until King landed a left hook on the jaw.

JESS HARPER'S WIFE SHARES IN FATHER'S ESTATE

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Jess Harper, wife of the director of athletics at Notre Dame university, will share in the extensive estate left by her father, the late M. C. Campbell, dean of Kansas cattlemen, who died of pneumonia last week.

Under the will filed for probate here today, the widow, Mrs. Ella S. Campbell, will have use of the estate left to her as a life-time trust. Later the trust will be shared jointly by the couple's two daughters, Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Claude C. Stanley of Wichita. Mr. and Mrs. Harper were named as trustees.

Mrs. Harper will receive the 20,000 acre Campbell ranch in Clark and Comanche counties and all its personal properties. Her sister will receive the Campbell home here, bank stock holdings and oil royalties.

BLAZEKS HOLD WINDY CITY PIN LEAGUE LEAD

The Blazek and Andrews team is leading the Windy City Bowling league with 13 victories and two defeats. The squad is closely followed by the J. J. Jordans with 12 victories against three defeats. J. Peck of the fourth place A. J. Cermaks is ahead in the individual list with an average of 208. Peck has hit 3,120 pins in 15 games. His high is 246.

Plans for the opening of the Mohawk Bowling league will be completed tonight at a meeting at the Mohawk recreation, 518 West North avenue. Play will start next week.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A dispatch from Omaha, Neb., mentions Bernard Leahy, a former high school athletic star, as being held by police in Omaha on charges of manslaughter. This is not the Bernie Leahy, former Notre Dame football star and present member of the Chicago Bears, and the Leahy mentioned in the article is no relative of the Bear player.

ROSS SEEKS 9TH STRAIGHT WIN IN BATTALINO BOUT

Defeat Friday Would Halt Title March.

Barney Ross will be seeking his ninth straight victory this year when he meets Bat Battalino at the Chicago Stadium Friday night. He did not receive recognition as a leading lightweight contender until he whipped Ray Miller at Sparta stadium Aug. 26 and knocked out Frankie Petrolle at the Coliseum Sept. 15. Then the National Boxing association placed Ross fourth in the annual ratings in the 135 pound class, only Tony Canzoneri, champion; Billy Petrolle and Sammy Fuller being ranked ahead of him.

Here's Barney's Record.

Results of Ross' bouts this year follow: At Chicago—Beat Mickey O'Neil [8]; beat Billy Gladstone [6]; stopped Dick Sisk [6]; knocked out Henry Perlick [2]; beat Ray Miller [10]; knocked out Frankie Petrolle [2]. At Muncie, Ind.—Beat Nick Ellenwood [10]. At Indianapolis—Beat Frankie Hughes [10].

Now Ross' future depends upon what he accomplishes against the enigma of the ring, Battalino. Following his losing matches with Billy and Frankie Petrolle, Bat can be called only a trial horse who will make Barney display whether he is a real championship threat.

Ross boxed five rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium, three with Young Joe Walcott and two with Harry Schuman. He weighed 134 pounds after the drill, which included five additional rounds of rope skipping, bag punching and shadow boxing.

Bat Spars Five Rounds.

Battalino sparred five rounds yesterday at the Arcade gymnasium, two each with Jimmy Lundy and Laddie Tonelli and one with Joey Palazzola. Tonelli withstood the body punching and rough tactics of Bat in good shape, but Lundy and Palazzola will be replaced today by Dick Sisk and Jackie Davis.

Charley Retzlaff, Leonard, N. D., and Art Laskey, Minneapolis, Minn., heavyweights, who appear in supporting matches at the Stadium Friday, yesterday issued challenges to King Levinsky. Retzlaff meets Jack Roper, Tuffy Griffith's stablemate, in a 10 round contest. Laskey was without an opponent late yesterday. He was scheduled to face Jack O'Dowd of Detroit but O'Dowd canceled the match after being stopped by Seal Harris at South Bend, Ind., last Friday.

Nick Scalba, who won the International Golden Gloves bantamweight championship in 1931 under the name of Nick Scialaba, has started training for his second professional bout in New York. He whipped Ralph Giffone in four rounds at Brooklyn recently.

The Tony Herrera-Battling Gizzy 10 round match scheduled at Pittsburgh last night has been postponed until next Monday night. Herrera is drilling at the Arcade gymnasium.

MASSACHUSETTS BANS DEMPSEY AS SCHAAF REFEREE

Boston, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Massachusetts boxing commission today refused to permit Jack Dempsey to referee the Ernie Schaaf-Unknown Winston bout, a 12 round battle for the New England heavyweight title, at the Arena on Thursday.

"This bout is too important for an outsider to handle," the commission stated after its executive session. "We believe we have better referees than Dempsey in this state, and we realize we have more control over our own officials than we would over Dempsey. Also, our own officials need the fee much more than Dempsey."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OLD CINCINNATI CAN'T LOSE! IT'S 1911 TEAM VS. '12

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 17.—(AP)—In all these years, County Auditor Robert Heuck and his brother, Walter, haven't settled to their mutual satisfaction which University of Cincinnati football team was the best—that of 1911, which Walter captained, or that of 1912, which Robert bossed.

Now they are going to put it to the test on the football field. Teams each one led will play again between halves of the Dennison-Cincinnati game here Saturday.

Rodak, Rothier Qualify for C.Y.O. Boxing Tourney

Leo Rodak and Henry Rothier, members of the 1932 International Golden Gloves team, were among the 111 amateur boxers who qualified last night for the Catholic Youth organization's second annual boxing tournament. Rothier, formerly of East Moline, Ill., and now representing SS. Peter and Paul parish, won the Golden Gloves 135 pound championship. This year he is competing in the welterweight division.

Rodak, also of SS. Peter and Paul parish, winner of the 118 pound Catholic Youth Organization title last year, has moved up to a heavier class and triumphed in the featherweight division last night. Fighters from 403 parishes fought in the preliminary matches last night.

Others who passed the qualifying tests included Ed Sparrow in the featherweight class. Sparrow was the third boxer from the SS. Peter and Paul parish to qualify. Anthony Stone, former Central A. A. U. champion, of St. David's parish, triumphed in the welterweight division.

Entries for the tournament closed last night. The preliminary round for the tournament proper will start on Oct. 27. The final bouts will be held at the Chicago Stadium. Qualifying rounds will continue at the Catholic Youth organization center in the Congress Bank building each evening.

A.A.U. and Boxing Commission Plan Closer Alliance

The boxing committee of the Central A. A. U. and the Illinois Athletic commission yesterday agreed to cooperate more enthusiastically hereafter in the regulation of amateur boxing in this state.

The athletic commission has no jurisdiction over amateur bouts which are conducted according to the rules of the A. A. U., but will send an inspector to every show to see that the bouts are not in violation of the state law.

Contests in which the participants receive no compensation, emoluments, gifts, or share of the gate receipts are construed as amateur and consequently outside the control of the state commission. Sanctions will continue to be granted by the A. A. U. and permits by the athletic commission.

Kieckhefer Is Victor Twice in Cue Tests

Augie Kieckhefer won two games yesterday in the first day of play in the central division pocket billiard tournaments which opened at the Kieckhefer and Bensinger Recreations. In the afternoon he defeated P. Durocher, 100 to 82, and in the evening nosed out Leo Imolati of Omaha, 100 to 96.

The schedule for today is: Pettifer vs. Miller and White vs. Weston in the afternoon at Bensinger's, with McCann vs. Miller at night and Pettifer vs. White in the evening games.

At Kieckhefer's it will be Natalie vs. Kilgore and Durocher vs. Imolati in the afternoon and Kieckhefer vs. Kilgore and Natalie vs. Durocher at night.

Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., and Benny Allen, Kansas City, Mo., yesterday were added to the list of seeded players who will take part in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament in New York City, beginning Dec. 5.

Four others who participated in the 1931 tournament in Philadelphia, placing in the first four positions, are eligible to play this year. They are: Ralph Greenleaf, New York, present world's pocket billiard titleholder; George Kelly, Philadelphia, last year's runner-up; Erwin Rudolph, Cleveland, who held first honors in the pocket field in 1930, and Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, eastern sectional champion in 1931.

Taberski, who has held the world's title six times since 1916, still holds many records.

DAVE BANCROFT SEEKS PLACE AS REDS' MANAGER

New York, Oct. 17. — [Special.] — Dave Bancroft, former star shortstop of the New York Giants and later first lieutenant to John McGraw during his last few seasons as active manager of the team, was packing up his belongings today preparatory to leaving New York for some distant port as yet undetermined. From one source it was learned that he is a candidate to manage the Reds next year and that the appointment is almost certain to be his unless the Cincinnati management decides to name a player-manager to succeed Don Howley.

Brock, Ripp, Bitner, Lee on Midway Boxing Card

Jimmy Brock will meet Jack Ripp and Tiny Bitner will battle Paul Lee in the double windup of the weekly professional boxing show at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. There will be five other bouts and a wrestling match between Eddie Jacobs and Al Benning.

DOCTORS ASSAIL FEDERAL POLICY ON MEDICAL AID

Charge Peace Time Ills Are Treated Free.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The federal government's policy of providing free treatment at veterans' hospitals for injuries and disabilities bearing no relation to war service was condemned by speakers before the annual clinical congress of the American College of surgeons which opened here today.

Addressing the hospital standardization conference held in conjunction with the congress, Dr. Franklin H. Martin of Chicago, director general of the college, called attention to the extensive hospital building program of the veterans' bureau.

"Soldier patients," he said, "could be properly cared for in their own communities by their own doctors at much less expense to the government than by the present program."

He cited alleged cases of free government treatment of dependents of veterans and of "political favorites who had no part in war service."

"Abuses" Are Decried.

Dr. Daniel Crosby of Oakland, Cal., also decried "abuses of the privileges of veterans' bureau hospitals." He urged such services be limited to diseases and injuries resulting from war duty and to the dependents of dead veterans.

Dr. B. C. MacLean of New Orleans termed present veterans' hospitalization policies a "bureaucratic debauch" which, if continued, threatened "the ruin not only of medical standards but also of the voluntary hospital system of the United States."

In his paper, which dealt with hospital developments during the depression, Dr. MacLean pointed out hospital insurance as the "most significant" innovation. While not a panacea, this plan of paying premiums to underwrite the possibility of serious illness offers "the greatest promise of deliverance from economic pain," in his opinion.

War on Fee-Splitting.

Dr. Martin emphasized the work of the College of Surgeons in attempting to suppress fee-splitting among doctors, and pointed out how approved hospitals are assisting in the campaign.

He urged that hospitals offer their facilities for diagnostic clinics in the interest of better public health. In the past 15 years, he said, the death rate in hospitals had fallen from 9 per cent to 3 per cent, while the average patient's period of confinement had been cut in half.

A campaign of publicity to check the growing mortality rate from appendicitis was urged by Dr. John O. Bower of Philadelphia, who stressed the fact that 20,000 persons die annually in the United States from this cause.

Mrs. Mary Lansing, Widow of Chicago Broker, Is Dead

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Mary A. Lansing, 90 year old widow of Odelle E. Lansing, Chicago Board of Trade broker, and mother of R. U. Lansing of Evanston, Ill. She died last Thursday. Funeral services were conducted by Dr. Rufus Chase, formerly dean at Harvard university. Burial was at Glendale, Cal. Mrs. Lansing was born in Albany, N. Y., and lived for more than 50 years in Chicago. Besides her son she is survived by two daughters, Miss Ruth Lansing of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Elizabeth Lansing Rawson of Pasadena, and four grandchildren.

Mother of Lloyd Work, Investment Broker, Dies

Mrs. Melvina Elmore Work, 79 years old, mother of Lloyd E. Work, investment broker at 105 South La Salle street, died yesterday in Des Moines, Ia., of injuries suffered in a fall. She was the widow of the Rev. Dr. Abel M. Work, a pioneer in the work of the Presbyterian church in South Dakota. She is survived by five children.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

HAROLD TEEN—SPOOKY STUFF

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER! The Third Degree

FIND SPADE IN CAR OF MURDER VICTIM'S FRIEND

Lake county authorities disclosed last night that a spade had been found in the automobile of Louis L. Howell, who reported to the Chicago police last Wednesday that his erstwhile friend, Carl H. Reese, had been killed by four unidentified men and then put into the car.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith, Deputy Sheriff Kennedy and Capt. Joseph Goldberg went to Howell's cell in the Waukegan jail yesterday and accused him of plotting to kill Reese, a former race horse owner, and bury the body in some lonely spot in the forest preserves. Howell, however, maintained his innocence. He refused to talk about the spade, he said, on advice of his attorneys.

Reese's widow went to the Chicago detective bureau yesterday and told Chief of Detectives Schoemaker that Howell argued for a long time with her husband on Wednesday before the latter could be persuaded to go with Howell in the car. She also declared that Reese had been robbed of $400. Both statements disagreed with the story told by Howell.

John Jones, 36 years old, 7258 Cornell avenue, a telegrapher, said to be a former business associate of Howell & Reese, was arrested last night. He is to be questioned today at the Albany Park station.

MINERS' LEADER INSIST GUNMEN TRY TO KILL HIM

Auto Riddled, but He and Friend Escape.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Pat Ansbourg of West Frankfort, an official of the Progressive Miners' union, whose bullet riddled car was found in a cornfield near here last night, giving rise to fears that he had been kidnaped, was found safe and well at Gillespie late tonight.

"Gunmen have been imported to get me," said Ansbourg in telling of the abandoned car and his disappearance. His story was that he and a companion were pursued by two men to the cornfield. There he and his friend abandoned the automobile and fled on foot, with the pursuers firing away at them. They reached Pana, stayed all night with friends, and today went to Gillespie.

Earlier in the day Col. Robert W. Davis of the Illinois National Guard, commanding troops in this area, said he believed that Ansbourg's car was planted to embarrass the militia.

Gerry Allard, a board member of the Progressives, announced tonight through Patrick Powers that Ansbourg would be sent back here, accompanied by several leaders. He also announced that picketing would be resumed, but not concentrated.

Late tonigfht Capt. H. L. Bolen of the National Guard, asserted that he was told that a plan had been made by two men to bomb a large garage here where the guardsmen are quartered. His information, he said, was contained in a sworn statement signed by a resident of Taylorville. This man gave the names of the two plotters, he said.

Galesburg Mine Reopens.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Three hundred men who have been on strike since late in the summer returned to their jobs at the East Galesburg mine today following the signing of a working agreement between their local of the Progressive Miners of America and the Galesburg Mining company. The number put to work today represents a 100 per cent force. The mine will work at peak capacity to supply its back contracts which are chiefly to supply coal for railroads.

Australian Gold Mine Discoverer Dies; Age 80

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 17.—(AP)—William Ford, who with his partner, Arthur Bayley, discovered the famous Coligardie gold mines, died here today. He was 80 years old. Ford was a typical prospector. He lived a story book life, having known both hunger and riches. Thus far the Coligardie mines have produced about $500,000,000 in gold.

Dr. L. J. W. Lyle, Pioneer Woman Doctor, Dies

Washington, Pa., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Dr. Louise J. Wotring Lyle, 90, pioneer woman doctor and instrumental in establishing the Cincinnati Medical college, died at her home early today. She was the founder of the Presbyterian hospital in Pittsburgh.

Count Boni Near Death; Family at His Bedside

PARIS, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Count Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, who is ill of bronchitis after a paralytic stroke, grew steadily weaker tonight and his family remained at his bedside. Doctors said there was little hope for his recovery.

SCIENTIST CLAIMS ELIXIR TO MAKE THE LIFE LONGER

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—An elixir claimed to lengthen the span of life ten years was seen at the London medical exhibition which opened today for doctors only.

It is the discovery of an Italian doctor who spent twenty years in investigations. It consists of a solution of gold, platinum and palladium, brain extract, iodine, phosphorus, formic acid and other ingredients.

The inventor claims the preparation taken only in minute doses arrests senile decay. He said that he had supplied some of the world's wealthiest people.

CLARA S. TONER, RETIRED S. SIDE TEACHER IS DEAD

Miss Clara S. Toner, 81 years old, a retired school teacher, who was well known to an older generation on the old south side gold coast, will be buried in Oakwoods cemetery this afternoon following services at 3:30 o'clock in the chapel at 1506 East 67th street.

Miss Toner retired as a teacher about 1897. She began teaching in 1871, and served at the Dore, Foster, Keith and Moseley schools. As a teacher at the Keith and Moseley schools she had among her pupils many of the children of Chicago's society leaders.

Born in Pittsburgh, Miss Toner was brought to Chicago by her parents when she was a girl. She was one of the first graduates of the old Foster school. She was graduated from the Chicago Normal school in Monroe street about 1870. Miss Toner lived on the west side for some time and later resided at 2837 Indiana avenue. Four years ago she moved to Edelstein, Ill. She died there last Saturday.

BANKS BURSTING WITH CASH; GOOD LOANS SCARCE

Slash in Interest on Deposits Seen.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Yesterday's federal reserve report on the condition of member banks in principal cities throughout the country showed that combined demand deposits of these institutions increased 101 millions in the week ended Oct. 12.

This represents an increase in commercial deposits. But savings also have been going up—despite the fact that normally in a period of depression savings decline, as they are drawn upon by people using their nest eggs to tide them over to better times.

Deposits Up, Loans Down.

It is interesting to see what the banks are doing with this additional money. Although deposits increased 117 millions during the week total loans and discounts declined 3 millions. The banks' investments in United States government securities, however, increased 61 millions and their investments in other securities went up 41 millions.

The decline in loans at a time when deposits are going up is indicative of the present dearth of borrowers. Industries aren't going to the banks for loans because they have no profitable employment for additional money.

Take General Motors for example. This company, like many other big concerns, has been sending money to the banks instead of borrowing from them. Its statement as of June 30, 1932, showed that this company had 163 millions of cash—mostly in banks—in addition to 51 millions invested in government securities.

Merely Drug on Market.

The same is true of other big corporations like International Harvester, United States Steel, and Armour & Co.

This situation has made money almost a drug on the market. Nobody wants it because there's nothing to do with it. Banks in smaller communities carry their cash balances with city banks and the city banks deposit part of it in other city banks or the federal reserve banks and invest part in short term U. S. government securities.

The banks at present are paying half of one per cent interest on large commercial deposits. They lose money on this kind of business, because there's no place for them to invest this money except in short term "governments." This type of investment is highly liquid but its yield doesn't come near covering the half of one per cent per annum interest that the bank pays the demand depositor.

Pay ½% and Get .13%.

Yesterday, for instance, the treasury announced the allotment of $75,000,000 in 91 day treasury bills at rates yielding from .13 to .16 per cent on an annual basis.

It doesn't take a financier to discover that you can't borrow money from depositors at .5 per cent interest and invest it at .13 per cent interest and make money.

To meet the situation it is reported in authoritative sources that two definite moves are being considered.

First, the general opinion in financial circles is that there will be a reduction in the rediscount rate. Second, further discussion is being heard of the likelihood that clearing house banks in New York will eliminate interest on demand deposits and reduce interest rates on time deposits.

Bankers' Opinions Divided.

There is a sharp division of opinion among bankers on the advisability of taking the latter step. All agree that the present rates are not sufficiently remunerative to the banks, but some

Lauds Trucks as Agency to Combat Slump

BY SCRUTATOR.

How do manufacturers and merchants feel about the controversy of the railroads and the motor vehicle industry concerning federal and state regulation? Letters to this column indicate that users of transportation hold a sympathetic attitude toward the railroads but believe that the railroads should be freed from hampering regulations rather than that the motor carriers should be excessively regulated.

After all, the chief concern of producers and merchandisers is economical transportation no matter what the agency. It is their common complaint that this item in costs of manufacturing and distribution has remained unduly high, whereas raw materials and labor have been forced to subnormal levels and profits have all but disappeared.

This attitude is illustrated by a letter and "resolutions" which the Met-L-Wood corporation of Chicago is sending to its customers and business connections. It is further explained in a letter from E. C. Howe of the company to the writer.

Raps Motor Turmoil.

"It is our feeling that the turmoil and agitation in reference to laws regulating motor trucks cannot help but be an impediment to recovery of business," Mr. Howe says. "It is common in gatherings where the probable recovery of business is discussed for people to advise that they feel some new development like the radio is necessary to bring on a wave of buying and the return of prosperity.

"It is my feeling that there are a number of developments, among which is motor truck transportation, that are only in their infancy and which, like normal developments, would go a long way toward restoring normal business conditions."

The letter broadcast by the company's mailing list urges that recipients obtain signatures to the accompanying resolutions and forward them to their senators at Washington, D. C., and to their state legislators.

"Resumption of industry and reconstruction is hampered by the difficulties encountered by industry and business in achieving a profitable basis of operation," the resolutions says. "General reëmployment will necessarily be delayed until general business conditions are improved. In every program for rehabilitation of industry, the motor truck and its general use must be considered as a vital factor, as it is one of the major means of distribution available to industry in its campaign to reduce costs and revive business.

Wants Uncertainty Ended.

"We therefore ask: 1. That the uncertainty caused in the motor truck industry by proposed restrictive legislation be put at an end by the prompt passage of moderate legislation so that the motor truck can be used to its full advantage as a distributive arm of industry. We are in favor of reasonable restrictions as to weight and length. 2. That as rapidly as possible the conflicting laws of the various states restricting motor truck use be nationalized. 3. Rather than help the railroads by injuring the motor truck industry, legislation be passed to help the railroads by freeing them from the burden of restrictions under which they at present operate."

As a basis for the resolutions it is argued that the depression has forced all companies to reduce costs but that the costs of distribution has been most difficult to cut. It is contended that the greatest headway in reducing this cost has been through the agency of the motor truck.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 17.—Newsprint prices at Montreal have been further reduced, according to unofficial reports to the effect that spot paper today was offered as low as $38 per ton. Contract prices average only $2 per ton higher. This is in contrast to the $45 level recently established by International Paper and indicates the severity of the price war raging.

Peoples Gas Earns Dividend in Nine Months

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Third quarter earnings statements were issued yesterday by big corporations representing several lines of industry. The most important reports were those of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

The Peoples Gas earnings were regarded as favorable and in line with the showing of the well established utility operating companies. The Du Pont statement showed a sharp decline in earnings, reflecting the conditions in the automobile industry, from which the company normally derives a large share of its income.

Earn Dividend in 9 Months.

The Peoples Gas report, signed by James Simpson, Samuel Insull's successor as board chairman, showed net profit for the September quarter of $773,630, equivalent to $1.13 a share on the capital stock. This compares with $847,549, or $1.51 a share, in the corresponding period last year.

Nine months' earnings of the company amounted to $4,304,035, or more than sufficient to cover dividend requirements for the entire year. The earnings per share for the period was $6.27, as compared with the current annual dividend rate of $5.

Chairman Simpson pointed out that the earnings for the comparable periods last year are adjusted to the present basis of accounting, on which current earnings are being figured.

The company's net income was $6,203,384, equivalent to $9.04 a share, for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, as compared with $6,756,783, or $10.79 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

In his letter to stockholders Mr. Simpson points out that the company successfully refinanced its $20,000,000 funded maturity during the quarter and retired a bank loan of $3,150,000. In addition the company has called in advance of maturity $2,000,000 of serial notes which fall due Feb. 1, 1933.

Mr. Simpson said that the payment of the bank loans and the retirement of the notes will bring about a substantial decrease in interests charges. Other economy measures included a general reduction in pay for all officers and salaried employés.

Du Pont Net 36 Cents.

The Du Pont statement, a preliminary report, showed net earnings for the third quarter of 36 cents a share on the 10,838,799 shares outstanding. The earnings include dividends from the General Motors investments equal to 23 cents a share. In the preceding quarter the company earned 27 cents a share.

Net earnings equalled $1.12 a share in the comparable period last year including 68 cents from the General Motors investment.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 earnings amounted to $1.37 a share. These earnings include 92 cents from the General Motors shares held by the company. In the first nine months of 1931 $3.37 was earned on the common stock of which $2.03 a share was accounted for by General Motors dividends.

Hold Meeting Here in Drive to Make Jobs

A proposal for the stimulation of business through rehabilitation and modernization of industry is to be outlined by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and Malcolm Muir, New York publisher, at a luncheon at the Palmer House tomorrow at 12:30 p. m.

This meeting is to be the start of a campaign, which is national in its scope, to get industrial leaders in the seventh federal reserve district to modernize and improve their plants and factories wherever possible. It is being held under the auspices of the banking and industrial committee of the seventh federal reserve district and the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

James D. Cunningham, chairman of the committee, states that the idea is to get industry to install improvements which will result in work being distributed through factories, transportation, the farms, mines, forests, etc. He points out that in industries devoted to the making of machinery and equipment alone approximately 1,620,000 employés have been deprived of work since 1929, involving a pay roll loss of 3 billion dollars.

Mr. Cunningham states that one idle worker in the machinery and equipment industries results in a loss of employment for three workers in consumer industries and products in the furnishing of raw materials.

JOBS IN ILLINOIS UP TWO MONTHS IN SUCCESSION

Pay Rolls Also Gain in September.

For the second consecutive month employment in Illinois has shown an improvement to a report made public by the Illinois department of labor.

Employment in 1,480 industrial establishments in the state increased 1.1 per cent in September over August, while payrolls were up 1 per cent. For August all reporting industries in the state showed gains of 1.2 per cent in employment and 2.8 per cent in payrolls.

Although the increases reported were the largest since industrial activity began to decline three years ago, they were not great enough to offset the declines which occured in July when employment decreased 5.6 per cent and payrolls dropped 10.7 per cent.

Factory Jobs Increase.

The department also reported yesterday that employment in 998 Illinois factories had moved up 1.3 per cent and 2.6 per cent in payrolls in September over August, continuing the rising trend which began in August when advances of 2.3 per cent in employment and 7.1 per cent in payrolls were shown. Here again the increases have not been sufficient to offset the losses sustained in July.

The department states that its index of employment—based on the 1925-'27 average—was 57.9, or 43.9 per cent lower than in September, 1929, while the payroll index stood at 38.3, 60.4 per cent below 1929.

Metals, machinery and conveyances, the largest of the 9 main manufacturing groups, sustained reductions of 2.8 per cent in employment and 2.1 per cent in payrolls for September. These reductions and those in 2 other groups—stone, clay and glass and printing and paper goods—were more than offset by substantial increases in the six remaining groups. The food group, which made the best showing, reported more than seasonal gains.

Steel Making Slips.

Ten of the 18 industries included under metals, machinery and conveyances, reported decreases in employment. The iron and steel industry showed a decrease of 2.8 per cent in employment, with an increase of 1.5 per cent in payrolls. Gains in employment were shown in tools and cutlery, brass, copper, zinc and other metals and cooking and heating apparatus.

In printing decreased activity in job

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the home loan bank board, said in a radio address tonight that the bank hopes to relax credit tension in the real estate and building fields by operating through the regular loaning agencies, but that if these agencies fail to function properly the bank will exercise its right to loan directly on property.

Fort reviewed the steps leading up to the organization of the home loan and explained that the board had selected sites and districts with a view of reaching as many agencies as possible. During his talk he took occasion to praise the "fine and unselfish spirit" of local directors of the banks.

Reservoir of Home Funds.

"At last the mortgage lending institutions of America have a central reservoir of credit," he continued, "with one hundred and thirty-four millions of capital and expansion possibilities through the issuance of bonds which make their minimum ultimate size at least a billion and a half.

"At last the federal reserve system for commercial banks and the federal land bank system for farm mortgage lending institutions have been supplemented, thanks to President Hoover's vision and persistence, with a system to supply funds primarily for urban home ownership.

"Conditions in the mortgage market have been deplorable this past year.

Can Make Direct Loans.

"No longer does any excuse exist for a continuance of this situation. The home loan banks are open. Every honestly managed building and loan association, savings bank, or insurance company in the United States is eligible to join the system either as a member or a nonmember borrower.

"If lending organizations will not do their duty now—if they do not join this great national system and, relying upon its aid, relax the abnormal tension in the real estate and building markets—then the home loan banks have the power to make direct loans up to 40 per cent of the value of the property. But we hope and confidently believe that, now that we are open for business, the great mutual lenders will prove their mutuality of character by doing the job which is rightfully theirs—by lifting, with the funds collected from the neighborhood, the threat to any neighbor."

Atlantic Refining Company Reports Net of $1.58 a Share

Atlantic Refining company reported smaller net earnings for the third quarter than last year but its nine months operations resulted in a substantial profit as compared with a deficit in the same months of 1931. For the nine months net profit was $4,428,000, equivalent to $1.58 a share as compared with a loss of $2,771,000 in the comparable period last year. Third quarter net was $1,063,000 against $1,241,000 in the September quarter of 1931.

MIDDLE WEST'S PLANTS FOUND IN GOOD ORDER

Receivers Back from Inspection Tour.

Properties of Middle West Utilities company subsidiaries in the southwest are in excellent condition and need only a little judicious pruning of expenses and remodeling of bookkeeping systems, according to Edward N. Hurley and Charles McCulloch, co-receivers for the big Insull company, who returned yesterday afternoon from a week's tour of inspection of the holdings in Texas and Oklahoma.

CHARLES A. McCULLOCH.

About 40 per cent of the properties of the Middle West system are in the southwest. The receivers said yesterday that their next tour will cover the Canadian properties and those in Wisconsin and Kentucky.

They were accompanied on their southwestern trip by O. E. McCormick, treasurer of Middle West, and Frank Krusi, vice president.

Call Managers to Meeting.

The receivers further announced that they had called a meeting of the operating heads of all Middle West subsidiaries to be held in Chicago some time between the 15th and 20th of November, at which plans will be made for the administration of the properties.

"As a result of our trip," Mr. McCulloch said last night, "we have caused an additional $4,000,000 in overdue depreciation charges to be written off the books of operating subsidiaries of Central and Southwest Utilities, the Middle West subsidiary in the southwest.

"We also had the annual rate of writeoffs for depreciation increased for a number of companies.

"We discovered that in many cases earnings of Middle West subsidiaries had been made to seem greater than they actually were by the use of low chargeoffs for depreciation.

Save $150,000 a Year.

"During our trip, also, we ordered economies that will amount to from $150,000 to $200,000 a year. But this is just a starter."

Mr. Hurley stated that the receivers were enthusiastic about the pos-

As Sound As the Nation They Serve

To the man who wishes to be sure that the institution with which he places his insurance will still be in existence when he needs the protection it promises, the record of the Affiliated Continental Companies is ample assurance that they are as sound as the nation they serve.

Founded 35 years ago, they have through conservative management and careful financing become one of the largest and strongest insurance institutions in the country. You can be certain of the stability of your insurance or surety-fidelity bonds if you instruct your agent or broker to place them with the Affiliated Continental Companies . . . the only Multiple Line Insurance Organization with Home Offices in Chicago.

Mess. N. W. Harris & Co

Gentlemen,

I hereby certify that I have examined a certified copy of the proceedings of the Commissioners Court of Randolph County Indiana preliminary to the issuing of thirty six Road Bonds of the denomination of $500- each, by said County and have compared such proceedings with the laws of Indiana now in force, and find that the proceedings are in compliance with the laws of that State, and in my opinion the said Bonds are valid and binding obligations upon the said County of Randolph, Indiana - Chas H. Wood

The Legal Opinion reproduced here covers one of the first municipal bond issues distributed by N. W. Harris & Co. which later became the Harris Trust and Savings Bank. Since the business was founded in 1882, the organization has furnished money to every state in the Union for building roads, school houses, water works, and other improvements. Municipal bonds were the first type of security handled by this organization and have always represented a large share of our annual volume. We shall be glad to submit a list of municipal bonds which we own and recommend for sound investment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—The feature of today's bond market was an improvement in the prices of New York City issues. The market responded quickly to the decision of the board of estimate to meet bankers' demands for a sharp reduction in municipal expenditures as a condition for further loans.

Bids on long term bonds moved up from 2 to 3 points in late trading as news from city hall was flashed over the market tickers. With the exception of a rise in Canadian liens, the bond market was otherwise spiritless.

Buying of Canadian issues lifted prices 1 to 2 points in both the Dominion government issues and in bonds of the country's railway systems, principally of Canadian National Railways. The stimulus for the movement came in further strength today in Canadian funds, the dollar rising to a discount of only 6¾ cents below parity.

German Bonds Climb.

German government bonds, principally the 7½s, climbed slightly to a new high for the year, following the declaration of Chancellor von Papen that Germany can pay its foreign private obligations only by the exchange of goods. Obligations of German corporations dropped slightly in early trading, but loses in no instance were severe.

Domestic bonds were fractionally lower in most instances, with trading volume at low ebb. High grade bonds were steady. The United States government list was at a stalemate, with buyers favoring the short-term issues. Momentarily a more hopeful attitude rules with regard to long-term bonds, owing to the expected pronouncement of Governor Roosevelt in opposition to immediate cash payment of the bonus.

Rail Issues Lower.

Recessions in the second grade railroad bond list included such bonds as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s due 1960, Chicago and North Western convertible 4½s, Missouri Pacific 6½s, New Haven collateral 6s, and others.

Utility bonds for the most part were steady, but issues of International Telephone dropped a point or more. High grade bonds were steady.

HOME OWNERS' FRIEND

Inquiries must be accompanied by a stamped, self-adressed envelope. Answers of public interest will be published. Address letters to Howe Owners' Friend, Chicago Tribune. Be sure and state all the facts. Answers are based on information which The Tribune believes correct, but beyond care in securing it The Tribune assumes no responsibility.

One Hundred Dollars Saved.

TO THE EDITOR: I would be grateful to THE TRIBUNE for any information I may receive. About seven weeks ago I made application for a second mortgage loan from ——. They are the only people in the city I could find who are making second mortgage loans. I wanted a $2,000 loan; I already have a first mortgage of $3,500 which expires 1934. We signed the papers, agreeing to pay about $500 commission for the loan.

A week or so later, I called up to see if we were to receive the money as I wanted to pay my taxes and special assessments. They told me I would have to get two cosigners. I did this and they were required to assign their wages. Last week they called up and told me to come in for the money; that everything was o. k. Upon calling at the office I was informed that I would have to pay $600 for commission on a loan for two years. I reminded them of their original offer to make the loan for $500 a few weeks before, but they said the board of directors had decided to charge more on account of it being hard to make second mortgage loans.

Finally, I got disgusted and told them I would like to have the papers and also the signatures of the people who signed for me. They refused and said it would cost $100 for their expense. I have no money and cannot pay for legal advice and I am afraid these people might garnishee my wages as well as the wages of the cosigners. All we want is a square deal. I met another couple in the office who had exactly the same trouble as we had about raising the commission when they were about to receive the money. They gave me their name and address and said they would be glad to go to the Home Owners' Friend and tell their story.

It's a shame and a crime I think to impose on poor people who are trying to keep their home, pay taxes, and who make daily sacrifices so as to make both ends meet. Would it be advisable to go to the state's attorney's office or the better business bureau? Please let me know what would be the best thing to do.—M. H.

ANSWER: The rates charged you are excessive although this organization operates within the law. Remember, you are not forced to do business on this basis. We know of a number of cases where second mortgage loans have been made on a basis of 10 per cent commission, which seems high but at least is within reason. We have taken up your case with the organization referred to and they promised us that they would cancel negotiations and return all papers without any charge. Before making a loan it is advisable to shop around and find out where the best rates can be obtained. If you will mail in a complete statement of your situation, describing your property, mortgages, taxes, etc., we will be glad to analyze your case as there may be a possibility of eliminating a second mortgage loan.

INSURANCE MEN HIT INTERLOCKING DIRECTORATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 17.—A vigorous stand against interlocking directorates or holding companies for life insurance companies and also against alliances of these companies with banks or investment companies through stock ownership, was adopted by the national convention of insurance commissioners at their sixty-third annual meeting.

The meeting, which will close tomorrow, includes the state officials charged with the duty of supervising the operations of insurance companies of all kinds. Thirty-one states answered the roll call, and in addition there are many prominent business executives present.

Failure Points Out Evil.

The question of interlocking directorates has been under consideration by the commissioners for two years and it was brought into bold relief early this year when the Inter-Southern Life Insurance company of Louisville and the Security Life Inurance Company of America of Chicago, affiliated concerns, failed in quick succession. These concerns had been controlled by the Keystone Holding company of Hammond, Ind., also in receivership.

Two speakers charged that the failure of these compan fear that dropping interest on demand deposits and cutting interest rates on savings might encourage too heavy withdrawals of deposits.

Some withdrawals would be welcomed by the banks. It happened to be my privilege the other day to hear the head of one large bank instruct one of his vice presidents to reduce deposits several millions. This institution has around 100 millions of dollars on deposit with New York banks.

There's no shortage of money in this country. The banks are loaded with it. They have so much they don't know what to do with it. And there's no shortage of credit.

Good Borrowers Scarce.

The shortage is that of good potential debtors. There's a crying demand for people and corporations to borrow money—but they must be people who can pay it back. That's the chief requirement. Just now too many of the companies who want to borrow money can't assure the prospective lender that they can pay it back, and too many of the companies whose credit is good, and to whom the banks would gladly lend, can't find profitable employment for what money they already have.

The corporations that normally would be borrowing and building are playing them close to the vest until they see what the next few months hold in the way of legislation and taxation. For one thing, they aren't encouraged by the knowledge that during the three months ended Sept. 30—the first quarter of the new fiscal year in which the nation was to have a "balanced budget"—the federal government had receipts of 431 millions and expenditures of 834 millions.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 14,000.

A perceptible stiffening of prices gave the hog market a healthier appearance after it had opened top-heavy and sluggish yesterday. Slight savings were made in most of the early buying, but the whole list of quotations was back to a fully steady basis before the finish. The general average price for the whole day at $3.55 compared with $3.55 Saturday and was 5c lower than last Friday.

Underweight hogs topped the market at $3.90, this price comparing with $3.80 Saturday, when no fancy light were available, and with $3.90 last Friday. Large local packers were aggressive buyers, handling about 14,000, mostly good to choice grades at $3.70@3.75. A spread of 10c covered the range for the bulk of best quality 150@275 lb averages.

Demand for roasting pigs continued brisk, with 60@80 lb averages at $4.00@4.50. A feature of the day was the sale of 287 fancy "baby" roasters, averaging only 37 lbs, from Wisconsin. They sold to Armour at $8.00 per cwt., about $3.00 per head.

Cattle Section Slips.

A run of 26,000 cattle trampled prices in the cattle alleys yesterday. This supply, the largest of the year, including 6,000 from range territory, proved too much for the trade in spite of the better tone noted in the market last last week. The movement was late in getting under way in all parts of the yards. Concessions of 25@50c were asked in most cases and a big share of the receipts finally changed hands on that basis.

Numerous shipments were carried over when buyers and sellers failed to come to terms before the session ended. Choice 1,260 lb. steers topped the market at $9.50, making the lowest Monday top since Aug. 1. This figure is 85c under the year's peak, but still shows $1.85 advance compared with the low spot in June. The bulk of beef steers sold at $5.50@8.25, with a good showing of the grassy steers down to $4.00 and occasionally lower.

Lambs Decline Too.

The lamb market came in for a price cut too. Losses of 15@25c were uncovered in the majority of sales. Native lambs sorted at $5.00@5.35 got the brunt of the decline. Only a few scattered lots were handpicked up to $5.50. Range lambs arrived in larger numbers, but many were billed direct to packers from other points. The 25 carloads on the market sold at $5.50 and below. Little change was cited in matured sheep or yearlings.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was easier today, with a confirmed sale of 29,000 bags of Cuban, for prompt shipment, at a point decline, or 3.16c delivered. There was little inclination to make fresh commitments in the futures market. Prices moved within comparatively narrow limits. The opening was unchanged to 1 point lower. Thereafter there was no change throughout the general list, with the market closing just where it opened. Only 4,100 tons changed hands. Prices follow:

HOLIDAY CUTS BOND OFFERINGS OF LAST WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—New bond offerings last week showed a decided drop from last week and from the previous week, due, in part, to the holiday in midweek. The total of new bond financing this week amounted to but $12,860,000, compared with $78,372,000 last week and with $65,839,000 the previous week.

New utility financing, comprising two issues, accounted for $8,700,000 of this week's total. Both were well received, being offered at close to a 5 per cent basis.

Sell Canadian Bonds.

This week's foreign financing consisted of an issue of $4,015,000 province of British Columbia bonds, payable in United States currency. New municipal financing was limited, owing to the relatively few new issues up for award this week.

Although a number of new public utility issues are currently discussed for early offering, it is not expected that many of these will reach the market until general market prices improve. Chief among the new issues under discussion is one of $35,000,000 for the Toledo Edison company.

	This week.	Last week.
Public utility	$ 8,700,000	$44,500,000
State and municipal	145,000	17,872,000
Fed. In. Credit bank	.....	16,000,000
Total	$12,860,000	$78,372,000

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—DRY GOODS.—Primary markets opened very quiet today. Cotton goods eased in the gray cloth division on small sales. More business came forward in women's coatings and on overcoatings. Silk continued in demand for immediate use. Burlaps were unchanged at the opening. Rayon fabrics are irregular.

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the REDUCED RATE is charged only while you keep the money.

SOLUTION TO MYSTERY PUBLISHED YESTERDAY

The fact that Thompson could not have removed the ring because of his paralyzed left arm definitely indicated that he was not alone during the fifteen minutes in ques-tion and that whoever did remove it killed him.

Even if possible [although it was not] there would have been no reason for Thompson to remove his ring before committing suicide.
